By ARTHUR BRISBANE

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 26.

IF ANYBODY says life in the South is not active, contradict him. The writer having been "whizzing" through these states, Georgia and South Carolina, several days, knows.

Herbert Porter, manager of W. R. Hearst's Atlanta Georgian, who makes Legree look like a Salvation Army lassie, says:

"We make a late start this (Friday) morning. Come to the downtown theater about eight, talk to the Atlanta Georgian carrier boys and men, tell them they are real merchants, gaining invaluable experience through contact with the most intelligent ladies and gentlemen of Georgia."

YOU DO THAT, and a Lincoln car drags you 125 miles to Georgia's Blue Ridge Mountains and the Tallulah Falls School for mountain girls and boys. There is a speech to be made there, many interesting buildings to be visited, three ranges of hills to be climbed.

Says Legree:

"Then you must hurry, because we are late now for Clemson. I am afraid you will miss the cadets' parade."

The Lincoln comes close to "hitting 100," but you do miss the parade, but not the interesting dinner, and certainly not the speech.

You meet the learned Dr. E. W. Sikes, head of Clemson College, where 1,200 young cadets who are taught agriculture, or engneering, live in barracks under military discipline. They wear uniforms and are trained to fight in defense of their country, if it should be necessary.

The young men all like it. Dr. Sikes, who graduated from Johns Hopkins in 1886, says:

"We have no pacifists in South Carolina. We don't raise any."

HISTORICAL COUNTRY surrounds Clemson College. Attached to the college is the old home of John C. Calhoun, and what once was his plantation is now Clemson's 500-acre farm.

Calhoun's son-in-law, Thomas G. Clemson, left all he had to found the college. He had fought in the French revolution, liked Europe and got his father-in-law to make him charge d'affairs of the American legation in Belgium.

When Albert Brisbane first went to Europe in 1828, one hundred and five years ago, Calhoun gave him a letter to all American diplomatic representatives in Europe.

That proved to be useful, when in 1830 Albert Brisbane went on horseback from Berlin to Constantinople via Athens. No airplane, railroad train or even stage coach for that trip. Travel has changed.

FROM CLEMSON College 18 miles to the neighboring city of Anderson. There, a meeting in the high school auditorium and another speech are waiting.

B. R. Kidd, of Anderson, South Carolina, takes you on that trip, while Wilton E. Hall, able young publisher, tells of places passed in the dark.

Two miles to the west stood the "Treaty Oak." Beneath it Gen. Andrew Pickens, in 1785, "negotiated a treaty with the Cherokee Indians for the acquisition of 'up country'," a good acquisition.

Not much more than 100 years ago the ridge at Gainesville, whence water flows down one side to the Gulf of Mexico, and down the other side to the Atlantic, was Indian country.

YOU GO through Pendleton, where "Printer John Miller," driven out of England for helping to print the letters of Junius, published the Pendleton Messenger in 1818.

Also, and the government at Washington should make a note of it, there once lived in Pendleton Charles Pinckney, who remarked:

We have changed that to read:

And you always ask a friend "how are you coming on," although you may have seen him an hour earlier. They don't ask, as the North does, often, "How's tricks?"

PINCKNEY'S HOUSE is in ruins. One should rebuild it, and write across the front in big letters his famous remark. Some Congressman might see it.

Here also lived James L. Orr, member of Congress from 1849 to 1859, speaker, 1857-59, who signed the ordinance of secession in 1861. Everybody here thinks he was right, and nearly everybody is glad secession did not win.

You pass the farm of Samuel Maverick, whose name came to mean a calf, not branded. And in the square of Pendleton you see the house where the Pendleton Farmers Society was established in 1850, first of its kind in America.

A MOST interesting historical spot is Pendleton. There in 1876 the "red shirts" were organized to drive out "Republican misrule in South Carolina."

Before Mussolini wore a black shirt or Hitler a brown one, boys and men of South Carolina, from ten to eighty years of age, rode on horses, all wearing red

TEN YEARS' PEACE SEEN BY DUCE

Mussolini Believes Polish-German Pact Blocks War

Editor's Note—"I think now that peace will be kept in Europe for at least 10 years," Premier Mussolini tells H. R. Knickerbocker.

In the thirteenth article of his series "Will War Come," Knickerbocker gives the views of Il Duce on all of the problems besetting the peace of Europe today.

The Polish-German non-aggression pact has settled the troublesome Polish Corridor matter for at least 10 years, Mussolini believes.

"We can take the pact at its face value," he tells Knickerbocker. "They will keep it."

"And what of Austria," Knickerbocker asks?

POLICE RADIO REPAIR JOBS UNDER FIRE

Cheating Charged In Replacement Of Equipment

Charges that unnecessary replacements were made in police radio equipment were laid before Controller James P. Kerr today at a hearing on the award of a contract for the 1934 radio maintenance.

Two former employes of the Barton Auto Radio Corporation, which held the contract for 1933, made affidavit that the Barton concern required replacement of parts where replacement was not necessary.

The contract provides for a flat charge for upkeep of the equipment and an additional charge for replacements. The 1933 records show the service cost the city $7,583.

BIDDER PROTESTS

The contract for 1934, providing for a charge of $200 a month for service work and a charge for parts of 10 per cent over the list price, has been awarded to the Barton Auto Radio Corporation, but Controller Kerr withheld his signature after an unsuccessful bidder protested.

The protest was made by E. C. Williams, of the Aircraft Radio Products Company. Through counsel, Williams presented affidavits of J. S. Steel, Jr., and William Lowry, former Barton employes.

SAYS HE WAS 'FIRED'

Steel affirmed that he was employed as a service man to repair the police radios and said he was discharged because, among other reasons, he did not make unnecessary replacement of parts desired by his employers.

Steel said R. P. Barton, who was sales manager of the corporation, now is employed by the city as magistrate's celrk at No. 5 Police Station. He said a brother of R. P. Barton is a patrolman on the city police force and actively engaged in the business of the Barton Auto Radio Corporation.

REED SCORES ACTION ON AIR MAIL

Bitter Debate Over Cancellation Flares In Senate

With Army planes snowbound generally, developments today in the raging air mail controversy were these:

1—Bitter debate in the Senate brought charges from Robinson, Indiana, that President Roosevelt had "sent Army pilots to their death," and an assertion by Reed, Pennsylvania, that investigation had brought no criticism against 31 of 34 canceled contracts.

2—Clifford Ball, former Pittsburgh - Cleveland route operator, told Senate probers that former Postmaster General Brown had forced him to sell out to Pittsburgh Aviation Industries, Inc.

3—The administration indicated it would hasten legislation to return the air mail to private companies.

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—Another bitter debate over the government's cancellation of air mail contracts broke out in the Senate this afternoon.

Senator Robinson, (Rep.), of Indiana, precipitated the discussion by charging that President Roosevelt had "sent Army pilots to their death" in carrying the mail.

The air mail contracts were called "unlawful, dishonest, and corrupt," by Senator McKellar (Dem.), of Tennessee. He hotly defended the President's action.

Senator Reed (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, also criticized the President. He said the air mail inquiry

FRIGID WAVE TO FOLLOW 8-IN. FALL

Train Kills Railroader Blinded By Flakes; 3 Men Hurt

Death rode on the storm that covered Pittsburgh and environs with an eight-inch blanket of snow, the heaviest in seven years.

Fred W. Flauber, 45, of 405 Lexington avenue, Aspinwall, signal inspector of the Pennsylvania Railroad, was killed when, blinded by the snowstorm, he walked into the path of a West Penn Division passenger train near Sharpsburg.

Three state highway maintenance men were injured when their truck was demolished by a train at Glenshaw.

CWA AID BANNED

An army of 1,700 CWA workers, marshalled to aid the City Bureau of Highways in clearing the streets, was disbanded when CWA authorities at Harrisburg refused to permit the men to help dig the city out.

The snowfall measured 6 inches at 8 a. m. Late today Observer W. S. Brotzman estimated the fall at 8 inches. It was the heaviest since February 20, 1927, when 9.6 inches was recorded.

Trolley and automobile traffic was impeded, but all roads in the district were reported open.

NEAR-ZERO PREDICTED

Snow flurries were to continue tonight with a cold wave that was expected to drop the mercury to 5 above zero. Fair weather with slowly rising temperature was predicted for tomorrow.

Their vision obscured by a blinding snow, three State Highway Department men were caught at the Glenshaw crossing by a northbound Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh passenger train this morning.

AUSTRIA HINTS OTTO'S RETURN

VIENNA, Feb. 26.— (AP.)—Troops of the Fascist Heimwehr were marching to all sections of Austria today—and the increase of rumors was tremendous.

The most sensational of these rumors was that they were preparing to meet Archduke Otto, claimant to the Austrian throne, at the Swiss border and escort him triumphantly to Vienna.

Another, equally unsubstantiated, said 40,000 members of the Heimwehr were concentrating along the Austro-German border.

Both the Foreign Office and Heimwehr headquarters vigorously denied these tales. The Foreign Office stated there was no concentration of armed men on either side of the Austro-German border.

Chancellor Dollfuss, Vice Chancellor Emil Fey and Prince Ernst von Starhemberg, leader of the Heimwehr, reviewed a formal parade of 8,000 Fascist troops in Vienna today. There were no cheers.

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 26.—The movie industry today prepared to crown its kings and queens for 1933.

Nominations of awards of merit for the year were announced by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

Committees designated as the three actresses whose performances were outstanding Katharine Hepburn in "Morning Glory;" May Robson in "Lady for a Day," and Diana Wynyard in "Cavalcade."

Actors whose performances were voted the best were Leslie Howard in "Berkeley Square;" Charles Laughton in "The Private Life of Henry VIII," and Paul Muni in "I Am a Fugitive From a Chain Gang."

The academy as a whole will ballot on the committee's choices and the winners will be announced at the sixth annual banquet March 16, when "the Nobel prize of the movie industry" will be bestowed by Will Rogers, the comedian, on behalf of his fellow artists.

The nine were: "A Farewell to Arms"—Helen Hayes and Gary Cooper. "Cavalcade," "Forty-Second Street"—Warner Baxter, Ruby Keeler, Joan Blondell. "I Am a Fugitive From a Chain Gang," "Lady For a Day," "She Done Him Wrong"—Mae West. "Smilin' Through"—Norma Shearer. "State Fair"—Will Rogers, Janet Gaynor, Sally Eilers. "Private Life of Henry VIII."

The best original screen stories of 1933, as chosen by the nominating committee, were "One Way Passage," "The Prizefighter and the Lady," and "Rasputin and the Empress."

Parade Here Aimed At Austrian Fascists

A protest demonstration and parade against the Austrian Fascist Government for its treatment of workers, women and children will be held Saturday, it was announced yesterday at a conference by the Pittsburgh Committee of the American League Against War and Fascism meeting in the Irene Kaufmann Settlement. The parade will start 1:30 p. m. at Fifth avenue and Dinwiddie street and end at West Park, North Side.

British Duke Loses Lottery Appeal

LONDON, Feb. 26.—(AP.)—An attorney for the Duke of Atholl made an "unfortunate slip" in the established routine of filing legal papers and today a divisional court rejected the Duke's appeal from a £25 (about $125) fine.

The fine had been assessed against the Duke for contravention of England's lottery law after he conducted a drawing for charity last fall.

4 Killed by Fumes, Safe Flue Law Urged

Action by Council Planned to Halt Toll of Lives

With four deaths in Pittsburgh from carbon monoxide fumes and the Dartmouth College tragedy in mind, Council today prepared to take drastic action to reduce such accidents.

President of Council Robert Garland announced that, at the suggestion of Coroner W. J. McGregor, Council would be given an ordinance which calls for proper flues on gas stoves and other such devices which send off poisonous fumes.

Garland said that Coroner McGregor had last week written him of the lack of an ordinance covering defective stoves. He indicated that several recent deaths were due to this.

Th fourth victim in 24 hours died in a Wilkinsburg garage after police and physicians had tried for two hours to revive him. He was Paul J. Callahan, 28, of 436 Rebecca avenue, Wilkinsburg, a bridegroom of a few months.

He was in an armchair in the rear of his own car and that of Clarence Coleman.

In a house at 2331 Wright's way, South Side, Albert Augustait, 38, a roomer, and William Lobaitis, 40, of 2212 Lutz avenue, were found dead. The police reported finding a bottle of moonshine whisky in the room.

Fumes from gas stoves were blamed for these deaths.

Gas Death of Mate Shatters Bride's Dream of Home

They had been married just a few short months and they had many plans.

They were eager for their own home—an apartment. So she carried on with her job in Sewickley while he was working at a gas tion in Wilkinsburg.

Their furniture they were buying piece by piece for the apartment they planned to move into in May. Just last Saturday they bought the stove.

But today the vision of that cheerful apartment was a hideous nightmare to the young bride.

For the husband, Paul J. Callahan, 28, of 428 Rebecca avenue, Wilkinsburg, died in a Wilkinsburg garage after he had been overcome by carbon monoxide fumes.

5 MORE GUILTY IN VOTE FRAUD

Attorneys for the government today won their forty-second conviction for vote violations growing out of the 1932 general election when five members of a Fourth Ward election board were found guilty.

A Federal Court jury brought in the verdict after two hours' deliberation, following the charge at 11:30 a. m. by Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker.

Those convicted were James R. Shields, judge; James McTighe and Thomas A. Nordheim, inspectors, and Thomas Holleran and John J. Whalen, clerks, of Seventeenth District, Fourth Ward.

This was the tenth case brought by the government as a result of the 1932 general election, making a total of 42 convictions and eight acquittals.

James I. Marsh, first assistant United States district attorney, and Earl F. Reed, special government prosecutor, immediately proceeded with the eleventh case, involving the election board of the Second District, Third Ward.

Defendants are Dewey Budwey, judge; Richard Burgundy and John J. Juliana, inspectors; Michael Cuzza and Francis Haeck, clerks, and H. S. Mahfood, not a member of the board.

ROOSEVELT MESSAGE ASKS COMMUNICATIONS CONTROL

WIRE AND RADIO COMMISSION PROPOSED

Full Power for Study of Companies' Business Urged By President

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt, in a special message to Congress today, recommended creation of a federal communications commission to take authority over wires, cables and radio.

The President said:

"It is my thought that a new commission such as I suggest might well be organized this year by transferring the present authority for the control of communications of the Radio Commission and the Interstate Commerce Commission.

FULL POWER

"The new body should, in addition, be given full power to investigate and study the business of existing companies and make recommendations to the Congress for additional legislation at the next session."

The Senate and House Interstate Commerce committees have been studying this problem for several weeks and early action is expected by leaders.

To the Congress:

I have long felt that for the sake of clarity and effectiveness the relationship of the federal government to certain services known as utilities should be divided into three fields—transportation, power and communication.

The problems of transportation are vested in the Interstate Commerce Commission, and the problems of power, its development, transmission and distribution, in the Federal Power Commission.

In the field of communication, however, there is today no single government agency charged with broad authority.

AUTHORITY VESTED

The Congress has vested certain authority over certain parts of communication in the Interstate Commerce Commission and there is, in addition, the agency known as the Federal Radio Commission.

I recommend that the Congress create a new agency to be known as the Federal Communications Commission, such agency to be vested with the authority now lying in the Federal Radio Commission and with such authority over communications as now lies with the Interstate Commerce Commission—the services affected to be all of those which rely on wires, cables or radio as a medium of transmission.

It is my thought that a new commission such as I suggest might well be organized this year by transferring the present authority for the control of communications and the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The new body should, in addition, be given full power to investigate and study the business of existing companies and make recommendations to the Congress for additional legislation at the next session.

SECRET 'CHANGE DATA ASKED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26—(AP.)—The closely guarded financial balance sheet of the New York Stock Exchange was called for today by the Senate investigators.

Royland Redmond, counsel for the exchange, agreed to produce the statement tomorrow at the request of Ferdinand Pecora, counsel for the Senate Banking Committee.

He protested, however, that the exchange's financial report had "never been publicly disclosed."

Pecora had questioned George U. Harris, a member of the governing committee, about the last financial report, but had obtained no information about it except that it showed a deficit.

Previously Harris said a letter sent by Richard Whitney, exchange president, was not an attempt to "line up opposition" to the bill but to state "the facts, as seen by the exchange."

PINCHOT OUT FOR SENATE

Roosevelt in a recovery program, charging Reed was "snarling and snapping" at the President.

The Governor's announcement ended weeks of speculation as to his political plans, during which there had been much discussion as to whether his health would permit him to be a candidate. Shortly before he issued today's statement Mrs. Pinchot said the Governor was improving rapidly.

Reed, while having made no formal announcement, is a certain candidate. His petitions are in circulation, and the Governor's will be started today. Today's action by the Governor was an answer to many of his friends who have been insistent he declare himself early, to remove doubt as to his condition.

SUPPORTERS PERTURBED

They have been perturbed at the progress made by Senator Reed while the Governor's plans remained speculative.

In his statement the Governor said:

"Reed as Senator has run the errands and taken the orders of Mellon, the international bankers and the steel interests long enough. He should be replaced by a man who will take his orders only from the people. In this crisis, Republican Pennsylvania requires and deserves in Reed's place a Republican Senator who will work with the President to restore prosperity, instead of snarling and snapping at his heels."

Pinchot is expected to support Attorney General William A. Schnader as a candidate for Governor, though his statement today was silent on that point.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—(AP.)—Senator David A. Reed (Rep.), Pennsylvania, declined today to comment "at present" on the announcement of Gov. Pinchot of Pennsylvania he would be a candidate for the United States Senate in opposition to Reed.

SCAN HOLDINGS OF SCHENLEYS

John C. Rose, author and single tax proponent, was making a survey of ownership of downtown property today, principally, it was understood to determine how much property is owned by the Schenley estate.

Out of nearly 700,000 persons residing in the city of Pittsburgh, Mr. Rose declared, only 100,000 persons were landowners. Approximately 500 persons, he declared, own only 20 per cent of all the property in the Golden Triangle. He implied that the remaining 80 per cent was owned by groups like the Schenleys.

Mr. Rose denied he was making the survey for Mayor Mcair.

W. F. Berger, deputy register of wills, however, said Rose introduced himself as representing the Mayor when he applied for certain records in the office.

CATHEDRAL JOB MAY HALT

Philip Lantz, Deputy CWA Administrator in Allegheny County, announced today that work on enclosing the lower floors of the Cathedral of Learning will cease tomorrow unless a last minute appropriation for continuing the work is forthcoming.

More than 500 men were laid off at the Cathedral last week, due to the low funds available for the work.

Additional funds from Eric H. Biddle, State CWA Administrator, are being sought by officials of the University of Pittsburgh for the Cathedral, but thus far they have been unsuccessful.

Lantz, who is directing work of the CWA here in the absence of James L. Stuart, said today that 639 projects costing the CWA $6,229,093 have been approved for Allegheny County. As soon as money for them is available 42,000 men will be given employment.

CHINESE HELD IN DOPE RAIDS

Eleven Chinese were turned over to government authorities today to face charges of violating the narcotic laws.

City Detectives Walter Monaghan and William Egan took Joe Pheck Quong, of 536 Second avenue, into custody at a Liberty avenue bus station yesterday. They said Joe was preparing to send quantities of opium to West Virginia and Ohio in laundry bags.

Later, detectives raided an establishment at 436 Second avenue, operated by Yee Wing Zin. Zin and five others were arrested. Detectives said they were smoking opium.

Detectives arrested Yee Dick, of 130 Fourth avenue, and two others in his place, who, police said, were cooking opium.

Magistrate Jones Battles Pneumonia

Jones, the only holdover magistrate from the Republican administration, became ill last Tuesday. He is Republican chairman of the Eighteenth Ward and was Morals Court magistrate during the Kline and Herron administrations.

M'NAIR SLATES POLICE, FIRE SHAKEUP

Shifts Expected to Affect 400 Men in Both Bureaus

A sweeping reorganization of the police and fire bureaus had been decided upon today by Mayor McNair and his police safety department advisers.

After City Council closes the 1934 budget Wednesday, the ax will begin falling in both bureaus. Scores are slated for dismissal or demotion. Between 20 and 25 city detectives will be dropped, police lieutenants and sergeants as well as district fire chiefs and captains will be involved and many forced to retire on pensions, according to reports at City Hall.

The list was made up yesterday at an eight-hour conference of Public Safety Director Ralph E. Smith, Police Supt. Ben R. Marshall and Inspector of Detectives Frank R. Boyd, it was learned.

Democrats are to be given favored places as McNair seeks to heed clamorings of his followers for places on the payroll. Independents and Republicans will get some jobs, it was indicated.

Friends of Fire Chief Richard L. Smith and businessmen are making a battle to save him, but those close to McNair predict that John Heinz, fireman-Democrat who waged an unsuccessful fight for Sheriff, will be named in Smith's place.

Seven inspectors, including Boyd and Traffic Inspector Jacob Dorsey, will be named to take the place of 14 police captains.

Ousted detectives, many of whom were named without having had police experience, will be replaced by men from the ranks. The detectives are not under civil service.

Altogether 400 men are expected to be affected in one way or another by the shakeup.

U. S. Must Meet Europe's 'War by Intrigue' With Preparedness, Says R. W. Child

By RICHARD WASHBURN CHILD

Noted Author, and United States Ambassador to Italy Under Two Administrations

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—The news from other nations gives Washington anything but confidence.

One day, the White House receives disquieting reports from the Far East; next day, from the heart of the European continent.

Well interpreted, this news discloses not only the menace of old-fashioned war, openly declared, but the new kind—"inside war."

The new warfare is the warfare of intrigue, of conspiracy, of propaganda, of inspired assassination and of secret agents of distruction.

Someone has called this new warfare "war of sabotage."

Kill the ruler and create a stir. Inflame the mob and wreck your neighbors' peace. Pervert opinion and destroy another nation's solidarity.

If the day has come when it costs too much to carry on prolonged warfare of the old kind, then save expense by the cheaper method of the new warfare—by "inside" war.

THE SITUATION of national governments in many places invites the new style of war.

Democracy or dictatorship, nationalism or internationalism, are opposing forces which teeter today on a fine edge. Small indeed is the push needed to plunge nations into disorder from within.

Political parties which overturn programs are financed today by money coming from beyond the borders of the nations whose destinies such political parties deal with.

It takes no great statesman to see that this new warfare evades all the pacts, parchments and papers outlawing war, or even those which create military alliances under the mask of non-aggresion treaties.

WHAT WE Americans should see and mark on our minds is that the most valuable thing we have is our DETACHMENT not only from any new outbreak of old-fashioned war, but from the loathsome intrigue of war from the "inside."

Very general is the propaganda of this kind—"war will come and the United States will surely be involved."

Why?

Why should we be involved? We were once, and who gained by it? What is this strange nightmare riding down common sense, which casts us in the role of madmen who must fly forward into conflicts which madmen carry on?

Such, however, is the propaganda of those who wish us all the evil in the world.

In the face of this bath of nonsense, this barrage of cajolery and this hectic state of the world there are three things for us to do.

Weather Conditions.

The low that was centered over the southern Rocky Mountain states Saturday morning was centered over the Eastern Texas and the Lower Mississippi Valley yesterday morning, and this morning it is centered over the Middle Atlantic Coast. It produced heavy rainfall over the southern states yesterday and last night, and light to heavy snowfall over the northern states. There was a heavy fall of snow over the Ohio Valley and eastward to the Atlantic Coast. A high pressure area was centered over Saskatchewan yesterday morning, and this morning it is centered over the Central Plains, and covers the entire country from the Rocky Mountains to the Appalachian Mountains. It is attended by cold weather, with below zero temperatures as far south as Southern Kansas. In the Canadian Northwest temperatures are now rising as a result of a low over the North Pacific Coast.

River Conditions.

The rivers are frozen over everywhere in the Pittsburgh river district, and the ground is now covered with snow from 6 to 8 inches deep. The rivers are at low stages, due to the protracted period of cold weather. Ohio River Dams Nos. 4, 5, 6 and 10 are up, but it is expected that Nos. 5 and 6 will be lowered today. Herrs Island Dam, also, is up. There is no indication of a change in the ice conditions for the next several days.

ROOSEVELT TO AID CITIES

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—President Roosevelt is planning to submit to Congress a recommendation for federal relief of municipalities now heavily in debt, the Senate Judiciary Committee was informed today after a subcommittee reported against a municipal bankruptcy bill.

The advice from the White House caused the full committee to delay action on the bankruptcy bill. The subcommittee voted 4 to 1 against the bill, which would have permitted cities to go through bankruptcy in order to reduce their bonded indebtedness.

PLANES BALKED BY SNOW HERE

Flights to and from Pittsburgh were canceled last night when heavy snow blanketed the East and reduced visibility to nothing. Furious storms raged in the mountains and the last flight over them was made yesterday morning.

Commercial operations also were at a standstill. Doubt was expressed that there would be any improvement in conditions during the day.

The Associated Press reported the weather halted all flights at Newark, Baltimore, Cleveland and Chicago. Service at Kansas City was "uncertain."

Kelly to Speak On Air Mail Status

Status of the air mail will be discussed by Congressman Clyde Kelly, chairman of the Postal Committee, at a meteing of the Pittsburgh Advertising Club in the Hotel William Penn at noon tomorrow. His subject, "Washington on Parade," will include discussion of the NRA codes, price fixing and other subjects.

Bitter Debate Over Cancellation Flares In Senate

to date had not brought out a single word of criticism against 31 of the 34 contracts cancelled.

Senator Dickinson (Rep.), of Iowa, declared the contracts contained clauses authorizing the government to "decrease or revise the rates" in event any were found excessive.

Robinson declared:

"There is no defense for the President's action in cancelling the contracts. There is even less defense for sending Army pilots to death.

"There was no national emergency. There was no reason for him to do it. He was doing an unfair thing—not even following the American tradition of giving a man his day in court—in order to send these men to their death."

Forced Out of Air Line Clifford Ball Testifies

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—(AP.)—Clifford Ball, former operator of an air line from Pittsburgh to Cleveland, told Senate investigators today he virtually was forced to sell out to Pittsburgh Aviation Industries, Inc., in 1931 to obtain extension of an air mail contract.

Denying recent testimony of Walter F. Brown, former Postmaster General, that he had been guilty of promoting air mail to increase his government payments, Ball asserted the same accusation had been circulated in 1930 by Pittsburgh Aviation Industries officers.

He called it "a portion of a well-planned scheme to defame my character and ruin my reputation" in order to take away his mail contract.

NAMES OFFICERS

The story, he said, was circulated by George B. Hann and Richard W. Robbins, Pittsburgh Aviation Industries officers.

Ball explained his alleged promotion of air mail consisted of paying part of the postage on a house organ circulated by a business concern, in return for which the concern advertised the advantages of air mail.

He said the Postoffice Department had fined him $5,000 and withheld $12,000 payments due him until he sold out.

"We are here to get our share of the air mail dollar. We have influence with Senator Reed, we have influence with two cabinet officers and we will go to the White House if necessary."

CITES STATEMENT

Ball testified that Earl B. Wadsworth, former postoffice official, told him that if Ball did not agree to sell out, he could turn his mail contract over to Transcontinental and Western Air. Ball added:

"He said I'd better get together with Pittsburgh Aviation Industries."

The total paid Ball for his line, he said, was $137,500 plus approximately $30,000 salary.

He insisted, however, that a "hard bargain" had been driven with him.

Speedy Return of Mail To Air Lines Indicated

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—(AP.)—The Roosevelt administration indicated today that it would hasten to present to Congress a bill giving the air mail back to private companies. The measure is expected before the week is out.

Chairman Mead told reporters today the House postoffice committee favored amendment of the present law to permit aviation companies whose airmail contracts have been canceled to bid for new contracts.

Representative McLeod (Rep.), of Michigan, planned to introduce today a resolution for a congressional investigation to find out if Army planes are suitable to carry mail along the skyways.

A grand jury opened its third week of inquiry into Army motorization and other contracts. Harry H. Woodring, Assistant Secretary of War, was requested to testify, as were Ralph T. O'Neil, former commander of the American Legion, and Robert W. Lyons, New

Coughlin Favors Bonus For Veterans at Once

DETROIT, Feb. 26.—(AP.)—The Rev. Charles E. Coughlin in a speech yesterday called upon World War veterans to demand nationalization of credit as the basis of immediate payment of the balance of their adjusted compensation certificates.

Father Coughlin said he was in favor of immediate payment of the so-called soldier bonus, but not with "bankers' money." He asked:

"Why should we help restore a bankers' prosperity? Why should we borrow more money to pay this just debt?"

The speech was broadcast over a special radio network.

Addressing himself at one point directly to war veterans, Father Coughlin said:

"Soldiers, you didn't fight in vain to save the world from democracy. I do not mean the political democracy of which so much has been heard, but the financial democracy which now has the kings and princes of finance whining for mercy."

The priest urged the veterans to raise their voices in "one more battle" for what he called nationalized credit money. He said:

"Get this and the bonus will follow."

The nationalization of credit which the priest advocated would be based, he said, upon "the $400,000,000,000 real wealth of the nation" and not upon gold. The credit, he said, would be administered "for the prosperity of all."

Without this nationalization of credit, the priest said, the number of unemployed will rise "from 13,000,000 this year to 20,000,000 next year."

RELIEF BOARD PROBE OPENS

Investigators under Douglas P. Falconer, secretary of the Bureau of Charities, Brooklyn, N. Y., today were to begin a probe of the Allegheny County Relief Board, ordered last December by the Legislature to determine "if the affairs of the board are administered economically, and whether orders are being distributed only to those in need."

Falconer arrived in Pittsburgh Saturday and began assembling his staff of clerks and accountants. Later he went to Harrisburg to confer with Eric H. Biddle, director of the State Relief Board. He will return to Pittsburgh Thursday.

Falconer was named three weeks ago to supervise the investigation that was prompted by allegations of waste in the distribution of clothing, fuel and other necessities.

Business Leaders' Huge Salaries Revealed

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—The Federal Trade Commission today transmitted to the Senate a report showing executive salary schedules of corporations engaged in interstate commerce. The report dealt with corporations, other than public utility concerns, having capital or assets of more than $1,000,000 whose securities are listed on the New York stock or curb exchange.

G. W. Hill, president of the American Tobacco Company, received a total cash compensation of $605,613 in 1929, $1,014,567 in 1930, and $120,000 in 1933.

E. G. Grace, president and director of Bethlehem Steel, received $1,635,753 in 1929, $1,027,591 in 1930, and $180,000 in 1933.

Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the board, received $150,000 in 1929, $250,000 in 1930, and the same amount in 1933.

R. L. Patterson, president of American Machine and Foundry Company, received $270,980 in 1929, $249,183 in 1930 tnd $40,000 in 1933.

S. Guggenheim, as president of the American Smelting and Refining Company, received $50,000 in 1929 and 1930 and $40,500 in 1933.

As president of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company, Harvey S. Firestone received $100,000 in 1929, $90,333 in 1930 and $71,280 in 1933.

CREW OF THREE, 5 PASSENGERS VICTIMS

Pretty Stewardess One Of Those on Board To Die in Gale

By HARVEY HANCOCK
International News Service.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Feb. 26.—Storm, implacable foe of airmen, claimed a toll of eight more lives today as the rugged summit of Parley's Canyon, 20 miles east of Salt Lake, gave up the secret of the fate of the huge United Air Line transport, missing since last Friday.

Huddled into the front end of the all-metal airship were its five passengers and crew of three, all dead—killed instantly as the giant plane plunged with terrific force into the mountainside and buried its nose deep in the snow.

The bodies of all seven men were badly mangled. That of Mary Carter, beautiful 24-year-old stewardess, was intact.

The body of Co-Pilot Danielson is expected to be taken out later.

SIGHTED BY FLIERS

The ill-fated air liner was sighted at 5:21 Sunday afternoon by Pilot Don Broughton and Co-Pilot Creighton Geer, after a fruitless and hazardous air search of two days.

The dead:

ANDERSON, LLOYD, 32, pilot, Cheyenne, Wyo.

DANIELSON, ERIC G., 29, co-pilot, Cheyenne, Wyo.

ZINMASTER, MARCELLUS (MIKE), 58, Des Moines, Ia.

BERGLAND, W. B., 35, Boone, Ia.

McLAUGHLIN, BERT, Perry, Ia.

WALKER, E. L., Rock Springs, Wyo.

The wrist watch of Miss Carter and the position of the wrecked liner told the story of the ship's tragedy. The watch stopped at 2:35, thirty-five minutes after the plane roared out of the Salt Lake airport eastbound for Cheyenne. The nose of the ship was pointed west, indicating that Pilot Anderson was heading back for the airport here when he cracked up.

NOSED INTO PEAK

Experienced pilots explained that the plane probably plunged straight into the ground while making a bank. Bewildered by fog, they said, Pilot Anderson nosed the liner into the side of one of the highest peaks of the Wasatch mountains.

Three hours after the plane was spotted by air searchers, ground rescue crews were able to struggle through five feet of snow and rugged terrain to the scene of the tragedy.

Leon E. Cuddeback, assistant chief pilot of United Air Lines, made the following official statement:

"The ship struck the ground in a vertical position. The nose of the ship was imbedded in the snow, pushing the passengers to the front of the ship. The plane was wedged in between two trees and evidence shows it struck evenly along the edge of the wings.

"It is expected that Co-Pilot Danielson's body will be extracted later this morning, but the bodies of the other seven persons have been removed and were brought to Salt Lake. The bodies of the five passengers and stewardess were easy to extract, but considerable difficulty was encountered with the body of the pilot and co-pilot. The passengers were killed immediately on impact of the ship."

BATTLE SNOW

The ground rescue party fought desperately against great obstacles to remove the bodies from the summit holocaust, struggling foot by foot through the deep snow, aided by the light of flares.

The body of Miss Carter was the first to be removed.

Edgar A. Bering, Jr., a skier, and James Rasmussen, canyon storekeeper, were the first to reach the wrecked ship. They were attracted by Broughton's plane circling the area.

Within an hour roads leading to the scene of the crash were blocked by motorists and pedestrians bent upon securing souvenirs from the plane.

Overcoats of the victims were used as stretchers in carrying the bodies to a roadhouse, where they were loaded into ambulances and taken to Salt Lake City.

MARY CARTER

CRASH VICTIM SECRET BRIDE

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Feb. 26.—Tragedy that cost Mary Carter's life in an air liner crash during a Utah mountain storm brought to light today the secret marriage of the pretty 24-year-old stewardess and a Chicago hotel man.

Some time during the past year—friends don't know the exact date—Miss Carter became the wife of John Wheeler, 25, night manager of an apartment hotel on the near North Side.

The young couple had made no secret of their love, but they had not announced their marriage because of a United Airlines regulation that all stewardesses must be unmarried, friends say.

As hotel attaches and guests mourned the death of the popular young stewardess, concern was expressed about Wheeler, who received the news of the tragedy during the night and wandered away at dawn, dazed with grief.

He had not returned several hours later and none of his associates had heard from him. The blasting of his romance had left him stricken to the point of desperation, his friends said.

Miss Carter met Wheeler shortly after she became a stewardess. When they slipped away and became married the couple agreed that the bride would continue her flying only a short while. Then they would settle down.

BEAR IN MOVIE CLAWS TRAINER

Universal Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 26.—Unexpected realism in a motion picture jungle scene nearly cost the life yesterday of John Helliott, 50, animal trainer, when an enraged Himalayan bear turned upon his master and viciously clawed and bit him.

Helliott was savagely torn before studio employes were able to stop the attack of the animal. All of the calf muscles of Helliott's right leg were ripped away and his left leg and right arm were severely clawed.

Helliott, said to have worked with Clyde Beatty, world-famous animal trainer, in a score of perilous scenes, was the second victim of a wild animal on the same film set within the last 18 hours.

On Saturday night Alvin Wykoff, cameraman, was badly crushed and lacerated when a lion broke from an enclosure and attacked him.

Rescue of Dog Adrift On Ice Costs $250

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 26.—(AP.)—A small, black mongrel adrift on a cake of ice in the Deleware River cost Philadelphia $250 and a policeman got an icy bath—but the dog was rescued.

Someone saw the animal drifting near the mouth of Frankford Creek and asked the harbor patrol to save it. Four miles downstream the police boat Blankenburg with 17 men aboard started to the rescue, plowing its way through cakes of ice.

After an hour's run, the dog was sighted. Patrolman Edward Corliss leaped to the ice as the boat pulled alongside.

The dog snapped at him. Corliss dodged, lost his footing and plunged into the water. Throwing him a line, his comrades dragged Corliss abroad and Corliss dragged the dog.

The boat returned four miles to its pier. Time spent, fuel used, and other expenses, estimated by police to total $250, were chalked up "in line of duty."

If no one claims the dog "within reasonable time it will be "destroyed."

NINE STUDENTS' DEATHS LAID TO MISTAKE

Error in Tending of Furnace Blamed For Tragedy

HANOVER, N. H., Feb. 26.—(AP.)—A furnace tended by an unskilled hand was blamed today for the death of nine students, the worst tragedy in the history of Dartmouth College.

They were killed by carbon monoxide gas as they slept early yesterday in the Theta Chi fraternity house. An explosion apparently had disconnected a chimney pipe and the deadly fumes crept through the 16-room house.

President Ernest Martin Hopkins asked the grief-stricken undergraduates to "carry on" their activities in order not to heighten the effect of the accident. He issued a statement saying "the whole college sympathizes with the parents of those who died."

DOCTOR'S STATEMENT

A statement issued by Dr. R. E. Miller, medical referee, said:

"The position of the shaker arm and of the check draught lever indicated that the furnace had been fixed the night before by some one who was not entirely familiar with the furnace."

The dead were:

FULLERTON, WILLIAM S., 20, Cleveland Heights, O.

SMITH, WILLIAM M., Jr., 21, Manhasset, N. Y.

DE MASI, AMERICO S., 21, Little Neck, N. Y.

WATSON, HAROLD B., 21, Wilton, Me.

SCHOOLEY, WILMOT H., 21, Middletown, N. Y.

GRIFFIN, JOHN J., 19, Wallingford, Conn.

The fact that it was a weekend probably saved the lives of eight fraternity brothers who ordinarily occupy the house.

An incompleted investigation indicated that the students died as they slept. All were marked by the pink discoloration characteristic of carbon monoxide poisoning.

PIPE DISCONNECTED

The coal gas explosion apparently blew open the furnace doors and disconnected a chimney pipe. Someone heard the rumble, it was believed, and closed the furnace door without noticing the disconnected pipe.

Fraternity brothers who lived outside the house dropped in Saturday evening for a game of bridge. They played until about midnight, then left for their own quarters. The nine others went to bed.

Sunday morning, Janitor Merton Little fixed the fires. He smelled coal gas and adjusted the disconnected pipe. Then, he went to the rooms of the students and saw them apparently sleeping. They all were dead then, but it was not until Sunday afternoon that the deaths was discovered.

Janitor Little returned to find the youths still "asleep." It was long past lunch time and when he couldn't wake them he called help. Chief of Police Dennis J. Hallisey went to the fraternity house with Dr. John Boardman. They found the students in bed in various rooms, fully covered and lying as if asleep.

DR. WYNEKOOP OVERRULED

CHICAGO, Feb. 26.—(AP.)—An attempt by the defense to bar the "statement" by Mrs. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop that she shot Rheta Wynekoop after her daughter-in-law had succumbed to an overdose of chloroform was overruled today by Judge Harry B. Miller.

The defense, claiming that the statement was obtained under duress, moved that it be not admitted. Prosecutor Dougherty said:

"We contend that it is not a confession. It is purely an 'incriminatory statement, an exculpatory statement'."

He produced rulings to show that statements which merely incriminate a person accused of a crime, and which did not confess the crime, were admissible without regard to the manner in which they were obtained.

Defense Attorney W. W. Smith argued vehemently that the statement was a confession. He said:

"The defense at all times has treated this as a confession. If it were to be used merely as an incriminatory statement, we would not object."

Frozen Sawdust Pile Caves In, Kills Man

ALTOONA, Pa., Feb. 26.—(INS.)—Buried in one of winter's freak accidents, the body of Ross Walters, 60, of Akersville, today had been recovered from within the frozen sawdust pile which collapsed and carried him to his death. He had apparently been digging in the pile when the cone surface broke and engulfed him.

Flames Destroy Berwick Theater

BERWICK, Feb. 26.—(AP.)—Five persons, clad only in night clothing, fled into a snowstorm as fire destroyed the Palace Theater Building early today.

Loss was estimated at $30,000, of which $18,000 was in theater equipment.

SOLES RETURNS TO DESK; TRIAL COST $2,696

Acquitted Man Hopes To Forget, Resumes Business Career

Robert S. Soles acquitted of a murder charge, was back at his desk in McKeesport today and in the Courthouse clerks were itemizing the cost of his 11-day trial.

The total cost was $2,696. The jurors received $900 in pay. Their food bill, with tipstaves, was $531. State witnesses received, with mileage, $854. Other items were running expenses.

WILL TRY TO FORGET

Soles said he would try to push thoughts of his five months in jail and the harrowing moments of the trial from his mind by returning to his real estate business. He added:

"I have no intention of loafing. I've got too much to do after being so long away from my office."

PLANS TRIP

The mail, the telephone and the telegraph brought messages congratulating him upon his acquittal of the charge of killing his wife, La Roux.

He said last night that business would take him away for a few days.

CHURCH BLAZE ROUTS FIREMEN

A two-alarm fire damaged the Fourth United Presbyterian Church, Arch street and West Montgomery avenue, North Side, last night.

Several firemen escaped injury by running from the building when a section of the second floor collapsed.

The deputy fire chief estimated the damage at $2,500. He said the fire was caused by an overheated pipe.

The blaze started on the second floor, where the main auditorium is located. A pipe leading from the furnace was burning where the insulation had fallen off, firemen said.

The fire was discovered by J. H. Arnold, Negro janitor, who turned in the alarm. North Side firemen, fearing they could not get the blaze under control, sounded the second alarm.

The Rev. Chalmers G. Morrow, pastor, has been ill in his home for three months.

PLEA TO SAVE LAMSON READY

International News Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 26.—In an effort to obtain a new trial for David A. Lamson, 32-year-old Stanford University graduate under sentence to hang for the murder of his wife, Allene, attorneys for the condemned man were to file in Supreme Court here today a 250,000-word brief on his appeal.

Lamson was convicted on the murder charge and now is in "death row" at San Quentin Prison. He is confident his appeal will win him freedom.

Lamson was sentenced to be hanged last December 15, but notice of his appeal automatically stayed the execution date.

Mrs. Lamson's body was found in the bathtub of her Stanford campus home last Memorial Day. The defense contended she was killed when she fell and struck her head on the tub.

TORNADOES KILL 16 IN SOUTH

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Feb. 26.—(AP.)—Tornadoes, striking suddenly on Sunday, left 16 dead in three southern states, scores injured and heavy property loss.

Storms late yesterday extended from Louisiana to North Carolina, with Mississippi reporting 10 dead, Alabama three, Georgia two and Louisiana one.

Alabama's toll was placed at 14 in earlier reports, but a recheck brought the number to three.

Vision of Castle Gone, Girl, 14, Held for Juvenile Court

A 14-year-old girl, Helen Grosky, of 16 Union street, Etna, who pictured hreself in a castle in Mexico, was turned over to Juvenile Court today by Magistrate Howard B. McNutt in Morals Court.

Her companion, Ascension Cacillas, 26, a Mexican, of 15 Union street, Etna, with whom she "eloped" a week ago, was turned over to county detectives.

Helen told detectives she had expected to make her home in a rich Mexican castle.

They were taken into custody last night in a Buffalo-bound bus in a downtown terminal by city detectives.

To the questions of detectives, they both replied that they "loved each other" and that it was their intention to marry in Buffalo. They said they had been living in Aliquippa since their disappearance.

They didn't have any luggage. Cacillas had in his pockets two round-trip tickets for the Buffalo trip and $13.90.

Parents of the Grosky girl enlisted the aid of police when she disappeared from her home, 16 Union street, Etna.

SERIOUSLY HURT

They were taken to St. Francis Hospital. One of the three, Philip Blackburn, 30, of Allison Park, was reported in a critical condition.

The others were Henry (Heine) Hart, 45, of Gibsonia, and William Hilliard, 24, of Etna.

The engineer was reported to have applied the brakes, but too late to avoid a collision. A campaign for a signal light at the crossing had been waged for six months, residents said.

STREETS CLEARED

Meanwhile employes of the highways bureau bore the brunt of snow removal all during the night and today. They were concentrated in clearing downtown crossings. The Pittsburgh Railways Company had 31 snow plows and sweepers clearing the tracks. A large force of switchmen was pressed into service to put salt in the switches.

The State Highway Department had 400 men cindering heavy grades and clearing away snow in the four counties of this division, Allegheny, Beaver, Lawrence and Westmoreland. All roads were open, but slippery in places as ice underlaid the snow.

A serious ice menace was seen by Observer Brotzman if rain should follow the heavy snow. Both the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers are gorged with heavy ice at headwaters. A rapid rise would fill both streams with dangerous floes, he said.

BLIZZARD RAGES IN EAST, 6 DEAD

Associated Press.

A blizzard swirling over the United States from Indiana east to the Atlantic Coast today buried almost a quarter of the country under a blanket of snow.

Six deaths were attributed to the blizzard, which had added an average of five inches to the old snow in the Northeast section, and bade fair to add two inches more before it abates tonight.

Fatalities from the storm included an engineer who died in a train wrecked by a snowbank in Mapleton, Me.

The storm, which had its origin in Northern Texas, moved eastward, leaving the area west of the Mississippi almost snowfree today.

A high pressure area, with attending clear skies, was succeeding the storm today. Weather bureau officials said the snowfall will end tonight, but not until it has almost equaled the 9.2 inches of the preceding snow.

8 Families Routed In Cold By Blaze

TYRONE, Pa., Feb. 26.—(INS.)—Eight families were made homeless in sub-zero cold and a 16-inch bed of snow when a $25,000 fire destroyed an entire block on Twenty-first street here today.

Flames originatng from a defective flue in the Stonebraker block, swept the building occupied by the families and a large grocery store owned and conducted by Clinton Abrams.

Woman Injured In Fall in Snow

Mary Pudul, 34, of 29 Welsh way, suffered an injured elbow when she slipped and fell in the snow at Fifth avenue and Smithfield street last night, police reported. She was treated at Allegheny General Hospital.

RUSHMORE PLAN PRAISED FOR PATRIOTISM

Gouverneur Morris, author and great-grandson of one of the drafters of the American Constitution, yesterday acclaimed the competition of the Hearst newspapers to obtain the text of the permanent inscription for the Mount Rushmore National Memorial.

Rear Admiral Bradley Allen Fiske, retired, writer on naval subjects and inventor of the electric range finder and the wireless control of vessels, also commend it as a patriotic undertaking of outstanding worth.

Inaugurated on Washington's birthday, the idea of the competition evoked the widest interest in every community where the Hearst newspapers circulate.

CARVINGS BEGUN

Gutzon Borglum, famous sculptor, has done the preliminary work on his Mount Rushmore Memorial in the Black Hills region of South Dakota.

On one side of the mountain he has started to carve heroic figures of George Washington, Abraham Lincoln and Thomas Jefferson, and Theodore Roosevelt.

The other side of the mountain is a rugged surface. In this, on a space, more than 100 by 120 feet, he will engrave in letters 13 feet high 600 words of inscription. The texts will epitomize nine outstanding events in American history.

As outlined by the Mount Rushmore National Memorial Commission headed by Fred W. Sargent, of Chicago, these events will include the writing of the Declaration of Independence and the drafting of the Constitution.

The purchase of Louisiana and the ceding of the Floridas to the United States will also be recorded. Other motifs for the inscriptions will be the rise of the republic of Texas and its entry to the union as a state; the Mexican War and the acquisition of California; the settlement of the Oregon boundary dispute; the Alaska purchase, and the building of the Panama Canal.

NEWSPAPERS SPONSORS

It is these happenings that will be treated in the inscriptions to be submitted in the competition sponsored by the Hearst newspapers.

The plan calls for the naming of a national committe to pass final judgment on the text after local committees do the preliminary work of elimination.

Leading American authors, poets, historians and public men are being invited to serve on the committees.

Cash and scholarship prizes will be offered in addition to the distinction of having the winning text considered for the inscription to be perpetuated in the granite of the Rushmore National Memorial.

There will also be gold, silver and bronze medals designed by Mr. Borglum as well as certificates of merit for contestants.

The Hearst newspapers are carrying news of the contest daily, and full details of the prizes, rules and other information regarding the undertaking will be published in the Sun-Telegraph on Sunday, March 4.

How Great Monument Dwarfs Men

Contest Will Spread Knowledge of History

Authors, Navy Leader Indorse Rushmore Text Program

By GOUVERNEUR MORRIS

Thousands of Americans will have a deeper knowledge of the story of their country and a better appreciation of its greatness as a nation after they have written their ideas for an inscription on the Mount Rushmore National Memorial.

Even the mere outline of the events to be covered in the 600 words is an inspiration, evoking glorious memories of the past. The thought and study that will be preludes to the actual writing of the inscription will be good for the men and women who may be inclined to accept too easily the benefits and privileges of American citizenship. Often we need reminders of the debt we owe to those who have gone before.

Especially in these days, when some of us are prone to discouragement, it will be an uplifting task to look back over our country's history and remember what has been achieved by men who in time faced difficulty and depression.

The inscription for such a memorial should truly represent the heart and soul of a nation. There is no better way to find it than to have it come from the American people themselves.

Fiske Hails Stimulus To Study of U. S. Heritage

By BRADLEY ALLEN FISKE
Author and Rear Admiral, United States Navy, Retired

American history is taken for granted by too many of our citizens who are profoundly ignorant of events to which we owe our perpetuation as a nation.

Any project that will send us back to examination of the causes underlying our genesis and development should enlist the interest of Americans everywhere.

The heritage of liberty left by the fathers of the republic and the men who cemented it after them is one of the most impressive human achievements.

The movement to quicken interest in it through the medium of an inscription for the Mount Rushmore National Memorial should be encouraged by our men of affairs as well as by our writers and historians.

The flame of patriotism deserves to be fed.

Important to Preserve Record of Great Deeds

By CHARLES G. NORRIS

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 26.—Nothing would seem to me more appropriate than to cut into the rock of Mount Rushmore an inspiring sentiment of the record of a great accomplishment by one of the founders and moulders of our American nation.

While it is a noble thought to make their likeness endure for the contemplation of posterity, it is equally important that their records be imperishable. It is the beauty the Greeks captured in stone and marble which has, in part, told us of the greatness of their race.

It is not only the physiognomy of Euripides and Sophocles and Praxiteles which impresses, but the work of the hands and mind. Surely it is because of the great thought which our poets have captured in verse, the keen observances of our philosophers and inspiring prose of our novelists and biographers that we remember them.

Is it not equally true of patriots who have accomplished great things? Should not what they DID be equally is significant to future generations as how they looked?

There is no sculptor alive who measures up, in my opinion, to Gutzon Borglum, or is capable of his large conceptions and therefore, no one is better fitted to engrave in the enduring rock the faces and deeds of our great Americans that they may prove to be inspirations for future civilizations.

SAFETY FIGURES TELL WORK GAIN

The extent of business improvement in the Pittsburgh district in 1933 was shown in a report from the sixth Inter-Plant Safety Contest sponsors by the Western Pennsylvania Safety Council from July 1 to December 31. The report was made public by George E. Clarkson, manager.

It showed that 54 out of a total of 168 plants competing worked without a lost-time accident. Improper handling of materials and injuries from falling objects were given as the principal causes for 848 accidents.

The 168 plants employed 78,000 persons, who worked 75 million hours. In the preceding contest, the first half of the year, 170 plants employed 68,000 persons who worked 60 million hours.

Engineers to Fete 1,000 at Banquet

More than 1,000 guests are expected to attend the annual banquet of the Engineer's Society of Western Pennsylvania in the William Penn Hotel tomorrow night. Ernest T. Weir, chairman of the National Steel Corporation, will be the principal speaker, and Walter B. Spelimire, past president of the society, will be toastmaster.

Here's quick relief!

It's much easier to relieve a dull head than to try to fight against it. And it's so pleasant, too, if you take a Bromo-Seltzer.

Bromo-Seltzer is a balanced compound of 5 medicinal ingredients. It brings results no mere pain-killer can give you. Relieves pain before you know it . . . clears the head . . . braces you . . . leaves you feeling refreshed and keen.

Quick and dependable. As it dissolves, it effervesces. That's why it relieves gas on the stomach so effectively. You take it as a liquid so it works faster. Get a familiar blue bottle for your home medicine cabinet. Another for the office. Relieves headaches, neuralgia, or other pains of nerve origin. Insist on the one and only "Emerson's" Bromo-Seltzer, known and used for over 40 years.

FEDERAL RULE OF SCHOOLS OPPOSED

By S. CARLYLE ADAMS
International News Service.

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 26.—Warning to guard against government dictatorship of schools was sounded today as nearly 10,000 teachers met here for the opening business session of the annual convention of the department of superintendence of the National Education Association.

It was almost a foregone conclusion that the delegates would pass resolutions requesting an immediate 100 million-dollar appropriation from Congress for financially-weak schools for the current 1933-1934 school year and additional appropriations of 300 million dollars for the 1934-1935 semesters.

WARNS MEETING

Carroll R. Reed, head of the Minneapolis schools, asserted that "federal aid of some sort is inevitable." He added:

"But when we get it we should be very careful to see that there are not too many strings attached to it."

President William Lowe Bryan, of Indiana University, cautioned the schoolmen assembled here that democracy also would spell the doom of liberty in education and other walks of life. He declared:

"Our greatest need at this hour is for a few men like Washington who would be willing to refuse crowns and to face tyrants on one hand and mobs on the other that liberty and freedom may be preserved."

CITES FLAWS

Harold C. Campbell, New York City's new superintendent of schools, added his voice to the opinion generally held by the other leaders that there have been and still are some serious flaws in the educational system. He commented:

"The gods of business and finance had a queer code of ethics and very little knowledge of economic laws or social problems. What is of most concern to us is that most of these men who failed so miserably were the products of our educational system. Either we failed to teach them the proper way to live or else they have deliberately ignored their lessons."

URGES CHANGES

Dr. George F. Zook, United States commissioner of education and former head of Akron (O.) University, agreed with Supt. Campbell and declared it to be a popularly accepted fact today that schools are not sufficiently in contact with the realities of life. He said:

"The result of this is that each year a large number of boys and girls, young men and young women, leave schools and colleges quite inadequately prepared for the life in the midst of which they are thrown.

"I do not believe that it is possible to recapture the confidence of the adult population of this country so that they can be convinced that the school is adapting itself to the needs of the new era. We must undergo a radical change in policy and make the school of the future for men and women as well as for boys and girls."

Dr. Paul C. Stetson, superintendent of schools in Indianapolis, is president of the convention and is one of the youngest men to hold that position. He called for his fellow school administrators to "go to school for the five days of the conference" to study the problems which confront them.

MARLEY TALK PROTESTED

Use of a public school for the address of Lord Marley, who assailed Nazi Germany here Friday night, was protested today by the Allegheny County Branch of the German American Federation.

The protest was directed to the Board of Education in connection with the use of Taylor Allderdice High School for what was described as "propaganda purposes." Lord Marley, chairman of the international committee for relief of victims of German Fascism, was described as "a foreign propagandist" who advised a boycott of German goods.

A resolution adopted at a meeting of the executive board of the German American Federation at the Koerner Maennerchor Hall, North Side, yesterday said is has been evident that "systematic anti-German propaganda is being waged in this country."

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at drug stores. ©1931 C. M. Co.

Taxpayers Pay More on Jails Than Schools

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—Annually it costs the American taxpayer $91 to keep a child in school, but it costs $300 to keep a man in prison.

Dr. John Dewey, who has led the fight for education suited to modern needs, cites the pertinent comparison in a plea for government aid for schools.

Dr. Dewey's plea, backed by his argument that if educational costs are cut, crime costs will increase, is a leading article in the March Good Housekeeping, on the stands Friday.

He advocates a federal Department of Education with a secretary in the cabinet. Referring to European countries which have governmental supervision of education, he said:

"Their schools have not buckled under the depression as ours have, even though the economic situation has been more acute than with us. In 40 other countries the education front has held better than ours has under the attack of world-wide economic depression."

Dr. Dewey said that the measures adopted in cutting educational costs had not got at fundamentals. He decried the tendency to cut teachers' salaries, shorten the school term, close schools, reduce equipment, and to reduce training of crippled and backward children.

Real economy, he said, would be achieved through better school districting, centralization in the purchase of supplies, buildings designed for maximum usefulness rather than community pride, and efficient management instead of political control. National planning would bring about this economy, he maintained.

DR. PROTHEROE, COMPOSER, DIES

CHICAGO, Feb. 26.—(AP.)—Dr. Daniel Protheroe, famed in this country and England as a conductor and composer of choral music, is dead at his home after an illness of two years from a heart ailment. He was 67.

The friend of David Lloyd George and other prominent members of the Druids, British society devoted to the preservation of Celtic arts, Dr. Protheroe frequently adjudicated at the National Eisteddfod in Wales.

Composer of "The Minstrels," "The Sweet Bye and Bye" and numerous Easter and other cantatas, as well as author of several text books on the teaching of music, Dr. Protheroe was best known for his compositions, "The Crusaders" and "Drontheim."

He had come to this country at the age of 19 from Ystradgynlars, Wales. Previous to coming to Chicago he had lived in Scranton, Pa., and Milwuakee, Wis.

SCHOOL CHIEFS PLEAD FOR U. S. AID

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—With public schools being closed and teachers suffering from lack of pay, an appeal for federal aid for education was laid before the House Education Committee today.

A committee representing the leading public school executives of the nation planned to lay before Congress a picture of demoralization of public education which, they hope, will bring prompt action.

An immediate appropriation of $50,000,000 and another of $100,000,000 for the fiscal year beginning July 1 is proposed by the educators. A score of bills seeking aid have been introduced in both Senate and House.

A veritable deluge of mail is being received by members of Congress backing the plea for aid. The pressure has been increasing in the last few weeks as failure of school districts to collect taxes have forced closing of schools, shortening of terms and more and more teachers find themselves in dire straits.

Dr. James N. Rule, superintendent of public instruction in Pennsylvania, and at least 15 other state superintendents were invited to testify.

HIT-RUN AUTO VICTIM DIES

Apparently struck by a hit-run motorist, according to state police, Mrs. Martha Libitcer, 59, of Harmarville, died today in Pittsburgh Hospital. She was found with a fractured leg and internal injuries along a highway in O'Hara Township Saturday night.

A report to the Coroner said the woman had been visiting in Sharpsburg. She missed a street car and was walking along the road when an automobile skidded and hit her, the Coroner was told.

The woman still was conscious when state police found her. The driver of the automobile is being sought.

NEW CHARTER FOR CITY SEEN IN SURVEY

A new charter for Pittsburgh may result from plans, to be introduced in Council today, for an efficiency survey of city departments, according to Maj. Ezra B. Whitman.

Maj. Whitman was chairman of a committee which reorganized the city government of Baltimore after conducting a similar survey there. Discussing the possible results of such a survey in Pittsburgh, he said:

"I have no doubt but you'll have to change the charter here."

Any decision as to action on the charter would, of course, have to wait the survey's disclosure of what reforms were necessary, Maj. Whitman explained.

CHANGE NOT CONSIDERED

Councilmen, however, said they had not gone so far as to consider a charter change in the closed sessions in which they have discussed the Baltimore scheme.

But two councilmen at least declared their desire for a change in city government.

Councilman William A. Magee stated he was on record as favoring the city manager plan.

Councilman John J. Kane, who introduced a city manager bill in the Legislature, stated he felt a complete reorganization was necessary in Pittsburgh after careful study.

BALTIMORE PLAN

The Baltimore plan, in brief, consists in a careful survey of all city departments by experts in different lines, whose services would be loaned free of charge to the city by business groups.

In Baltimore a committee to conduct the survey was organized by Mayor Howard W. Jackson in 1923. Continuing active analysis and constant check-up on all departments for four years, the committee succeeded in reducing taxes from $2.97 to $2.39 on $100.

The reform was achieved chiefly through elimination of duplications and consolidations. Some 90 per cent of the recommendations of the committee were accepted. Adoption of a new charter on the basis of the recommendations fixed the improvements permanently. Pittsburgh's charter act was passed in 1901, one year later than Baltimore's, but has been subject to frequent amendments.

In discussing the Baltimore plan, Councilman Kane said he would be glad to view the results of such a businessman's survey here, but thought other municipal experts should be thoroughly consulted before any reorganization were undertaken.

M'NAIR CALLS WELFARE MEET

Mayor McNair has called a conference of mayors of cities in eight states, as well as legislators and other welfare officials, next Saturday night at the William Penn Hotel to discuss modernizing welfare legislation.

Harry L. Hopkins, federal emergency relief director, will speak. The conference is one of a series to be held under the auspices of the American Public Welfare Association of which Frank Bane is director.

Mayor McNair will preside at the meeting.

According to Southard Hay, city welfare director, the effort is to make a general improvement in welfare laws. Such abuses as giving the care of the poor to the lowest bidder or removing civil rights from those on relief, conditions said to exist in some districts, will be protested Hay said.

Misery over Kidneys

WHEN you are bothered with getting up frequently at night—when you suffer from pains across kidneys or swollen ankles and feet, try that newer medicine of Dr. Pierce's called Anurie. Read what Mrs. Carrie Kime of 611 Sumner Ave., Scranton, Pa., says: "Whenever my kidneys troubled me and I had those catches in the small of my back Dr. Pierce's Anurie Tablets soon got to the seat of the trouble and made me feel fine again."

Sold by druggists everywhere.

Send 10c to Dr. Pierce's Clinic, Buffalo, N. Y., for a trial package of Anurie. Write for free medical advice. "We Do Our Part."

flannel shirts, and accomplished what they started to do.

PENDLETON'S graveyard has more in it than was ever in the graveyard that Gray describes, with "lowing herd and mute inglorious Milton."

Here, in his grave lies Gen. Bernard E. Bee, who fought at Bull Run, like a man, and looking at one whom he admired, he cried:

An instant later a bullet killed him. Jackson ever since has been "Stonewall" Jackson.

NEARING ANDERSON, passing under a railroad viaduct, Mr. Kidd remarks:

"I am going to write to Ripley about this place, where four kinds of transportation meet. We are in a small car doing eighty along the road. The railroad runs over our heads, boats carry freight on the river, to the right, and north and south planes fly over this spot regularly."

Anderson is an energetic city, where citizens tell you:

"A man might as well cut his own throat to save somebody else the trouble, if he plans to say anything disagreeable about Franklin D. Roosevelt."

FINE CHAMBER of Commerce meeting at the Anderson high school. The crowd listens patiently to the fourth dull speech of the day, and amiable young mothers say:

"Please write your name on this piece of paper, for my little girl, and write something appropriate."

You write:

"My dear, continue to be a beautiful and good little girl."

Anderson County sent more men to the World War in proportion to population than any other county in the United States, and for thirty-eight years Anderson has averaged 233 days of sunshine a year. Few hens lay as many eggs in a year.

FROM ANDERSON to Columbia, capital of South Carolina, where you get the Seaboard Air Line express south bound, another "little run" of 125 miles.

It is necessary to "step on it a little" to get there before train time, which was one fifty-five this morning.

The "stepping" results in eighty miles an hour, and on the front seat, beside Mr. Kidd who says:

"It won't hurt us to have a little music."

He turns on a roaring radio, you sleep, peacefully indifferent to the fact that a front wheel coming off, or a cow bolting onto the roadway, would cause you to wake up in heaven or somewhere, asking:

"Where am I?"

For rest, go to New York or Chicago, not to Georgia or South Carolina. They are too energetic.

Ex-U. S. Prosecutor In Congress Race

Robert B. McKinley, former assistant United States Attorney, has announced his candidacy for Congress in the Thirty-fourth Congressional District on the Republican and Independent tickets. He served as an assistant to former United States Attorney Louis E. Graham, until September 1 of last year.

McKinley is a graduate of Schenley High School, Princeton University and University of Pittsburgh Law School. He has been active in the Y. M. C. A. of Pittsburgh, and has a wide acquaintance both in his district and in Pittsburgh.

Magee to Speak To Forum at Pitt

Councilman William A. Magee will speak on "Public Utilities" before the Inquiry Forum at the University of Pittsburgh Wednesday at 12:30 p. m. Howard Cohen will preside.

THRIFT GARDEN PROGRAM TO START EARLY

The 1934 program of the State Emergency Relief Board for the planting and cultivation of more than 300,000 thrift gardens in Pennsylvania was to get under way today, it was announced by Eric H. Biddle, executive director of the board.

Inauguration of this year's gardens will take place, according to Biddle, when the advisory committee meets in Harrisburg to approve plans, procedure and bids for seed supplies.

Orders for the seeds are expected to be placed early in March. On the advisory committee is W. P. Witherow, chairman of the Allegheny County Thrift Garden Committee.

Contrary to the procedure in 1933, eligibility to receive seed supplies, fertilizer and insecticide this year will be restricted to persons who are eligible for some form of relief.

The administrative office of the Allegheny County committee announced yesterday it is not ready to take applications for gardens.

The thrift garden program last year, according to Biddle, enabled 340,530 families to plant gardens and supplied them with vegetables with a retail value of more than $8,400,000. The average cost of materials supplied approximated $1.26 per garden. The average retail value of the yield per garden for the entire state was $24.85.

Holstein Announces For State Assembly

Championing state unemployment insurance and old age pensions, Nathan Holstein, Sixth Ward, is a candidate for the Legislature in the Second District.

As other planks in his platform he advocates consolidation of county and municipal offices, with abolition of fees; real estate tax reduction, abatement of penalties, interests and costs upon delinquent city and county taxes, changes in workmen's compensation laws.

Oakmont to Hear Congressman Kelly

The Oakmont Chamber of Commerce will hold its annual dinner and election of officers in the parish house of St. Thomas' Episcopal Church, Oakmont, at 6:30 p. m. tomorrow. Congressman Clyde Kelly, principal speaker of the evening, will talk on "Planned Economy."

HOUSING PLAN'S FAULTS TOLD

Theodore L. Moritz, secretary to Mayor McNair, has returned from Washington with word that the housing project proposed by George E. Evans for the North Side must be revised.

Moritz said he had a long conference with Max Dunning, assistant to Housing Administrator Robert D. Kohn, and discussed the status of the Evans' plan to build 220 houses in Marshall avenue near Brighton road, North Side. Moritz said:

"The way Evans has it set up, it will mean a deficit for him, and the government does not want that. They want it to be a sound business proposition and they don't want the rents too high, either."

Evans has sought to borrow $1,250,000 from the government. His plan has the strong indorsement of Mayor McNair.

METER COUNT HANDICAPPED

The meters of Pittsburgh public utilities, subject to the $2 meter tax, cannot be counted from the Public Service Commission records, according to information furnished to Controller James P. Kerr.

The reason, according to B. Frank Morgal, chief of the Commission's Bureau of Accounts, is because of difficulty in separating meters inside and outside the city limits.

Utilities here have been asked to furnish Controller Kerr a record of their meters but so far only one, the Manufacturers Light and Heat Company, has complied.

The Public Service Commission has provided the names of 11 companies and individuals operating taxicabs and so subject to the meter tax.

Irritated Stomach Is Soothed and Relieved

By Tested Toma Tablet Course for conditions due to gastric-hyperacidity

"For ten years I suffered with severe pains in my stomach, almost screaming with agony. Spent much money on X-rays and examinations, which revealed that I had Gastric Ulcers. After taking three bottles of Toma Tablets started to get frisky and to eat things I liked without pain or ache," says Charles J. Olson, of Buffalo, N. Y.

Sufferers using the Toma Tablet Course are reporting unusual results. It has been pronounced by thousands as one of the outstanding scientific achievements of years for Stomach Ulcers, Gastritis, Gas Pains, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Constipation and other stomach conditions induced by gastric-hyperacidity. A free booklet is now available, or send $1.00 for trial size bottle. Toma Inc., Dept. XH-24, Ligonier, Pa.

Wreck at Freeport Blocks P. R. Line

FREEPORT, Pa., Feb. 26.—Eastbound traffic on the Conemaugh division of the Pennsylvania Railroad was delayed for several hours when a dozen freight cars were derailed a mile east of the railroad station here early today.

JOBLESS HOLD LONDON RALLY

LONDON, Feb. 26.—(AP.)—As peaceably as any American football crowd, 2,000 unemployed from the provinces, augmented by several thousand London supporters, marched to Hyde Park yesterday afternoon and held their long-heralded unemployment demonstration.

The air was filled with speeches, a couple of hours were consumed in adopting a resolution rapping the national government and its unemployment bill, and the demonstrators marched out again—very quietly.

It rained almost all morning and a cold damp mist swept the famous park during the afternoon, making the demonstration on the whole a rather drab affair.

Bobbies, afoot and mounted, had little to do except for escorting the marchers from five gathering points to the park and handling a crowd estimated at 15,000, which flocked there to witness the spectacle.

BACK GOVERNMENT MERGERS

(Milwaukee and Milwaukee County are leading the way in the Middle West for consolidation of governmental agencies, such as is being advocated by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in its campaign to reduce taxes through elimination and waste in governmental agencies. Today's article, the forty-second of a series, reviews the activities of the Milwaukee district.)

Taxpayers of Milwaukee and Milwaukee County are leading the way in a move for consolidation and simplification of local governments. A move is under way to have the Governor authorize a state-wide survey as a basis for recommendations relating to local government. The first step toward simplification in Milwaukee will be taken next month when a revised city charter is to be submitted to the voters of that municipality.

The revised charter would give the Mayor the power to appoint the city treasurer, the city attorney and city controller, all of whom are now elected. This would shorten the ballot and place more responsibility on the Mayor for legal and financial control of the city.

Like Allegheny County, Milwaukee County has complexity and multiplicity of governments. There are approximately 90 tax levying bodies in Milwaukee County as compared with approximately 250 in Allegheny County. The survey, if ordered by the Governor, will furnish some valuable material for the economists of the state in their studies of consolidation and elimination in governmental agencies.

In Illinois the Governor has signified his willingness to have the Legislature consider measures bearing on structural changes and the re-adjustment of fiscal affairs in local governments.

The political science department of the University of Chicago has been giving much study to the problem of local governments and has prepared two reports, one on the Chicago metropolitan district and the other on the remainder of the state. Both reports reveal an amazing number of overlappings and inefficiencies and are a strong argument for consolidation and simplification.

Cook County, Illinois, is in a far worse shape than Allegheny County in the matter of multiple governments. In that county there are 410 distinct political units with tax levying powers and in addition has 126 units of organization engaged in construction and upkeep of highways.

Next month Chicago will vote on a proposal to consolidate 22 park systems under one board, to be appointed by the Mayor.

Beyer Assumes Civil Service Post

Walter O. Beyer, of 1330 Inverness street, former district manager for the Falk Corporation, was sworn in today as a city civil service commissioner to succeed Attorney B. B. McGinnis, who recently resigned.

Beyer, a mechanical engineer, said that he had severed his business connections and would devote his entire time to the commission.

BUILDERS PLAN BANQUET

Ladies night will be combined with the annual banquet of the Pittsburgh Builders' Exchange, scheduled March 7, at Hotel Schenley.

Three speakers on the program, announced by Thomas M. Brown, chairman, will be Robert Waddell, former Tech football coach; the Rev. Dr. Bernard Clausen, of the First Baptist Church, and Attorney David I. McCahill.

T. Reed Kennedy is arranging a musical entertainment. Dancing will be directed by Charles Yon and Hays M. Junkin. Ollie Cronwell and Walter Hofmann will be in charge of cards.

OFFICER HURT, PAIR FINED

Two men, Thomas Brennan, 1135 Bryant street, and Lucius Buchanan, 204 Fifty-fourth street, were fined $25 or 30 days to jail today in Central Police Court by Magistrate Howard B. McNutt after radio police testified that the pair broke into the lobby of the Bakewell Building, Grant street, last night and broke into a show case.

Radio patrolman Albert Miller testified today that Buchanan struggled and broke one of Miller's fingers when he was being taken to the police station last night.

Costly Art Features New World's Fair

CHICAGO. — (INS.)—Another edition of the art exhibit which many visitors regarded as the most worth-while feature of A Century of Progress will be hung in the Art Institute when the exposition reopens next spring. The second world's fair exhibition will emphasize American retrospective and contemporary art, it was announced.

Government Gets Sherman Bier Flag

ST. LOUIS.—Civil War trophies, including the flag that covered Gen. Sherman's casket, have been turned over to government by Ransom Post No. 31, Grand Army of the Republic, here. The flag has been used in more than 1,000 G. A. R. funerals.

COWBOY HINTS HE'S FLOYD

NORTH WILKESBORO, N. C., Feb. 26.— (AP.) —A jaunty stranger in cowboy boots and big sombrero was held here today while police checked up on the possibility he was telling the truth when he reportedly said he might be "Pretty Boy" Floyd, Oklahoma outlaw.

Annie Shoals, 22, who works at a boarding house where the stranger has lived for four weeks, told chief of police, John Walker the stranger had related tales of robberies to her and had said he "might be" Floyd.

REMEMBER WHEN THE U. S. CHASED PANCHO VILLA?

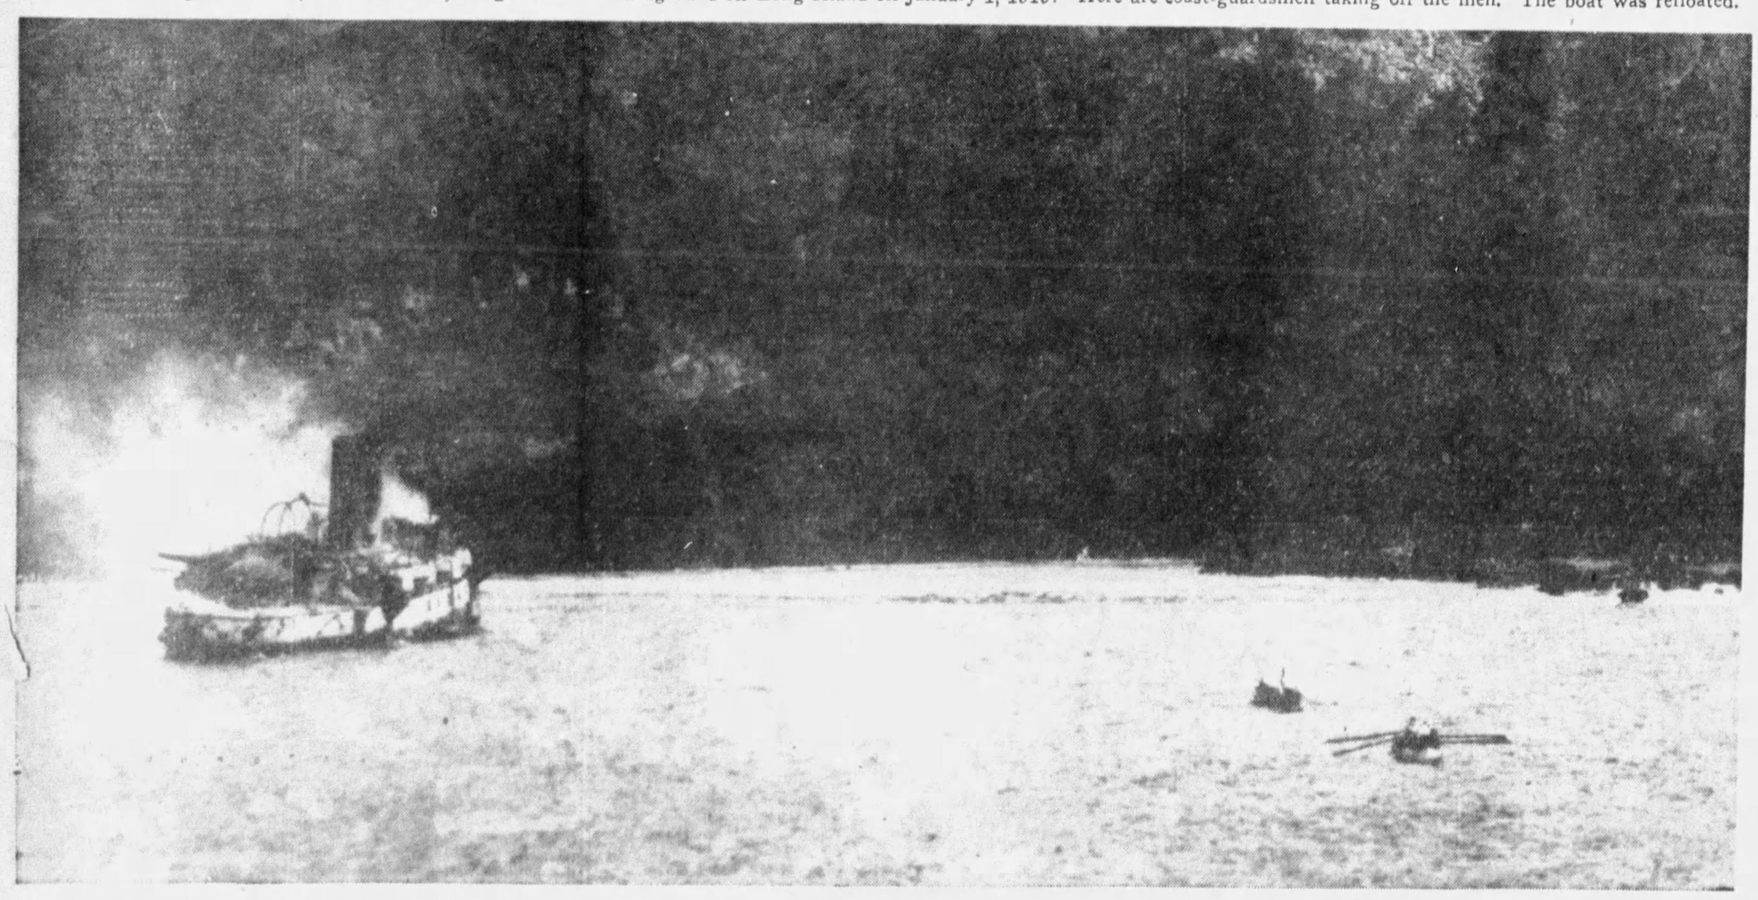
This is a Picture-Story of Dramatic Events, Personalities, Beauties, Customs and Fashions Within the Memory of Living Americans

Remember when the United States in 1916 had to send the Army into Mexico in a punitive expedition that President Wilson ordered to bring back Pancho Villa, the bandit, dead or alive? Here are U. S. Cavalrymen in a barren waste south of the Rio Grande River seeking the "Butcher," never caught.

Remember when Claire Etrulia—known astage as Truly Shattuck—was charming the audiences in the 90's? She was starred on Broadway with George M. Cohan in the 1900's.

Remember when Villa swashbuckled in Mexico? For border raids, killing Americans, the U. S. Army sought him.

Remember when the U. S. Army transport "Northern Pacific" while carrying 3,000 wounded U. S. World War veterans ran aground off Long Island on January 1, 1919? Here are coast-guardsmen taking off the men. The boat was refloated.



Remember when the U. S. fleet under Admiral Sampson bottled up the Spanish fleet under Admiral Cervera, the defender of Santiago in the Spanish War? Here is the beached 'Oquendo' near Juan Gonzales on July 1, 1898, as U. S. sailors rowed over to accept surrender after the U. S. fleet had met in battle the Spanish fleet in its attempted dash for the open Caribbean when officers realized that Santiago would shortly fall into the hands of Americans on the shore. And so in this manner was carried on the Spanish-American naval war of '98.

WHOLESOME 'SNACKS' URGED

Children's Lunches Should Be Chosen Carefully

Healthy youngsters want to eat and they're not satisfied with just bread and butter. Satisfy their demands, but with care. Don't have them eating all day, but when you give them a snack to fill in that long afternoon between-meals space, make sure it's something simple and nourishing.

Do you have recipes which will fill some housewife's needs? If you do, show your generosity of spirit, by sending them in to Prudence Penny, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. For every recipe she uses, she awards the sender with either a $5 prize or one of 10 $1 prizes distributed daily.

FIVE DOLLAR PRIZE WINNER

MRS. HARVERY HERMES,
212 Sixth street, Sharpsburg.

CORN PIE

One can whole grain corn.
One tablespoonful butter.
Two tablespoons sugar.
Three-fourth cup milk.
Salt and pepper to taste.

Drain corn and put in sauce pan. Add milk, butter, sugar, salt and pepper and let come to boiling point. Line pie pan with rich crust. Put corn mixture in crust. Put upper crust on and bake in hot over (400 F.) for 25 minutes. Serve hot.

CRUST FOR CORN PIE

One and one-half cups flour.
One-half cup shortening.
One-half teaspoonful salt.

TEN $1 PRIZE WINNERS

MRS. W. W. KRAFF,
9 Lawrence street.

PUMPKIN CHIFFON PIE

One cup brown sugar.
Three egg yolks.
One and one half cups canned pumpkin.
One-half cup milk.
One-half teaspoon ginger.
One-fourth teaspoon allspice.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One tablespoon gelatine (flavorless).
One-half cup cold water.
Three egg white (beaten stiff).
Two tablespoons granulated sugar.

Cook brown sugar, egg yolks, pumpkin, milk, spices, and salt until thickened. Soak gelatine in cold water for five minutes. Add to hot mixture. Let cool and when it begins to congeal, fold in egg whites to which the two tablespoons sugar have been added. Pour into baked pie shell and chill. Garnish with whipped cream. Makes one large pie.

MISS IRENE SWENSON,
Walnut street, Irwin.

HOT CROSS BUNS

Take one cup milk, first brought to a boiling point, then cooled to lukewarm. Dissolve one cake compressed yeast and one tablespoon sugar in this. Then beat in one and one-half cups sifted bread flour, cover the mixture and let rise till light and spongy (about one hour). Next, cream one-third cup sugar and one-fourth cup shortening, stir this in one well-beaten egg and add this to first mixture. Then add two and one-fourth cups sifted flour, combined with one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon mace or nutmeg and one-fourth cup raisins or currants and grated rind of a lemon. Knead this mixture lightly, then put into a greased bowl, cover with towel, and let rise till double in bulk (about two hours). Then shape mixture into medium-sized, round buns. Place these on a well-greased pan about two inches apart. Cover with a cloth and let rise again (about one hour). Made this way, hot cross buns are particularly light and feathery. But you may cut down the time by shaping them into buns at once, after adding fruit and flavoring, thereby omitting the second rising. To glaze these buns, brush before baking with an egg slightly beaten and mixed with one scant teaspoon water. Cut a cross on the top of each and bake 20 minutes in a hot over (425 degrees). Just before removing these from the oven, brush them with powdered sugar mixed with just enough water to make a paste. While they are still hot, fill the cross with the powdered sugar frosting. Another way to decorate these buns is to omit glazing and coat them with powdered sugar.

MRS. H. A. MYERS,
333 Maple Terrace, Mt. Washington.

LOBSTER SALAD IN TOMATO ROSES

One cup celery.
Three hard boiled eggs.
One head lettuce.
Mayonnaise.

Cut lobster, celery and hard cooked eggs into small pieces. Add salt and pepper to taste and enough mayonnaise to bind together. Mix well and place in refrigerator to chill. Remove centers from tomatoes and chill.

Cut tomatoes in six sections down to within one-half inch from bottom. Place on lettuce leaves and spread sections apart to resemble petals of rose. Place lobster salad in center of each rose. Garnish with stuffed olives and radish roses.

Serve with small hot biscuits or rolls. Makes an attractive salad for a Lenten bridge party. Serves four.

MRS. ROSE WEINER,
1524 McFarland road, Dormont.

GERMAN CLUTZ COOKIES

One-forth pound butter.
One cup brown sugar.
One cup flour.
One tablespoon vinegar or one and one-half tablespoon lemon juice.
One-fourth pound almonds.

Chop almonds fine and mix with ingredients. Roll into very small balls and place in greased pan, permitting enough space between to enable them to spread out. Bake in hot oven under a very small light until light brown.

BETTY P DOURT,
R D. 2, Box 145, Glenshaw.

SUNDERLAND PUDDING

One quart sweet milk.
Six eggs.
Six tablespoons flour.
One-fourth teaspoon salt

Separate the eggs; beat the yolks until lemon colored, and the whites until stiff. Bake three-fourths hour in a moderate oven. Serve with sugar and butter beaten together, with nutmeg on top.

MARY SWEENEY,
329 Jucunda street.

SPANISH OMELET WITH MUSHROOMS

One-half pound fresh mushrooms, sliced.
One tablespoon butter.
One tablespoon chopped onion.
One tablespoon chopped green pepper.
Four eggs
Four tablespoons water
Salt and pepper to taste

Cook mushrooms in butter until tender. Add tomatoes, onion and peppers. Cook until it is quite thick. To well-beaten egg add yolks, add water, salt and pepper; fold in beaten egg whites and pour into hot buttered pan. When done, place tomato and mushroom mixture on one-half of omelet and fold other half over it. Serve immediately.

MRS. E. MOROV,
717 Mellon street.

OLD FASHIONED BUBKE
(Coffee Cake)

Six cups flour.
Two cups sugar.
One cup shortening.
Three eggs.
Two cups water or milk (warm).
Two regular size cakes yeast.
One teaspoon salt.
One half cup seedless raisins.

Sift flour and set a sponge, with yeast and one cup warm water. Set in warm place for one-half hour. Then add remaining ingredients, and whip hard with hand and bring to smooth batter and bubbles. Pour into large pan and set to raise for four hours, until bubbling appears again. To the remains in mixing bowl add: one-half cup sugar, six teaspoons cinnamon, and enough flour to allow crumbling. When cake is ready for baking, sprinkle shortening over cake and cover with crumbles. Put in moderate oven for one hour. This makes a large cake and should be kept in tin after baking.

MARIE FEKULA,
401 Winton street, South Pittsburgh.

SWEETBREADS WITH EGGS

One-half pound of mushrooms.
One-fourth green pepper cut up.
Bit of parsley cut up.
Piece of onion cut up.
Three or four eggs.

Cook the sweetbreads in salted, boiling water with a little vinegar about 20 minutes. Cut up mushrooms and saute in four tablespoons olive oil for about 10 minutes with the onion and the green pepper, salt to taste. Add sweetbreads cut up and the parsley sauts a few mintes longer. Then add eggs and stir slowly till the eggs are just set, but not hard. Serve hot. For variation left-over ham, cut up in strips may be used instead of sweetbreads. Spinach is nice if a little chopped tomato is added. Left-over noodles may be used the same way. Left-over gravy with a bit of chicken can be utilized in this manner. Economical but tasty.

MRS. ESTELLE ADAMS,
2764 Bergman street.

LEMON MARMALADE

Boil the rind of a lemon one-half hour. Drain (throw away the water) and chop very fine, adding the lemon pulp and one cup of water. Cook gently for one hour; add one cup of sugar and cook 15 minutes longer, stirring occasionally to prevent burning. Cool and serve.

EDNA SEIBERT,

LUNCHEON POTATOES

One-half small green pepper.
One small onion.
One-half pond Hamburg steak.
Salt, pepper, and six large potatoes.
One-fourth pond bacon.

Chop the pepper and onion fine and mix with the steak, seasoning well. Pare the potatoes. With the broad side up, hollow them out with a paring knife and spoon, leaving walls one-half inch thick. Fill each hollow with seasoned steak and bake in a hot oven in a covered pan, basting with fat. Ten minutes before serving, uncover, place two strips of bacon crosswise over each potato, and when crisp serve at once. Time in baking one hour. Temperature 400 degrees. Recipe makes six servings.

'A Columnist's Sec'y Jots Down a Few Notes

Dear W: Call Washington (Met 5-900) soon as you come in . . . incidentally, a pal of mine who likes to raise the dickens late is there now . . . And she has to retire before midnight . . . She was on the phone and screamed: "They must have buried the wrong Washington!" . . . Say, listen. Smoke gets in your eyes—but this weather gets in my hair! . . . Fran Coleman was in. About the line of Broderick being born on the East Side "where a man is known by his punch" . . . He said that Broderick is now patroling a beat in Queens, where cops are known by their paunch! . . . Not bad . . . He also said that in Boston there is a spot, a former speak, which features an enlarged snapshot on the walls of Jimmy Durante and yourself. A wag scribbled under it: "The two nosiest guys in the world" . . . Watch the hecklers write in that it should be noisiest.

It's a boy at the Nicky (Joan Burgess) Blairs . . . I forgot to tell you that in Washington, D. C., where prohibition was born and killed, they still drink laughing soup from tea cups! Only one speak there, too! . . . Joe Julian in with a simile, to wit: "As futile as picketing a theater where Mae West is playing" . . . Maurice Stekliere submits: "As senseless as having a balcony seat at a burlesk show!" . . . Hey! You're known in Yugoslavia! See Louis Adamic's book, "The Native's Return," page 28.

Viola Irene Cooper and Wm. Parker (whose "Birdie Man" they claimed was taken without their permission for "Picture Snatcher") finally got a settlement from Warners and they thank you for helping break it . . . With the pants pressers demanding this and that, Russ King says that if they strike it shouldn't bother Heywood Broun . . . Broun wants you to sponsor a show with him for the Typographers' Union. It is called "Typographical Errors of 1934" —cute hag . . . I said okay . . . Is it true that blondes make the best columnists? . . . Niver W. Beaman, of Waterbury, was in. He fears that if Francis X Bushman re-marries his ex-wife, the headlines will have fun with such photo captions as: "F. X. Reannexes Ex-Mrs. F. X. See inside pages for all the fex!"

The engineers, Tuthill (who built NBC) and Paul Green (who built CBS), are both out of jobs now—or so I hear. Why not talk to Mr. Royal and Mr. Wonders — men like that shouldn't lose jobs . . . J. M. Josefsberg called. Said that this week the bakeries are featuring hot cross buns, but, as usual, Broadway will continue featuring double cross bums . . . Also that a nudist makes the best friend—because you may be sure he has nothing up his sleeve . . . The new mayor of Harlem is Bill Robinson—he has done so much for the people of his race—it's no wonder . . . Can you locate Maralyn Watson? S. Jay Kaufman wants to find her. She wrote the following in 1908 —it's grand, too: "Long ago when life was new—and the little-girl-look still lingered in my eyes—why did you not come to me—like the Knight in olden books, and make me yours—before Broadway made me wise?"

George Baxter has the honor, it appears, of being the first guy in the U. S. to kiss Anna Sten's hand in a movie . . . Ain't that nothin'? . . . I heard someone say that Izzy Kaplan, the photographer, who went Broadway years ago, is being called "The Great White Whale" . . . Answer yes or no, if you can and dare! . . . It's a simple question that rarely gets an answer. According to a psychiatry, the denial of insanity is an infalliable sign of it! Therefore—Are You Crazy? . . . Talk about grand similes, this one is by Wm. Slavens McNutt from Munsey's of 1917—"The book went. It went like a flag-song in a Cohan show at a special 4th of July matinee given to G. A. R. veterans."

The Lewistown, Pa., Sentinel editor observes that you are "the most cussed and discussed columnist" . . . As the scrappybooks will testify, anytime, eh? . . . Sam Liebowitz is one of those forming The B'klyn Jewish Democracy to combat discrimination of all classes, races, creeds, etc. The first meeting is to be held at the B'klyn Academy of Music, Sunday, March 4 . . . Fannie Brice, Belle Baker, Ruth Etting, Willie and Eugene Howard are some of the stars to appear . . . Grand songs by Jimmy McHugh and Dorothy Fields in the swell Palais Royal show . . . One wag was in and wanted to know that if he kissed Joan Crawford—would his lips be red??? . . . Lou Holtz will m. c. at the Casino de Paree on Sunday nights, starting this Sunday . . . Helene Standish of the same show is leaving to marry a rich Army officer.

I hear that two big chains of cigar stores are to be fought by their clerks, who are forming a union—which was never permitted before . . . Jean Gale of the 4 Gale girls is the champion female kidder in H'wood, I hear . . . She refuses to take any of the big boys seriously and ruins their dignity when introduced to them. Which is no way to become a star—or is it? . . . Mrs. D. Almond is up and around again—which is good news to her admirers . . . Jack Raymond phoned. Said his idea of a friend is the girl who, when you go broke, calls you up—not down. . . . Fritzi Scheff has booking for 36 weeks! Isn't that fine? . . . Lou Ashendorf says a true friend is one who will wait until you are married before stealing your girl.

Ooop! Another simile — from Harold Seton—"As sincere as the pat on the cheek the victor gives the vanquished after a bout" . . . He knows a dumb dora who says if she had one wish from Aladdin's lamp she'd ask for a lampshade . . . Incidentally, you said in that column you'd hand a thousand baseball bats to a 1,000 Johnny Brodericks (to hit crooked agents) . . . Tom Killilea called — and said, "Where, even with Aladdin's lamp, could you get a thousand Brodericks?" . . .

—Your Girl Friday.

Studio Bans Radio Work By Stars

By GWYNN

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 26.—There's long been a fight waged by exhibitors against having picture stars go on the air for regular commercial programs due to the fact that the competition for audiences is pretty hard to buck when a favorite goes on the air and can be heard for nothing and the family picture budget is meager.

Well, they will be glad to learn here that Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer agrees with them. That producing company has slapped the lid down on any of its contract players signing with commercial sponsors. All requests by agents are being turned down and the company is deaf to all propositions at any terms.

However, all this is not a purely unselfish, altruistic move on the part of MGM. The truth of the matter is that unlike other major companies, they have no radio affiliations and thus they regard ether broadcasts as competition, and the bigger the star on the air the greater the competition becomes.

At one time this radio situation became so tough that threats were made to ban all Cantor pictures because of his Sunday night broadcasts, and at that time Mr. Cantor made the statement that at the conclusion of his present radio contract he would broadcast no more on a commercial program so long as he was a picture star.

May Robson is back to town from her personal appearance tour and is telling about one of the most gruesome experiences anyone's ever had that happened to her while she was in New York. Miss Robson was in the big city during that first terrible cold spell, and one evening, as she came out of her hotel, she hailed a taxi that was parked a few feet up the block and got no response. She hailed it again, and still nothing happened. Finally after a few minutes of this Miss Robson and her escort walked over to the cab and tried to shake the cab driver out of what they thought was a deep sleep, only to make the horrible discovery that the man had died from the cold. However, the tour had its lighter moments when she went to Niagara Falls and had with her Mary Carlisle. They wanted to see the Falls from the Canadian side. They wouldn't consent until Mary Carlisle made a bargain to shake hands with everyone and sign autographs.

Add Hollywood Tragedies: Charles Riesner was sooooo proud of the fact that he had brought in the Spencer Tracy picture, "The Show-Off," in 18 days, or three days under schedule. And then it was discovered that a few re-takes would be necessary, but would only necessitate another day's shooting, and still keep the record intact. And THEN it was discovered that Madge Evans, the co-star, had gone and gotten herself a black eye and couldn't appear before the cameras for days, and bang went the whole darned schedule. They should really have rubber doors in this town.

Hollywood is agog over the tremendous demonstration that was staged in a Glendale theater at the preview showing of George Arliss in "The House of Rothschild." There hasn't been anything like it seen in these parts in years; the audiance actually cheered and brought the house down with its appreciation and the picture looks like the big costume special of the year.

Arline Judge, all recovered from a recent attack of the flu goes back to her screen work in a part in her director-husband's next production, "The Great Magoo," which so far has Alison Skipworth in the cast. And in back of Wesley Ruggles directing "The Great Magoo" hes a story. Ruggles, being an ace director in the Paramount lot, is given his choice of things he'd like to direct and producers he'd like to direct for. Now there is one producer on the lot that he just can't get along with. So way at the beginning of the season Ruggles put in his bid to direct "Double Doors." Everything was all set when he was told that his pet hate producer was going to make that story, so Wesley bowed out. Then he heard about "She Loves Me Not" and hopped aboard a plane and went to New York for a couple of days just to see the play. He came back all enthused and ready to start work on the story and full of plans for the casting. Everything was all set again when he was informed that the same producer also had put "She Loves Me Not" on his schedule. So finally "The Great Magoo" was assigned to Wesley Ruggles for direction and he accepted.

Variety Closed For Week

The Variety, closed this week, will reopen with a midnight show Sunday night, March 4, instead of March 11, as previously announced. A change of policy in the type of shows to be presented at the local theater for the balance of the season is also announced by Manager George Jaffe. He says that in the future leading dancers, comedians and singers in burlesque would be engaged for one week only and the illuminated runway will be restored as one of the weekly attractions.

"Runaway Girls" is the title of the show opening next Sunday night. Heading the feminine principals will be Georgia Sothorn, dancer, and "Diana," European music hall dancer. There will be Reggie White and Elaine Wilburn, dancers, and Joe De Rita and Jimmy Gerard, comedians; Wilma Horner, Lou Lorraine, Abe Sher, Al Golden and Eddie Kaplin. "Runaway Girls" will be entirely new, including the chorus of 18 girls.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Performances of Mrs. Sarah C. Pettit's new play, "The Ghost," listed for February 27 and 28, by the Irene Kaufmann Settlement Players, have been postponed until March 6 and 7. The play will be staged in the Theresa L. Kaufmann Auditorium.

* * *

The cast of "The Devil," to be played Thursday and Friday evenings in the Washington School, Mt. Lebanon, by the Dracomtra Players, will include W. H. Bergheimer, Jr., Richard E. Disney, Maurice Roland, Theda Gray, Mignonne Kuntz, John A. Metz, Jr., Georgene Nichols, Edwina Grove, Peggy Bernholtz, Mary Watkins, Peggy Dennis, Milton A. McMillan, W. Howard Lenhart, Nolan Duino, H. Ward Ewalt, Jr., is director. Officers and board of the Drama League will be guests Thursday night. The Orpheus Choir will sing at Friday's performance, which will be the eightieth given by the Dracomtra.

Proposal

JENNY HAD been married to Matt Peterson a scant two years when she realized that she had made a serious mistake. She had married Matt because he was sober, industrious, and hard-working. Before they had reached their third wedding anniversary, she longed to divorce him because he was sober, industrious and hard-working.

Life, for Jenny, was entirely flat and unexciting. But divorce was out of the question. For one thing, Matt had given her absolutely no reason. And for another, she would be thrown out upon a cold world with no means of supporting herself.

She might have gone on indefinitely in that fashion if it had not been for Herbert.

Upon one occasion, Herbert spent six months in the Petersons' neighborhood, and a great part of that time was spent in the Peterson's living room. He talked about his travels, and the more he talked, the more deeply Jenny fell in love with him.

She was waiting only for Herbert to say that he loved her, at which time she would leap enthusiastically to her lawyer and start divorce proceedings at once. But, though Herbert appeared troubled and upset at times and showed all the unfailing symptoms of a man in love, he refrained from speaking the words that she wanted most of all to hear.

Then one morning, while Matt was away, Herbert presented himself at Jenny's door.

"Jenny," he burst out, "I just received a wire. I have to start for Chona tonight. And I must tell you this—for the first time in my life, I'm in love. I've never told this woman that I love her, but I think she knows. And I can't go away without knowing whether or not she loves me. Do you understand, Jenny?"

"Yes," she murmured softly. "I understand, Herbert. Even though you didn't tell her, I'm sure she loves you, too."

"I hope so. I've prayed that she might, Jenny, tell me! If a woman loves a man enough, would she go away with him? Far away, even to China?"

"Even as far away as that," whispered Jenny.

"If she will come with me," he declared, "I'll be the happiest man in the world. I'm leaving at 12 from Grand Central; and if this girl loves me as you say she does, Jenny, she'll be with me when I leave."

Jenny watched him go and her heart was beating rapidly.

During the remainder of the day, she hurried about packing her things and preparing to leave. When Matt came in from work, she told him frankly what had happened.

Matt didn't rant or rave. He offered to sue for divorce as soon as possible.

"There's only one thing," he added. "I guess I've been a good bit of a sap. But I won't be again. If you go, Jenny, it's for good. There's no coming back if he shouldn't turn out like you think he will."

She was at the station a full half-hour ahead of time. She stood at the gate with her bags beside her watching the crowds carefully for a glimpse of Herbert. He came at last.

"It was swell of you to come and see me off," he declared. "Jenny, this is my wife. We were married this afternoon."

Jenny saw, for the first time, that there was a woman with him.

"Lily," he told her, "is the girl I was telling you about this morning. And we want to thank you, because we owe our happiness entirely to you. If it hadn't been for your reassurance, I never would have had the courage to ask her" . . .

Stastny's City Etchings On Exhibition Here

By PENELOPE REDD

An exhibition of etchings by Joseph Stastny is presented today for a fortnight's showing at the Gillespie Gallery. Mr. Stastny has principally Pittsburgh subjects. Trained as both architect and engineer, it is logical that he has made buildings and bridges particularly his own. In the "Three Rivers," seen from Mt. Washington, he shows the bridges crossing the Allegheny, Monongahela and Ohio rivers with the mass of the city between. "Water Street Wharf" includes the Smithfield Street Bridge and one of the packets characteristic of the wharf.

Miss Redd

Moving over to the Allegheny River, "Duquesne Way" is seen with a sand digger in the foreground. Perhaps the best of Mr. Strastny's river subjects is the "Sixth Street Bridge," which extracts full value from the natural poetry of a well designed bridge. The print is resonant in color and has the power peculiar to a fine etching whereby the observer's imagination for color is stimulated.

In the "Boat Builder" showing a wharf with incisively drawn loafers and the Ninth Street Bridge with the Koppers and Gulf buildings in the distance, the later series of etchings by Strastny is foretold.

The Union Trust with its medieval overtones shows Mr. Stastny at his keenest. To emphasize the Meryon-like intimations of his subject, he has included the Richardson lion at the portal of the court house and placed a vivid circus procession passing along Grant street. With these atmospheric accessories attendant, the richly detailed Gothic of the Union Trust Building, thus becomes the center of interest. This plate, which creates an intricately woven whole, is the best that Mr. Stastny has done. As in the "Sixth Street Bridge" he has achieved splendid color.

MUSIC

Shapiro Quartet
Hotel Schenley

The Shapiro String Quartet played its third concert in Hotel Schenley yesterday afternoon, Mildred Lissfelt, soprano, assisting. The increasing attendance at these concerts speaks well for their popularity and is encouraging indeed to the players.

Yesterday's programs was by no means made of popular music, for much of it was as "advanced" for us as this very Mozart Quartet was for the musicians of his day.

Mr. Lissfelt

During the Malipiero "Cantari" there was much shaking of heads, but actually this work is brimful of ideas, many old old ones perhaps worked over in a new dress; it is vigorous and stimulating, and though at first hearing it does

PROGRAM

Mozart	Quartet in G Major
Zitterbart	Presto
Songs with String Quartet
Bach	O! Think, My Soul
Dr. Arnold	Maid of the Mill
Andre Soyer	Feuilla Morte
Carl Prohaska	Two Poems
May Wonder
Lullaby
Malipiero	Cantari alla Madrigalesca

give one a feeling that it is a cluster of good fragments, yet on closer examination and repeated hearing one does sense a completeness and unity of plan. During the songs of Prohaska and Soyer too, we traveled in rarified atmosphere of newer harmonies.

The players throughout the program evinced a better teamwork than at the previous concert. The Mozart was a little ragged getting started, but ended with firmer strokes and a sure intonation.

In the "Presto," of Zitterbart—a fresh and sparkling excerpt—and in the Mendelssohn "Canzonetta," given as encore, somehow the quartet felt the abandon they should, by right of their talents, always show. Both miniatures were finely played.

On first public hearing and having no means of comparison we shall have to accept the interpretation of the Malipiero as authoriative, for Shapiro care and scores with exceeding care and intelligence.

The performance was enthusiastic and spontaneous, never labored, and that is a great deal for such trying work. During the songs, there were moments of the quartet's best playing.

Mrs. Lissfelt's voice is exceedingly beautiful in its high register and so it blended well with string accompaniment. Believe me, I have heard it on many different occasions, but yesterday it was, during the Soyer and the Prohaska "Lullaby," at its best.

There was no occasion for any dramatic effects during the music chosen for this program, but her accurate intonation and the floating tone of her pianissimo was music I shall like to remember. J. FRED LISSFELT

Dave Rubinoff has won permission from his sponsor to go on the air with his dance orchestra from a midtown hotel, and will inagurate a schedule on KDKA, February 28, at 11:30 p. m.

* * *

I've had occasion to compare notes, of late, with other radio columnists, on the discourtesy of some radio stars in the matter of answering correspondence.

* * *

And we seem to agree that etiquette, as well as microphone technique, might be part of the radio stars' training.

* * *

BENNY RE-TIRES

Victor Young's orchestra will do the whole show, with Alwyn Bach as announcer, after Jack Benny leaves his auto program with the April 8 broadcast.

Benny's new sponsor will be a tire manufacturer.

* * *

The mystery backers of George McCelland, who dropped out of NBC as vice president "to form a new chain," now turn out to be a giant cinema outfit anxious to offset a rival movie concern's tieup with NBC.

* * *

Is it significant of an important alliance that WNEW is taking not only foreign broadcasts from the Columbia System, but policy broadcasts as well?

* * *

In place of Ethel Waters, who parted company with the CBS oil broadcast last Sunday, Lyda Roberti and Georgie Price appeared last night for a one-shot.

* * *

PIPE DOWN!

Patrons of Glenn Gray's and Col. Stoopnagle's CBS broadcast are fed up with studio audience noises, and patrons of the hotel where the program originates are being asked to pipe down and refrain from applause.

* * *

Frank Black's idea of a standing rather than a sitting orchestra actually improves the quality of production, he is of the opinion after a tryout in a regular broadcast. The engineers call the standing music "vertical" music.

Globe Trotter

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Many listeners complain that they are bothered by amateur radio operators in their neighborhoods.

Instances have been reported where outraged listeners have destroyed outside equipment of the amateur to keep his signals from interfering with general radio reception.

In all fairness to the amateur, whose experimental work has done much for the advancement of radio science, much of the interference ascribed to him results from other sources.

Affelder also takes exception to the advice given here several days ago to report interference to the Federal Radio Commission.

His suggestion is to report it to the amateur. Reporting it to the F. R. C. might stir up a lot of unwarranted trouble for the amateur.

The amateur in most cases will be glad to co-operate to eliminate the interference. Many times it is a washing machine, vacuum sweeper, or other piece of electrical equipment. If, perhaps, it is a power leak the local power companies often aid in finding the trouble. The Duquesne Light Company, he informs me, has a special "noise eliminating service."

It is a good thing to remember that the Federal Radio Commission won't grant relief where the radio receiver of the complainant is not of modern design.

In order to continue and cement friendly relations with amateurs and receivers, I'd be glad to co-operate if a group of the amateurs will handle complaints of Globe Trotters who send them in to me.

* * *

I don't know what the record for egg-eating contests is, but Kariol F. Skrabski, Herminie, has eaten 18 in one meal and 35 in a day.

He and his family have eaten 85 dozen in nine weeks.

As far as I'm concerned that's the record until I hear a better one.

Children's Program On Air Today

The Sun-Telegraph Family Children's Program, under the direction of Jane A. White, and presenting a group of talented children in a half-hour of songs and recitations, is heard over WCAE this afternoon at 4:45.

The Globe Trotter broadcasts over WCAE-WJAS at 12:15 and 2:15 p. m.

Aircaster tells a timely sea Story over WCAE-WJAS at 6:30 p. m.

RITES OF PRIEST ARRANGED FOR WEDNESDAY

The Rev. James F. Doyle, LL. D., 81, for 36 years pastor of St. Kieran's Catholic Church, Fifty-third street, died yesterday in Pittsburgh Hospital after an illness of three days. Funeral services will be held Wednesday.

Father Doyle was born in County Wexford, Ireland, June 4, 1853, and came to the United States in 1871, settling in Altoona. In the fall of that year he entered St. Michael's Seminary, Glenwood, where he studied four years.

He was transferred to St. Vincent Seminary, Latrobe, for the completion of his theological studies. He was ordained March 7, 1879, in St. Paul's Cathedral by the Rt. Rev. John Tuigg, third bishop of Pittsburgh.

His first solemn mass was offered in St. John's Church, Altoona. Soon after he was assigned to St. Andrew's Church, North Side, and in 1882 he was given his first pastorate in the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Washington, Pa., remaining in that charge 16 years. He came to St. Kieran's in 1898.

The funeral mass will be celebrated in St. Kieran's at 10 a. m. Wednesday by the Rev. Dr. Thomas F. Coakley, of Sacred Heart Church, as celebrant.

Others taking part will be the Rev. John I. McCann, of St. Ireneus Church, Oakmont, deacon; the Rev. Dennis J. Haggerty, of St. Joseph's, Natrona, sub-deacon; the Rev. Ferdinand H. Angel, of St. Alphonsus, Wexford, master of ceremonies; the Rev. Lawrence A. O'Connell, Church of Annunciation, North Side, assistant master of ceremonies; the Rev. Thomas Brown, Church of the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin, Bellevue, acolyte; the Rev. Vincent Rheland, St. Raphael's, Morningside, acolyte; the Rev. George Haber, St. John the Baptist, Pittsburgh, censer bearer; the Rev. Justin Gallagher, St. Mary's, Forty-sixth street, censer bearer; the Rev. Joseph Skur, St. Mary's, Fifty-seventh street, and the Rev. Michael J. Boyle, of St. Raphael's, Morningside, chatelains to the bishop.

The children's mass will be celebrated at 8 a. m. by the Rev. James Kernan, of St. Rosalia's, Greenfield, celebrant, assisted by the Rev. John Sullivan, C. S. S. P., of Duquesne University, deacon; Father O'Connell, sub-deacon, and the Rev. Vincent Kupleski, of St. Kieran's, as master of ceremonies.

The body will be transferred from the rectory to the church at 4 p. m. tomorrow to lie in state until the hour of the funeral.

Home in Oakmont Damaged by Blaze

Technical Men Hold Rally on Wednesday

Employe engineers, architects, chemists and technicians will attend an open meeting of the Federation of Architects, Engineers, Chemists and Technicians, in the Fifth Avenue High School Wednesday night. The federation was recently organized.

Hearings now being held in Washington on codes submitted by the federation will be discussed.

DRIVE LAUNCHED BY Y. M. & W. H. A. AT MEETING

A public mass meeting last night launched the city-wide, three-cornered good-will campaign for $60,000 for the 1934 budget of the Young Men and Women's Hebrew Association.

The meeting, at which Rabbi B. Benedict Glazer, of the Rodef Shalom Temple, was principal speaker, was held in the Morris Kaufmann Memorial Auditorium of the "Y" in Bellefield avenue and was attended by a capacity crowd.

$20,229 PLEDGED

Edgar J. Kaufmann, who is chairman of the special gifts committee for the drive, presided, and others taking part in the program were Hyman Rogal, general chairman; Herman Passamaneck, executive director of the "Y"; Dr. Philip R. Goldstein, of the Jewish Welfare Board of New York; Harry J. A. Applestein, president, and Mrs. Maurice Davis, chairman of the women's division.

Advance contributions totaling $20,229 were announced last night from the following doners:

Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Aaron, Charles I. Aaron, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dreyfus, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Falk, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Falk, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Lehman, Mr. and Mrs. I. F. Lehman, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Oppenheimer, William K. Frank, the I. W. Frank estate, Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Spear, Mr. and Mrs. William B. Klee, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Wertheimer, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar J. Kaufmann and Mrs. Betty W. Kaufmann.

TEAMS TAKE FIELD

Twenty teams of six men each, constituting the men's division, and 100 women workers, under Mrs. Davis, were to take the field today to enroll new members and contributors.

Mr. Kaufmann declared last night:

"There are some 5,000 individuals in the Jewish Community who are able to contribute to the "Y" and who would do so if they were properly informed as to the fine influence the "Y" yields in the lives of thousands of young people."

CHICKIE'S DAUGHTER -:- -:- By Elenore Meherin

CHAPTER III

Overnight Pippin grew up. Chickie but turned her head. The winsome little girl in blue sash vanished; this provocative, heart-holding young dryad took her place.

The months flew by. She was sixteen. She went to more dances. She was restless and craved ever more excitement.

"It's hardly fair," Chickie thought as she passed Pippin's room and saw the girl, dark-eyed and brooding, lost in the novels of George Sand.

She had an odd sense of bereavement. Pippin had gone too soon into the strange land of adolescence where no adult, even though he remembers every tremor, ever follows. There are walls between the two worlds. Sometimes Pippin seemed building hers deliberately, impregnably. She hid behind them, writing long hours in a diary—looking blank and charmingly evasive when anyone tried to find her.

Synopsis

Pippin, pretty daughter of Chickie, and Kathie McPike laughingly appeal to Kathie's foster-brother, Kevin Malone, to take them to their first dance. Kevin promises. Then, teased by the two girls because he is eight years older than they, he seizes Pippin and kisses her. Pippin goes home to her mother to secure permission to go to the dance, astonished and thrilled at the first real kiss she had ever known. Given permission, Pippin attends the dance with Kevin and has a glorious time. She feels lonely at the thought of Kevin going to Europe soon.

Now Go On

"In love? Why, mother, wasn't I only 16 or 17 yesterday?"

"Sixteen is the most enchanting age in the world and just the time for the first love. I remember well."

"You're so romantic, Helena. Youre like Elaine and Isolde and all those pale ladies of chivalry who go floating down rivers—dead of unrequited love. But if anything like that attacked me," with a giggling laugh, "I'd not call it love, but biology."

Chickie's heart squeezed.

Suddenly without a note of warning, Pippin forgot she was Great Garbo, holding the world spellbound; or that she was Trojan Helen, luring men from the ends of the earth with her charm.

With a swing of her tennis racket she left off day-dreaming and tumult to become the girl scout again, frantically interested in swimming and basketball.

Then Chickie went about in a singing lightness. Not even to David would she admit how the girl possessed her thoughts, and that she dwelt continually, with more fear than was right, on Pippin's future.

Grins at Worry

He grinned down with an old tenderness. It never failed to stir her heart. "Why do you worry, Lady, dear? Let her have her growing pains in peace."

David adored his daughter. He loved her hungry mind, her young starry eagerness. And he wasn't dismayed when she flew from one burning mood to another . . . today, an actress; tomorrow, a microbe hunter; now a butterfly in love with her own charms; now a young martyr flinging away her life to rescue a child from a blazing building.

That was right—that was the way a warm, vital, joyous spirit grew up. He understood the girl. They had grand times together in the little room behind the garage which he had rigged up for a laboratory and where he initiated Pippin and the little boys into the exciting mysteries of science.

Pippin liked that much better than making layettes for babies. From the time she was a little girl, she went with Chickie to the nursery Jake had endowed. She and Kathie sewed and sewed. They made hundreds of night gowns, crocheted thousands of little boots. They felt old and wise and that they raised these waifs.

"A person can forget everything when they stare through a microscope, can't they, David?"

Happy With Studies

"You think you're a mind reader, don't you?"

"Yeah. Love's okeh, but I'm darn glad to have returned the girl who's going to be another Mme. Curie."

"I want that, too, David—a great, thrilling career. I don't dream of falling in love for years and years. Helena's all wet about me. I just like to moon a little. It's fun to imagine glorious fellows on their knees, telling me how wonderful I am. But I don't want to BE in love. Too many other things to do. It's awfully hard to decide which is the right life—the best life.

"Whether to be an adventuress and have a thousand loves. To run about the street, disguised as a page and do mad, flaming things. Like George Sand. She had a wonderful life.

"Or to have just ONE GREAT PASSION—with ten or seven children—follow one man always. You and Helena seem the happiest then. And that's the way to live. Other times you seem so dull and commonplace,

CAFE MEN HERE AGREE TO CODE

Pittsburgh restaurants today began business under the NRA code of fair competition, as a result of a meeting yesterday of the Western Pennsylvania Restaurant Association.

R. L. Gammon, former president of the association, explained the code. He said that under it male employes will not be permitted to work more than 55 hours a week, and women workers not more than 48. Minimum wage rates for non-service employes in Pittsburgh is $15 weekly, and for service employes, who receive tips, $10.50.

Restaurants under the code will not be permitted to charge employes more than $3 weekly for meals, and no more than $5 monthly for uniforms, unless the uniform may be used for other employes, in which case they may charge $2.

At the meeting R. H. Jennings, president of the association, who presided, introduced a resolution in which the association backs the code and does not favor exemptions from it.

HARDWARE MEN TO STUDY CODE

Two thousand hardware men are expected to attend the opening session of the thirty-second annual convention of the Pennsylvania and Atlantic Seaboard Hardware Association tonight in the William Penn Hotel. The convention will continue four days.

NRA codes and studies of business conditions will feature the convention discussions. Mayor McNair is scheduled to make the welcoming address tonight, and President Frank P. Fifer, of Philadelphia, will formally open the business meeting at 10 a. m. tomorrow.

CHARGES WIFE WASTED CASH

His wife squandered $8,000 of his money, William M. Strathern, of 430 Camp avenue, Braddock, alleges in a bill of particulars in his divorce suit against Agnes H. Strathern, 504 McMasters avenue, Turtle Creek.

"She had pictures of other men on her dresser."

He also claims that she continuously threatened him with divorce proceedings if he did not divide his estate in equity, falsely alleging a pre-nuptial agreement to divide the property with her. Strathern also alleges:

"I put money aside in a savings fund and she withdrew $5,000 from the bank and squandered it for her personal use. She also withdrew from a safe deposit box bonds and stamps valued at $3,000 and used it. She continuously made excessive demands for funds."

They were married September 12, 1905. The husband charges cruel and barbarous treatment and indignities.

Window-Breaking Thief Gets Watches

A tray of watches was stolen from the display window in the jewelry store of Martin Schuller, 2910 Second avenue, by thieves who threw a brick through it early today, according to a police report.

Nothing was stolen from Chapin's restaurant, 310 Diamond street, after a brick had been tossed through the window early today, police said.

Husband Held On Wife's Charges

Arrested for disorderly conduct on complaint of his wife, Peter Muchway, of 2415 Cobden street, was turned over to social workers today in Morals Court by Magistrate Howard B. McNutt. The wife, Elizabeth, told McNutt that her husband had been drinking heavily recently and, while intoxicated, became abusive.

Two Hurt in Six-Car Mixup on Bridge

Two women and a man were injured in an accident involving six automobiles on the Liberty Bridge early yesterday.

One driven, police said, by L. H. Coleman, 150 Inglewood drive, Mt. Lebanon, skidded and sideswiped cars driven by L. L. Miller, 7136 Lemington avenue; John C. Carr, Lynbrook, L. I., New York, and a truck by David Fine, 648 Washington road, Mt. Lebanon.

Mrs. Grace Brillhart, a passenger in the Miller car, received cuts and bruises.

Lois E. Walker, 24, of 406 Fairmont avenue, Trafford, riding in an automobile driven by Carl G. Holmes, of 506 Lyndhurst avenue, Mt. Lebanon, and Charles Michaels, Jr., 22, of 1496 Edgehill avenue, Dormont, driver of a towing truck, were injured when Holmes' car skidded and struck Fine's truck as it was being towed away, police said.

A collision between a radio scout car and a trolley at Fifth avenue and Boquet street last night resulted in slight injuries to Patrolman T. M. Donahoe, riding in the police cruiser.

GENERAL MOTORS STEEL DEAL OFF

HEAD OF BUHL FUND BACKS SALES TAX

Col. Blackstone Also Backs Substitute For Income Levy

Two well-known Pittsburghers, active in business and real estate, today added their indorsements to those of hundreds of other men and women in all walks of life in Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania in advocating the manufacturers' sales tax.

C. F. Lewis, director of the Buhl Foundation, said:

"Especially in times such as the country now faces, the proposed manufacturers' sales tax, in principle, provides a justifiable supplementary source of revenue. It can be made an instrument for more just distribution of the burden of the cost of government."

FAVORS TAX

Col. Franklin Blackstone, Spanish and World War veteran, past president of the Pittsburgh Chapter, Sons of American Revolution; past president, National Retail Credit Association; past president, Retail Credit Men's Association of Pittsburgh, and now credit manager of Frank & Seder, is in favor of the manufacturers' sales tax, not as a supplementary tax, but as a substitute tax for the federal income tax as now administered. He said:

"If the manufacturers' sales tax could be regulated to prevent profit accumulation on sales subsequent to the payment of the tax by the manufacturer—and provided the manufacturers' sales tax is not merely an addition to the already multitudinous taxes, including the obnoxious, easily evaded, class favoring inequitable income tax, it would be a good thing.

HELD RECOVERY AID

"As I understand it, the original proponants of the manufacturers' sales tax intended that it should eliminate all other forms of national taxation, and if put into effect on that basis it would be just and equitable and assist in the recovery program. The tax should of course, not apply on food products, clothing and medicine.

"The manufacturers' sales tax has a reasonable appeal because the man who can afford to spend the most pays the most tax on the same basis as the man who uses the public highways the most, pays proportionately more gasoline tax for the upkeep of the highways than the man who uses them less."

Congress Can Now Go and Play With Three Little Shells

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

"Watch the wheels go round, gentlemen." Dick said. "We have nothing to hide."

That speech sounds strangely familiar. The last time we heard it was from a man with three little shells and a white bean.

Remember, gentlemen, this is no catch-penny affair, fake or humbug, but a scientific exhibition of mechanical skill. This little marvel and myself have traveled three times around the world. I am no fly-by-night or will-of-the-wisp. I give you for reference the Corn Exchange Drover's Bank. The cane you ring is the cane you can get. Anybody else?

One question, Dick. Do the congressmen shell or do the congressmen play?

FIGHT IN COURT TO GET CHILD

Questions of jurisdiction in deciding which court, Allegheny or Cambria County, has the right to say who shall have possession of Henry Martin Boschert, 8, of Johnstown, will be argued in this county March 17.

The late Judge John D. Shafer gave the mother, Ruth Gardner Boschert, of 1265 Franklin street, Johnstown, custody of the child when he was an infant. Recently the father, Martin Boschert, of 1239 North Highland avenue, filed habeas corpus proceedings to obtain custody, alleging that his wife's stepfather, James Cook, Jr., of 245 Luzerne street, Johnstown, has possession of the child. Attorney Kivie Wolf represents Boschert in the action.

Slips on Tracks, Seriously Injured

A man, believed to be Patsy Deleno, of Elizabeth, is in a serious condition in the McKeesport Hospital today suffering injuries received when he slipped and fell on the tracks of the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad, near Elizabeth, last night.

A twig on which he fell pierced his eye and entered his brain, according to hospital authorities.

NOT FOLLOWING FORD MOVE TO OWN PLANTS

Threat to Industry Due to Code Prices Remains

Steel leaders do not expect automobile makers to follow the lead of Henry Ford in building plants to make their own material.

They admit that such a general movement appeared to be highly probable a few weeks ago when the motor car industry was protesting vigorously against new price schedules put into effect under the NRA code.

General Motors is known to have been dickering with the Corrigan-McKinley Steel Company for the purchase of its plants. Following many stormy conferences with steel men, however, this plan has been dropped, it has been learned on good authority.

THREAT TO INDUSTRY

The fact remains that the prospect of automobile companies either building their own steel plants or buying plants, remains as a threat over the steel industry.

Before the adoption of the steel code, automobile makers and other large steel users paid lower prices than small steel consumers. The code put all steel buyers, whether they need 100 tons or 100,000 tons, on the same basis as far as prices are concerned.

Late Saturday it was admitted that the Ford Motor Company had placed orders with the United Engineering and Foundry Company, of Pittsburgh, for a blooming mill, continuous sheet mill and cold rolling mills to be erected at River Rouge. The project will cost between $8,000,000 and $10,000,000. A large share of this will be spent with United Engineering and Foundry for machinery.

FORD STILL IN MARKET

Ford has had his own steel plants at River Rouge for many years, but these never been large enough to supply all his requirements. He still will have to buy much of his steel.

While steel men will discuss the row with the automobile industry and its threat to make its own steel privately, they are unwilling to be quoted.

The motor car builders are among their biggest customers and the subject naturally is a delicate one which they do not want revived now that a truce appears to have been arranged with Ford, the only Detroiter to build a new steel plant.

WIFE BEATEN, HUSBAND HELD

Walton was held for investigation by Magistrate Howard M. McNutt after a hearing in Morals Court yesterday.

Police were called by neighbors when Mrs. Walton fled to the home of Mrs. George London, 322 Brookside avenue, police said. Dr. E. M. Waller was called and, after an examination, he ordered her to the South Side Hospital.

Walton said his wife had suffered a nervous breakdown and he tried to "shake some sense into her head."

9 Slot Machines Seized by Police

South Side police reported they seized seven nickel slot machines and two boxes of parts in an automobile in the 2300 block, Brownsville road, early today, shortly, they say, after they had confiscated two others in Rabbit's barber shop, 2648 Brownsville road.

Police said the machines in the car were owned by Peter A. Rabuzzi, of 2930 Elroy avenue, Brentwood.

10 YEARS PEACE FORECAST BY MUSSOLINI

foils. They are not decorative. They are for use. But they have not been used for some time. Signor Benito Mussolini, capo del governo, minister of foreign affairs, the interior, war, navy, aviation, corporations, chief of staff of the Fascist militia, Il Duce, brains and will of Italy, is too busy these days for sport.

He sits in a loose black suit, soft white shift, his tie slackened off for comfort, and he looks as though he had been sitting there working for the last 48 hours. An official of the Foreign Office presses two last papers from a 10-pound stack of documents on his attention. Mussolini listens with wide eyes, interrupts, says two short sentences and the official leaves.

Without a pause, as though his visitor were another link in the continuous chain that keeps the Duce in closer touch with events than perhaps any other head of a state in Europe, he leans forward and begins to put questions.

EYES ON EUROPE

"Will war come in Europe?" It is the question that in the last analysis has kept Mussolini at his desk overtime, not only today but for the last year. No man has a better grasp of the menaces that threaten Europe. In every capital of the continent Mussolini has trusted personal as well as official representatives who telephone the chief if necessary nightly, and for hours at a time. No newspaper can approximate the volume of inside information that daily reaches Mussolini's ears. Other nations have intelligence services divided among different departments. Italy's men abroad are there for just one desk: The Duce's. His power is based on three things: His information, his judgment, his will.

All three came into play when he ceased asking and began answering questions. "How long, your excellency, do you think it possible to forecast that peace in Europe wil be kept?"

"For several years," he replied, not optimistically. Then, recovering, he added:

"Yes, I think now that the peace will be kept in Europe for at least 10 years. The signing of the Polish-German non-aggression pact for 10 years was most important. The question of the Polish Corridor was most menacing and was in the past possibly the most dangerous. Now it has been settled for at least 10 years."

FAITH IN PACT

"I think we can take the pact at its face value. They will keep it. Hitler will keep his side of the bargain and Poland hers. That means there will be no war over the Polish Corridor," I asked:

"But how about Austria? Does your excellency think that Austria will keep her independence and if she does not, then is there no danger of war?"

The foreign minister of Italy stood up. Also the minister of war, navy and aviation, and the chief of staff of the Fascist militia. Half a million soldiers of the Italian army, a quarter of a million Italian militiamen stood in the background.

Fifteen hundred military airplanes cruised around overhead. Somewhat nearer the desk stood the 40,000 men of the motorized army corps in Bolzano.

SPEAKS FOR AUSTRIA

Away off up north the 2,500,000 men of the German Stormtroops, S. S., and Steel Helmets sang the Horst Wessel Lied. In the middle distance a minute figure on a tiny platform listened to the singing brown shirts, looked at the Duce and with an Austrian accent asked "Well?"

Mussolini, with a vigorous blow of his fist in the air above his head, declared:

"Austria must keep her independence as a state. For more than a year people have been saying every week that the Austrian government would fall. It has not fallen yet. And it will not fall."

At this point the singing up north stopped and everybody listened:

"The Germans know our attitude. They know the attitude of all the great powers. This attitude is that Austria is an independent country and must be maintained independent and that no move by any other country to violate its independence will be tolerated. And we can also forecast that such a move will not be made," I asked:

"But what effective action could be taken by any of the great powers if the National Socialists were to come to power within Austria herself, without overt action from abroad?"

DIVIDED BY CENTURIES

The foreign minister of Italy countered:

"But who can say with certainty that the majority of the people in Austria are against the present regime? And that the majority of them are for the anschluss? Remember that history has shown that the Austrians and the Germans, despite their common language and perhaps also race, have been divided by centuries of separate existence, have been frequently at war with one another, and moreover had fundamentally different cultures.

"But the interests of Europe as a whole are bound up in the maintenance of Austrian independence. Any development which would threaten that independence would be of equal interest to all the great powers.

"It is not a question for Italy alone. On the contrary, between us and the north lie the Alps. The Alps are nature's most effective frontier. They are hard to climb and it is impossible to scale them if they are strongly defended. Not every country has such, you might say God-given bounderies."

The entire Italian government again made a fighting gesture:

"It is in the interest of my country as it is in the interest of all Europe to perpetuate the independence of Austria, and I shall continue to act in that direction. Italy has given the best proof of her interest and of her determination. She will continue to do so."

BOLZANO ITALIAN

Among the books piled informally on the low shelf behind the Duce's desk is an antique volume issued in 1744 and containing a diploma granted by Maria Theresa to the City of Bolzano. Bolzano, chief city of the South Tyrol, chief city of the provinces "redeemed" by Italy from the late Austro-Hungarian empire, was until 1918 German. It is now Italian. But the Duce delights to point out that even Maria Theresa's diploma was printed in Italian as well as in German.

Nobody knows what Mussolini could do to prevent Austria from going Nazi from within. The best observers are unable to guess what could be done by any outside power to prevent a domestic development in another state if it were to come without overt outside pressure. It is true that the Polish-German non-aggression pact did make peace in the East seem certain for years to come. But what effect did it have on German prospects for getting Austria?

The Duce did not say so, but it is clear to Rome as well as to Vienna that the Germans by making a truce with Poland, have protected their backs, and now have their hands free to work on the amalgamation of the German-speaking peoples in the South. Yet whatever the possibilities may be, the Duce certainly has made plain his will.

For the future of Europe much depends on how Italy eventually will decide to go: With Germany or against Germany. For the peace of the future everything depends on whether Germany rearms without limit or rearms within limits. In this interview the Duce has expressed views that may prove of historical importance. Tomorrow the report of his views will be continued.

PASTOR SHIELDS DAUGHTER

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—In the shelter of her clergyman father's arms, Norma Millen, 19-year-old runaway bride of a man accused of bank robbery and murder, today sought refuge from the nightmare of gunplay, arrest and imprisonment that suddenly descended upon her in a New York hotel.

While her husband, Merton Millen, and his brother, Irving, sat in guarded cells in police headquarters, awaiting extradition to Massachusetts to face charges of murder of two policemen during the holdup of the Needham Trust Company, Norma sobbed in her father's arms, the picture of contrition. She wept:

"Daddy, I knew you would come! I knew it. I need you so."

The reproaches he had recently uttered when his beautiful daughter eloped from her fashionable home with a man whom police now describe as one of the most cold-blooded desperadoes in the East were suddenly silenced as the Rev. Norman Brighton, pastor of the Church of Christian Disciples at Natiok, Mass, clasped Norma to him.

White House Dog Raids Table, Faces 'Trial'

The setter pup got into the breakfast room of the servants' quarters and cleaned up every plate of food before he was discovered.

Taking it with a laugh, the President said he is considering what punishment to mete out.

PRISONERS WIN CLEMENCY

HARRISBURG, Feb. 26.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot today pardoned three Pennsylvania prisoners and commuted the sentences of 20 others. Two applications for clemency were refused.

Among those for whom sentences were commuted were these from Allegheny County: Paola Cappadone, Allegheny, deported; Robert Landymore, Bronislaw Oplak. Clemency was refused Steve Ferko and Joseph Philip Washington, both from Allegheny County.

Among applications to be heard by the pardon board March 21 are Walter L. Reinecker, Allegheny County, maintaining and conducting a lotter; Wilbert Shaffer and Andrew A. Slupek, robbery.

OFFICER HELD AS INTRUDER

James C. Long, 39, of 2250 Almont street, a special Pittsburgh police officer, was held on a disorderly conduct charge by Wilkinsburg police after he is alleged to have been discovered sleeping on the kitchen floor of a Wilkinsburg home early today.

Police Chief James Harris, of Wilkinsburg, said that Long was arrested when police answered a call to the home of Mrs. Minnie Collins, of 419 Barnes street. Mrs. Collins told police that she found Long asleep on her kitchen floor when she and her son returned from the railroad station, where they had gone to see a relative off early today.

Chief Harris said that Long carried a special officer's badge, police box keys and an empty pistol holster.

Service Station Man Held Up By Pair

Two armed men held up Lew Smith, attendant at the Penn service station in Library road, near Castle Shannon, and rifled the cash register of $38 early today, according to county detectives.

"We keep Stockings Smooth fitting this way"

"Men can't help noticing when stockings fit badly—wrinkle and bag—when seams keep riding around," popular girls say.

"It looks so careless! And it is, for it needn't happen. We keep stockings smooth fitting always. The secret is simple . . . we wash stockings each night with Lux."

Lux preserves the elasticity stockings have when they're new, so after stretching they spring back into shape. Stockings given gentle Lux care fit beautifully, cling like a second skin! They don't go into runs so often, either. The silk gives, instead of breaking, under strain.

Why not follow the Lux way? Avoid cake-soap rubbing—avoid soaps with harmful alkali. These weaken elasticity. Lux has no harmful alkali—it saves the elasticity that makes stockings fit and wear.

The 2-Minute Lux Way

Saves the E-L-A-S-T-I-C-I-T-Y that makes stockings Fit and Wear

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Happenings

In Mayfair
—With—
Patricia Pitt

When Elizabeth McGinley, daughter of Mrs. Holden McGinley, of Milton, Mass., and of Thomas Atterbury McGinley, of Sewickley Heights, marries Richard Borden, of Fall River, Mass., March 17, she'll have as her only attendant her debutante sister, Gertrude McGinley.

Gertrude was presented with Marion Mackie to society during the holidays at a ball in the Pittsburgh Club, given by the Thomas Atterbury McGinleys. And Elizabeth was presented to Pittsburgh society several years ago.

The wedding will be a small house ceremony with the Rev. Vivian T. Pomeroy officiating. William Sheldon, of Milton, Mass., will be Mr. Borden's best man. There'll be no ushers.

Elizabeth McGinley is a member of the Junior League and of the Vincent Club. Mr. Borden, her fiance, is the son of Spencer Borden, of "Interlachen," Fall River.

Pittsburgh Debs Attend Yale Prom

A long list of fortunate young Pittsburgh girls who attended the Yale junior prom Friday night and the subsequent gaities this past week-end I enumerated Friday.

This morning I've received news of more of our younger set who attended prom week at New Haven. Mary Gordon, one of the debs, attended as the guest of James H. Childs, Jr.; Annette Chester, another deb, as the guest of James C. Oliver, Jr., of Sewickley; Elizabeth Crampton, of Sewickley, as the guest of Palmer S. Chambers, Jr., of Sewickley, and deb Alice Brown, of Sewickley, with fellow townsman John Holmes.

League Will Give Marionette Shows

The first of the Junior League's "paid performance" marionette shows will be given Wednesday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in the Frick Training School, and will be repeated Saturday morning, March 10, in St. Stephen's parish house, Sewickley. These two are the only paid performances of "The Capture of Mr. Static" and of "The Three Little Pigs," and therefore the only ones open to the public.

Previous performances have been free, given for children in the public schools in the poorer districts.

In "The Capture of Mr. Static," Mrs. J. Kennedy Beeson will be Johnnie; Bettie Dunlap, Princess Soundwave; Mrs. Henry Scott, Jr., Mr. Static, and Mrs. Rhodes Quaile, Bluff, the dog.

In "The Three Little Pigs," Marthy McKelvy is the wolf; Alice Rust, the first little pig; Mrs. Edward King Thompson, the second, and Mrs. Francis G. Ferrabee, the third.

Eliza Boyd, Mrs. Arthur P. Woolfolk and Alice Rust helped recostume the marionettes; Lucile Todd and Margaret Brainard are in charge of props; Mrs. James C. McKay plays the piano accompaniment.

Mrs. Rhodes Quaile is chairman of the League's Children theater committee; Mrs. John McKelvy, vice chairman, and Mrs. Woolfolk, treasurer.

A social event the historically-minded will attend this week is the centennial dinner the Historical Society of Western Pennsylvania is planning for tomorrow night in the University Club.

Mrs. William Reed Thompson, Mrs. Franklin C. Irish, Mrs. Harmar D. Denny, Miss Mathilda Patterson, Mrs. W. H. Stevenson and Miss Elizabeth Demarest are among the committee members arranging the dinner.

Woman's City Club Lists 11 Events

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

No less than 11 events are listed on the March calendar by the Woman's City Club. For Saturday there's another of those delightful bridge afternoons at which there is no fee for members and only a small one for guests and at which cards and tallies are supplied and tea is served.

Mrs. Taylor Allderdice is going to present "March Interests at Carnegie Institute" with slides as the art lecture on Tuesday evening, the sixth. Because of many requests for a talk on money, the current events committee has asked Miss Effie Walker, assistant professor in the history and political science department of Pennsylvania College for Women, to discuss the government's monetary policy. This she will do at luncheon on March 14.

The Irish cabaret in the Chatterbox on March 17 is, of course, the big gala event of the month and, of the year, too, for that matter. An Irish wedding, specialty dancers, music, bridge, a grab bag, tea, and possibly general dancing will all go into the making of this affair.

For the March Sunday musicale (it's on the eighteenth) Miss Anne Griffiths will present Gertrude Blenko, soprano; Edith White, contralto; Reed Kennedy, baritone, and Helen Machette, piano, as soloists, and Grace Blenko Martin and Miss Machette as accompanists.

New and unusual features will characterize the musicale luncheon on the twenty-first when Andrey Avinoff, director of Carnegie Museum, will present a program of Russian numbers and Mme. Suzanne Karpova will direct a group of Russian dances.

Mrs. H. Allen Machesney, co-chairman with Mrs. George Phelps Rose, of the drama department, will preside and direct a group reading at the drama meeting March 27. Miss Karen Fladoes, Mrs. W. F. Andrews, Miss Emily Wilson, Mrs. Berne Stenger and Miss Ethel Ryman will again sponsor one of the most enjoyable monthly features—the buffet supper on the twenty-eighth.

And after supper the library department will present Mrs. Edward O. Tabor in a costume recital of folk lore and songs. Mrs. Edwin F. Scheetz, chairman of the book review group, will review "The Journey of the Flame," by Antonio de Fierro Blanco, at the book review luncheon, March 31.

Auxiliary Prepares For B'nai B'rith Week

An important part in plans for B'nai B'rith week, March 9 to 15, in celebration of the ninetieth anniversary of the national organization will be taken by the Ladies' Auxiliary to Pittsburgh Lodge, No. 44, Mrs. I. A. Melnick, president of the Auxilary, is vice chairman for the week.

The auxiliary will sponsor a tea at the Y. M. & W. H. A. on March 10, when Leonard S. Levin will speak, and will also be active in arranging for the concert by Gertrude Weider, contralto, on March 14.

East Liberty Choral To Meet Wednesday

A meeting of the East Liberty Woman's Club Choral will be held Wednesday at the home of Mrs. A. T. Ruttencutter, South Lexington avenue. A board meeting is slated for March 8 in the home of the junior president, Mrs. R. Parke Marshall, Winterton street.

Mrs. Phillips S. Beese, senior president, is giving her home in North Beatty street, for a card party on the evening of March 20. Mrs. H. C. Good is taking reservations.

Tuesday Musical Club's Spring Program to Be Given March 6

The annual spring program of the Tuesday Musical Club is set for Tuesday, March 6, in Memorial Hall, and is in charge of Jessie Yuille Yon and Elizabeth Knox Irwin. Mabel King, contralto, will sing a group of German songs with Grace Hall as accompanist, Mary Redmond, violin; Christine Adams Jones, 'cello; Marie Caveney Coolahan, piano, will play a Schubert trio, Hilda MacMillen, soprano, is down for a group of miscellaneous numbers, with Beulah Taylor Marston at the piano.

Completing the program Georgia Orwig, pianist, will play Concerto No. 20 by Mozart, with the club's string ensemble, under the baton of Ruth Thoburn Knox accompanying.

Mrs. Lewis E. Huseman heads the ticket committee for the club's annual bridge-benefit to be held tomorrow in the Hotel Schenley. On the committee are Mrs. B. O. Austin, Miss Helen Bigge, Mrs. William Bigge, Jr., Mrs. Sidney L. Benedito, Mrs. Ray H. Finger, Mrs. Charlotte Gregg Hoe, Mrs. Charles T. Ingham, Mrs. Frank Kitzmiller, Mrs. Edward B. Lee, Mrs. John H. Lauer, Mrs. Walter P. Mays, Mrs. A. Harvey McFerren, Mrs. Mary E. Mulhattan, Mrs. Marion Murdoch, Mrs. William H. Oetting, Mrs. Sidney J. Ratcliffe, Mrs. Will A. Rhodes, Jr., Mrs. Hazel Peck Spear, Miss Charlotte Suliot, Mrs. W. A. Weldin, Mrs. Lewis E. Young, Mrs. William B. Bothwell, Mrs. Frank D. Newbury, Mrs. J. E. Roth and Mrs. A. E. Duckham.

Mrs. J. Kennedy Irwin, in charge of baked goods, has these aides: Miss Sara Siebert, Mrs. William B. Akin, Mrs. Edna Black, Mrs. Mae Kober Ladley, Mrs. William Murdoch, Mrs. W. H. Oetting, Mrs. H. J. Horner, Mrs. Hays M. Junkin, Mrs. Jacob Simpson Payton, Mrs. Frank Pierson, Mrs. J. E. Roth, Mrs. Maurice Vilsack and Mrs. J. B. Townley.

Masquerade Ball To Be Given by Sisterhood

A Purim masquerade ball is being planned by the Beth Shalom Sisterhood for Wednesday evening in the Sisterhood Ballroom, Beacon and Shady avenues.

Mrs. Charles Mandelblatt is general chairman.

The regular meeting of the Sisterhood is set for this evening in the ballroom. An illustrated travelogue will be given in colors by Victor Paul Kolasinski, traveler, lecturer and artist reporter. Mr. Kolasinski will take his audience around the world to the accompaniment of music by Ruth Pearlman Goldstein.

Missionary Officers To Meet on Wednesday

A conference for presidents and treasurers will mark the February meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Pittsburgh Presbytery on Wednesday morning in the First Church, Sixth avenue. A prayer service is scheduled to precede the general meeting.

McDonald Junior Choral To Entertain Veterans

The McDonald Junior Woman's Club Choral will give a cantata for the entertainment of the patients at the United States Veterans' Hospital, Aspinwall, on Friday evening.

Mary M. Walker's Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Walker, of Fordham avenue, Brookline, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Mary Margaret Walker, to Jules La Barthe, Jr., of Pittsburgh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jules La Barthe, of Berkeley, Cal.

Miss Walker attended the University of Pittsburgh, and Mr. La Barthe is a graduate of both the University of Pittsburgh and the University of California.

They are planning an early spring wedding.

* * *

Mrs. F. A. Wield will entertain members of the Wilkinsburg Triangle Club Thursday afternoon in her home, Walnut street. C. H. Lehman will speak on "Modern Trends in Marketing." Assisting the hostess will be Mrs. J. S. Scobey and Mrs. R. F. Wolfe.

Tilt of Hat, Set of Gown Ends Fair, Fat, Foolish Look, Elsa Advises

Elsa Maxwell, a familiar figure in the social worlds, not only of Paris and New York, but also of Florida and the Riviera, is a leader of the smart set in more ways than one. Her "scavenger parties" set the pace for novelty recently and she is noted as one of the best "party men" in fashionable circles.

By ELSA MAXWELL
As Told to Universal Service

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—I am fat—and frank about it.

I do not believe in dieting all the joy out of life, but I refuse to resign myself to looking fair, fat and foolish. Instead of blushing about my weight, I believe in making the best of it.

I think it's all in the way the larger woman wears her clothes. It's not the dress itself, the hat nor the coat—it's the way she puts them on. The tilt of a hat is more important than its shape, the set of a frock more than its style. My hat, for example, is slanted with an eye to the generous chins underneath, my cape to avoid a too revealing fitted line.

That's all the difference there is between the woman who heaves ponderously into a theater or opera box, and the woman who sweeps in majestically, sure of herself and her audience. It's all in dressing your mind, as well as your body. They may weigh exactly the same, wear the same clothes, even arrange their hair the same way, yet one woman will look dull, commonplace and dowdy, while the other will be chic, distinguished, brilliant.

To illustrate the influence of one's mental attitude on one's appearance, it is only necessary to mention Helen Hayes, who is only five feet and a very few inches, and who nevertheless plays one of the tallest queens in history as Mary of Scotland. She gives the impression of queenly height on the stage by "thinking tall," as she herself expresses it.

To paraphrase Miss Hayes, French women have been taught to "think beautiful" almost from their cradles, not having been "born beautiful," as are most American girls.

An hour is not too much for a Frenchwoman to spend in selecting a pair of gloves, and a three-hour toilette for a grand occasion is by no means unusual. American women, who have the loveliest faces and figures in the world, too often buy beautiful clothes and then slap them on like so many rags.

Past Matrons to Sponsor Card Parties and Dance

Past matrons of North Side Chapter No. 382, Order of the Eastern Star, are sponsoring a card party and luncheon at Spear's on March 6, and a dance and card party at Malta Hall, North avenue, on Saturday of this week.

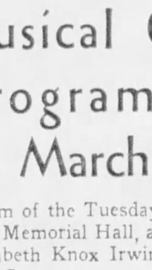
Daughters of 1812 To Be Guests at Luncheon

Mrs. John Howard Phillips and her mother, Mrs. Peter Firestone Vollnogle, will give a luncheon for the Lt. Col. George Croghan Chapter, United States Daughters of 1812 at the Congress of Clubs, Monday. A regular meeting of the chapter will follow. Mrs. Charles C. Thoms, the president, will present the speakers, Mrs. R. V. Hannan, who will explain "The Cause of the War of 1812," and Mrs. George Warrick, the chapter historian, who will tell about "The Whisky Insurrection."

Mrs. Joseph Evans Baldridge, organizer of the chapter, has been appointed by the state president, Miss Hazel Graham Glessner, to serve as chairman of pages for the annual state conference to be held at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, Philadelphia, March 15 and 16.

Through the Spyglass & VIEWING THE NEW

You little shoppers who want to learn the names of the shops whose items are listed in this column day by day . . . call GRANT 6500 . . . and ASK FOR THE SPYGLASS. Or send in a stamped self-addressed envelope for your reply. THE SPYGLASS is always on the alert, peering out new "finds" . . . and you will be answered promptly!

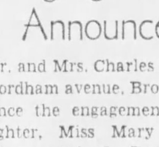


* * *

Hardly anyone these days who hasn't a little place in her heart for bridge. And of course, this means bridge parties . . . and bridge parties mean bridge prizes . . . and there you are! Or rather . . . here we are with news about bridge prizes at nice low sums which appeal to purses worn thin with the Winter's wear and tear. So . . .

Thank the shop which is showing dainty little silk moire cigaret cases in black and other colors with a thin metal piping at the bottom of the flap. At 65c. And a black or brown bakelite cig box, square, with a hand-painted medallion on the lid. (Acceptable to living rooms of non-smokers as well) 50c. Or tickle the fancy of the winner with one of the new Easter-egg-like measuring tapes. You think you're getting a gaily painted Easter egg with a fly sitting on top of it . . . when in reality the "fly" walks away, and brings out the tape. Fit for the neatest workbasket. 65c.

* * *



Friend husband may prefer to pick out his own shirts . . . but at least he will be grateful for a tip on where $5 ones have tumbled down to the clearance price of $1.25.

Stiff bosom chaps, these, with an attachable collar to match the bosom and cuffs. In good shades and patterns . . . but an incomplete size range naturally, due to their knockdown price for clearance.

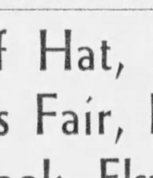
P. S. We'd suggest you make it snappy if you want to get any of these—there aren't TOO many as it is.

* * *

Waterproofed silk toilet bags . . . you who do any traveling will fall down and give praises for these at 45c. Snug and compact, they house two capacious bottles and a jar . . . and might be looked upon as an advance thought for vacationing later. In several shades . . . with especially good blues, light and dark.

* * *

Now we go in for a little talk about royalty! Because a certain spot in town has gotten itself a complete line of toiletries wearing the crowned head of Prince M.—COMPLETE, we said . . . which has been pretty well un-findable short of New York up 'till now.



We particularly cite for your hall of toiletry fame, the boxload containing a large cake of super-super soap . . . plus four largish bottles of bath essence—pine, verbena, lavender, and rose geranium (than which there is nothing than-whicher!) It's $1.50 for the set, and a very good $1.50's worth we might add. Three drops of the bath essence in your tub leave enough fragrance to keep you sniffing delightedly for days! And speaking of sniffing . . . DO get yourself a smell of the sachets this same house puts out! They're in pastel satin . . . two sizes (65c and $1) . . . and make you feel very much Imperial-highness every time you open your lingerie drawer where these are kept! (And they're long-winded babies . . . holding out for some 6 months, we're told!)

Great, bold black and white plaids . . . audacious red plaids . . . blues to supply the lost chord in your spring song. The bags are all that bags should be . . . inside and out . . . and cost $2.95. Their matching scarfs are the plaid hope of many a suit, $1.95. And when they get together . . . well!

The committee folks have so many garden objets d'art that they don't know what to do. And they're going to have to return some of the articles, for they simply can't use all they have!

Glances Into the Realms of Domesticity and Romance

By MARION BRUNOT

Woman Objects to Insincerity Shown After a Death

You're pestered with funerals, sister.

You want your bouquets while you're still kicking.

And who can blame you?

Yet there is a certain satisfaction for us in sending our dear ones off to the unknown in good fashion.

We carry it over from the ancients. Imagine what must have happened in early Egypt. And be grateful that the living are given the "eats."

Then there are those who want their ashes put in an urn, and stood on the living room mantel. Or cast out of some loved-and-left's hands as they stand on the deck of a big liner. Yes, it is always a "big liner."

You say:

Dear Miss Brunot:

Just how do you feel about funerals?

Personally, I think they are the bunk—and if my wishes are carried out, no one will have to shed any tears, or buy any flowers after I am dead. Neither will any fond relatives be compelled to miss a day's work to attend the funeral services, nor any preacher be asked to eulogize about me. And those who come out of curiosity—to see how I look, what kind of a casket I am in, or how the house is furnished—will find a little card tacked on the outside of the door with the following:

Those who knew and loved me came to see me while I lived—

The rest have come too late!

PAID MOURNERS

We laugh when we read about the paid mourners of past ages—but was there half as much hypocrisy in that as there is in those who come and weep over your dead body and pretend they are sorry, when deep down in their hearts they are rejoicing that you have passed on to the great unknown? At least the motive of the paid mourner was one that everybody understood. Relatives, even to twenty-second cousins, are out in full array at the funeral of the rich man with whom they claim relationship—all hoping that they will be remembered when the will is read. The poor man's body goes unclaimed and is buried in a pauper's grave.

And why do relatives insist on cluttering up the house when someone is dead? When mother died, the responsibility of everything fell upon my father, my sister, and myself. Besides that, I had a youngster who was critically ill. And yet, relatives who hadn't been inside our house for years, insisted on staying with us day and night.

DEPRIVED OF PRIVACY

After being up with mother before she died, with an endless procession of nurses, doctors, telephone calls, etc., we wanted more than anything else in the world, to be left alone—to be away from all confusion. And yet, from 6 o'clock in the morning until 12 at night, there was an endless stream of relatives and friends—weeping, chattering, laughing, talking, advising, suggesting, asking questions, banging doors, tramping from the top of the house to the bottom—not allowing you one moment of privacy, or one moment alone with the one you loved.

Flowers are beautiful and lovely if they come from someone who loves you—but after you are dead, it is usually a case of "have to" or "respect." How many working people have been forced to contribute for flowers for someone they have never seen, or for some employer who treated them miserably and paid them starvation wages? How many organizations still owe the floral shop for the flowers they sent to a member who died over a year ago? How many relatives have given a gorgeous bouquet, simply because they didn't want to be outdone by another relative? How many people shop around half a day to see where they can get the most flowers for the least money? How many people look to see if their flowers arrived all right before they look at the corpse—and then fuss if the card has been removed?

Mother hated all show and hypocrisy, and I know if she could have opened her eyes and seen the gorgeous flowers that surrounded her, she wouldn't have been the least bit impressed.

And then, after the service is over, there is the question of going to the cemetery. Who is to ride in which car? And whose name will be called first? And which car will follow the mourners' car? Why, it's worse than seating the diplomats at a presidential banquet. Aunt Anne won't ride in the same car with Uncle John, because he cheated her out of some money years ago, and they haven't spoken since. Cousin Mary is offended because they forgot to call her name, and refuses to go at all.

What do you think of this sham, Miss Brunot?

DISGUSTED.

FLOWERS WELCOME

You are like the late Theodore Roosevelt. He said he wanted to go out to the wilds and die like the king of beasts, on a lonely rock, near the sound of the sea and the howl of the coyotes. Or perhaps it is Hiawatha that lures you. Sailing into the setting sun, drifting out to the winds and the twittering of birds.

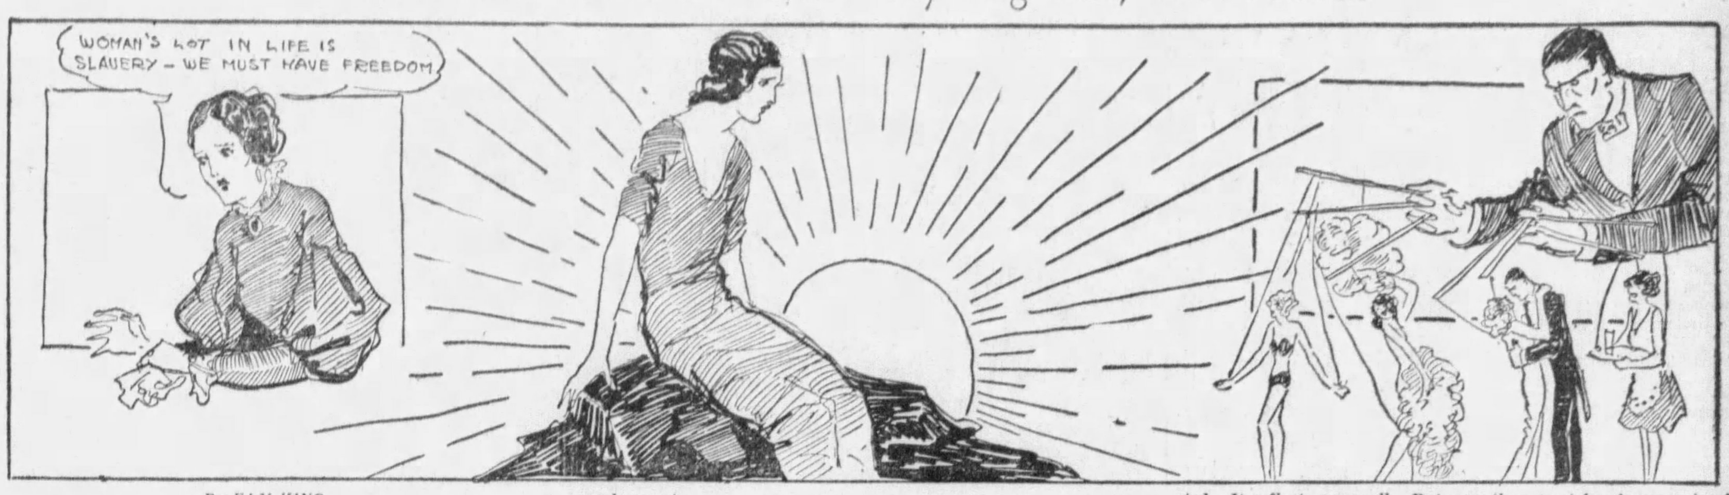
After all, most of us die and are buried as our parents were. We have feet facing the east, and await the great trumpet call. Any changes are done merely for sanitation.

Personally, I want to lie in a cemetery not too well kept, and one where the children patter across the grassy mounds. As for flowers, the more the better. I want to be smothered with them. And if an enemy slips in a bouquet, one who is glad I'm gone, I want it right up close to me.

A Christian burial will do for me. And if a preacher can't think of anything nice I've ever said or done, I hope he does not prevaricate.

Living, it has never worried me much what people were saying. But being dead, I won't be able to fight back.

'What Price Woman's Freedom?' Fay King Asks, Then Answers



By FAY KING

Women began to consider marriage and domesticity a kind of slavery, and fought for financial independence and freedom.

What have they now? Much less, I think.

We see women terrified at growing old and undesirable for employment.

Women's good opinion was once a powerful influence. Today they are afraid to voice the least resentment lest they offend men upon whom they seem to depend more than ever.

Women resent seeing other women ignobly exploited or humiliated. It reflects upon all. But now they must laugh uproariously to see some woman kicked and slapped, because this was a man's "brilliant" idea for the plot.

Women will resume their place of power again. Then bootleg love and such will not flourish so prosperously.

Eczema a Stubborn and Serious Skin Ailment

Many adults suffer from a chronic and annoying affliction of the skin known as eczema. Every one having it agrees that it is indeed a stubborn and difficult disease to cure. But it is particularly distressing to witness the sufferings of an infant afflicted with this ailment.

Dr. Copeland

The disease attacks adults and children, but is most severe when encountered in young infants. The skin is covered with scabs and crusts, constantly wet because of a persistent and watery discharge. There is intolerable itching and the child violently scratches the skin in an effort to get relief.

Though the actual cause of the disease is not known, it is believed to be due to a peculiar sensitivity to some food. Most children with eczema are sensitive to eggs, milk and cereals, and other foods rich in proteins. Of course, it is difficult to construct a diet entirely lacking in protein substances. For this reason, little relief can be offered by simple measures.

Another objection to severe dieting is that proteins, fats and carbohydrates are essential to the proper growth and development of the body. A child who is in the growing stage suffers greatly when the necessary elements are restricted or omitted from the diet. In addition to retarded growth and development, they suffer a lowered resistance and become extremely susceptible to infections and contagious diseases.

Victims of eczema should be given the food sensitivity tests. These are easily made. Milk, proteins and other food substances are scratched into the skin, to see whether irritation develops. All foods that by this test produce rash and marked irritation of the skin, must be omitted from the diet.

In addition to testing the food, I would advise that tests of other articles be made, particularly of substances that may come in contact with the skin. This is important because many cases of eczema can be traced to a sensitivity to wool or silk, or to cat and dog hair. When these substances are avoided, the victim is cured of his annoying skin inflammation.

If you are a victim of eczema or have a child who suffers from this ailment, do not be discouraged. Above all, do not be misled by the false idea that eczema is an incurable disease. The disease is curable, but only if careful study is made of the facts I have mentioned.

Mary and Noel Have Trouble Starting Machine

"What in tunket!"

Sam Ticer burst into the kitchen from the laundry, as he heard the blast of the horn from his son Jerry's car. Mrs. Ticer followed him, her round face filled with alarm.

"What do you suppose he's blowing for?" she asked. "Something must be the matter with his car."

"Whatever it is, you musn't go," I told them firmly. "Remember, Hank and Bill in Noel's car have just seen two people, whom they believe to be you two, going across the fields. In that belief they went back to Noel's car, but if they should see you now they would promptly guess the truth, give the alarm, and Noel and Mary would not be able to get away unobserved, as they have planned."

"Yes, I see your point," Mr. Ticer said, "but somebody ought to go and see what's the matter."

"Vot's matter mit my Jeem?" Katie asked, using the phraseology she invariably employs in speaking of her husband. "Now Meester Noel and Mees Mary safe away, he no need to stand guard down here any longer. Shall I tell heem go ofer und find out vot matter mit Jerry's car?"

"Yes," I decided instantly. "But call out to him loudly, just as if Mr. and Mrs. Ticer really had gone over there."

JIM PUZZLED

"Sure! I know," Katie answered, and with a fever of impatience I listened while she called to her husband.

"Jeem! Oh, Jeem!"

From a clump of lilacs near the door, where he had been standing, Jim's voice came cautiously.

"What do you want?"

"Don't you hear dot horn?" Katie demanded. "Dot means Jerry in some trouble mit dot car. Und his fader und moder, dey too tired to valk home dees night. So you get ofer dere double qveeck."

"But suppose those young folks come out here and start to follow—" Jim began, until Katie's harsh whisper silenced him.

"Vill you shut oop and do vot Meesis Graham tells you, instead of standing dere shooting your mout off like vun machine gun?" she demanded. And Jim emerged from behind the lilacs.

"I didn't know Mrs. Graham wanted to do it," he said. "I thought it was some of your dumb foolishness."

And with that strictly masculine retort Jim started toward the field at a brisk pace, while Katie and I and the Ticers fairly held our breaths until he reached there.

AVIS INTRUDES

Evidently the trouble was slight, for it was the matter of but a minute or two, after Jim reached the car, before the noise of the car advancing across the rough fields could be plainly heard. Then, with a sudden remembrance of Marion waiting on the upper floor, I rushed out of the kitchen and up the back stairs, to find Marion standing at the head of the stairs, anxiously waiting.

"They must be at the Ticers by now," I whispered.

"Then I'm off," she whispered back. "Don't let anybody see us talking together."

"I'm going back to the kitchen at once," I told her, and, turning, made my way back again to where the Ticers and Katie were excitedly discussing the flight.

The door behind me—the one leading into the dining room—suddenly opened, and Avis Arlen put her head through the aperture.

"Oh, please excuse me!" she said. "I didn't know anybody was here. I just wanted a drink of water. Oh! What?

Her eyes had fallen upon Mr. and Mrs. Ticer, and with a little squeal she turned and darted through the door.

SPRING MATERNITY GOWNS

By PRUNELLA WOOD

PROBABLY NO department of feminine fashions has been so improved and beautified as that which undertakes to make the maternity gown attractive as well as practical. Gone are the days of looping shawls and swinging coats; cleverly made skirts which can be adjusted to any figure, fichus, surplices, plastrons and berthas which drape softly over the bodice, and sleeves that help the silhouette have replaced all the curtain nonsense.

It has become the way of the world, too, for women to go about among their friends, rather than waiting at home in tea gowns to receive callers, so it is not just the house lounging type of garment that has been overtaken by all this astute designing. Tea gowns there are, a-plenty, and lovely negligees of the purely indolent type, but there are just as many or more models that will take a woman to business, shopping, or to rather high-hat evening revel.

* * *

IT IS PROBABLY not very wise of a woman to choose a maternity frock from the few which combine several colors unless some artist for lines has done the combining. Nor is it much better to go in for dazzling printed affairs that would make anyone but a sylph look a bit shapeless.

In fact, not to beat around the bush, plain colors artfully touched at neck and sleeves with some relieving flash of white or brightness is just about the best bet—navy blue for this spring, of course, and any other favorite shade that remains becoming.

* * *

LOTS OF COAT dresses are naturals as maternity costumes although their designer never thought of merchandising them in that role. A chiffon coat dress, if gracefully made, makes a very smart costume good for home or gadding purposes when there is a little sociability afoot, and if one of those new swishing taffeta petticoats is worn beneath it, it will act as a great help in preserving a balanced silhouette.

(Copyright, 1934, King Features Synd., Inc.)

The charming plastron of this daytime blue canton crepe gown is its trick and its style. A sash to match the neck bow keeps it anchored straight in front, and it is edged with plaided white mousseline.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Bidding Against a Psychic

In a recent Rubber game at a bridge club in New York City I had the pleasure of seeing a partnership reach a Slam after one of the opponents had opened the bidding with a vulnerable psychic. The partner of the Opening psychic bidder eventually doubled the Slam contract, simply on the basis of his own holding, knowing for an almost absolute certainty that his partner's bid must have been most unsound. Unfortunately for him, however, his honor strength was practically useless against the opponents' distribution, and as a result North and South scored a large plus on the hand.

West, Dealer.
East and West vulnerable.

	♠ 9 ♡ K 9 ◇ Q 10 9 5 2 ♣ A Q J 6 5
♠ Q J 10 6 5 4 2 ♡ 10 2 ◇ 8 ♣ 9 3 2	West North East South	♠ A 8 7 3 ♡ 7 6 4 ◇ K 6 ♣ K 10 8 4
	♠ K ♡ A Q J 8 5 3 ◇ A J 7 4 3 ♣ 7

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 ♠	2 ♣ (1)	Pass	3 ♡ (2)
Pass	4 ◇ (3)	Pass	5 ◇ (4)
Pass	6 ◇ (5)	Double (6)	Redouble (7)
Pass	Pass	Pass

1—North overcalls with two clubs, so that if he should find his partner with a weak hand and if he should be doubled, he can run to two diamonds.

2—The obvious bid. If partner is strong enough to overcall at the level of two there must be a game in the hand.

4—It is very close at this point whether South should bid five or six diamonds. He decided on the former course, realizing that his partner must read him for a very strong hand and a very fine diamond fit, as with an indifferent hand and only fair diamond support he could bid four hearts.

5—North recognizes his partner's very strong bidding and, despite the weakness of his own diamond suit, contracts for a Slam. He knows that his King of hearts must be a very valuable card.

6—East knows as well as anyone else at the table that his partner's Opening bid must have been a psychic. However, he feels reasonably certain that his Ace of spades will make a trick and further reasons that one or both of his two Kings, which, from the bidding, seem to be favorably located, should provide additional tricks.

7—South's Redouble is not even close. He previously adopted a conservative course in not bidding the Slam himself. Moreover he realizes that East is probably doubling on a trump trick, and he knows that since the diamond Ace is in back of the doubler this trick will probably never make.

The play of the hand was quite simple. East took a spade trick, and the Declarer eventually finessed against the diamond King and was able to spread the hand.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Breaking the 'Date'

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When one is unable to keep an engagement and writes to the man, should one give a reason? I realize that this would be misconstrued, so isn't it much better to be vague? S.

If possible, if at all possible, we should give the reason for breaking an engagement. I believe that if it is directly and honestly set forth, there will not be a misinterpretation and, even if there is, it will be better than an evasion on such an important occasion.

Hats Off!

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When a young lady removes her coat in a dentist's office, should she also remove her hat at the same time, or keep her hat on until it is time for her to be called in to be treated, and then remove it?

ANXIOUS.

Take off your coat and hat at the same time, so that you will be all ready to enter the office when the dentist is ready for you.

STOP THAT COLD TODAY!

Tomorrow May Make It Twice as Difficult to Relieve!

The time to stop a cold is before it gets started! A cold once rooted is a cold of danger! Don't waste your time and run the risk of serious complications by using makeshift methods.

Remember, a cold is an internal infection and, as such, calls for internal treatment. A cold also calls for a COLD remedy and not a preparation good for a number of other things besides colds.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is what a cold requires. It is expressly a cold remedy. It is internal and direct. It is complete in effect. It does the four things necessary. First, it opens the bowels, gently but thoroughly. Second, it combats the cold germs in the system and reduces the fever. Third, it relieves the headache and grippy feeling. Fourth, it tones the entire system and fortifies against further attack. Anything less than that is taking chances.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine contains nothing harmful and is absolutely safe to take. For more than forty years it has been the standard cold and grippe tablet of the world, the formula always keeping pace with Modern Medicine.

Every druggist sells Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine, 30c and 50c. Good druggists won't try to talk you into a substitute for the sake of a few pennies extra profit.

When you feel a cold coming on, get busy at once. Go right to your druggist for Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. Always ask for it by the full name and look for the letters L B Q stamped on every tablet.

Make this lip test

LOOK at them . . . and your cheeks, too, without make-up. Do they possess the natural glow of health, which comes from a sufficiency of rich, red blood? If they do, make-up is simple . . . if they don't, read on . . . you may find one of the reasons why your skin is not clear.

It is well to remember that you cannot have red lips, rosy cheeks, good health, energy and cheerfulness if your blood is in a run-down condition. Lack of hemo-glo-bin, the red coloring of the blood, may also indicate a weakened condition of the body . . . loss of strength . . . poor appetite.

Neglect of diet, worry, overwork, colds or sickness, frequently break down and retard the natural development of the red-blood-cells and their oxygen-carrying hemo-glo-bin.

Why not set in motion the rebuilding of those all-important blood-cells instead of procrastinating and sacrificing your appearance and the feeling of being well and fit?

S.S.S. is not just a so-called tonic . . . it is a carefully prepared tonic with special properties designed to stimulate gastric secretions, and also having the mineral elements so very, very necessary in rebuilding the oxygen-carrying hemo-glo-bin of the blood. If your condition suggests a blood and body tonic of this kind, try S.S.S. Its value has been proven by generations as well as by modern scientific appraisal.

Try S.S.S. as a part of your regular daily diet. Take it just before meals. Unless your case is exceptional, you should soon notice a pick-up in your appetite . . . your color and skin should improve with increased strength and energy.

An interesting fact about the blood is that it circulates over the entire body something like 200 times daily. On each trip it passes thru the lungs, before entering the heart, to throw off dead "air" from the tissues. It is just as important that the hemo-glo-bin, of the blood, be kept up to Nature's standard to insure that the body tissues get their oxygen and can remove the waste matter as it is to eat wholesome and nourishing food.

SPORT WORLD MOURNS PASSING OF JOHN M'GRAW

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

That the strong hopes for his recovery, inspired by his famous fighting spirit and a seeming winning rally last week in his battle for life, had been dashed again by a relapse Saturday night, did not lessen the shock the baseball world experienced in the death of John J. McGraw. The passing of the "Little Napoleon" will be mourned from one end of the diamond realm to the other, and is a heavy loss to the game in general and to the National League in particular. From his playing days as the fiery third baseman of the old champion Baltimore Orioles back in the '90's, through his remarkable managerial career of 30 years at the head of the New York Giants, a reign exceeded in length only by that of Connie Mack over the A's, and finally as vice president of the New York club, McGraw was an unrivaled outstanding figure in baseball. He was in a distinct and separate class all by himself. He held a place all his own. Nobody else could have filled it. Nobody else ever will.

John J. McGraw

Baseball lost one of its most aggressive, forceful, magnetic and colorful figures of all time when the Great Umpire called the third strike on the famous warrior of big league diamonds in Baltimore, St. Louis and New York. McGraw was the last connecting link in the National League between old and new baseball, a throwback to the red-blooded, two-fisted fighting days, when every opposing player was a bitterly hated enemy, and he will endure in history and in the memory of every fan as an individual force that did as much for the national sport as any other man ever connected with it.

FIGHTING CLUB TYPIFIES M'GRAW SPIRIT

The coming of McGraw into the National League on July 19, 1902, when he jumped from the Baltimore Americans to the Giants and took along with him Roger Bresnahan, Joe McGinnity, Dan McGann and Jack Cronin, was a great aid to the senior circuit at a critical stage of its war with the American League. McGraw built up winning clubs and gave the league color and fighting atmosphere contributed by no other individual. The fighting qualities that made the Giants the league's best drawing card in Pittsburgh and elsewhere were bred by the spirit of their leader. McGraw managerial record alone would be a monument to him. He won ten pennants and three world championships. He was the only manager except Charley Comiskey, of American Association days, ever to win four major league pennants in succession. He completed the development of the greatest of all pitchers in Christy Mathewson, gave the game its best catcher in Roger Bresnahan, and turned out many other stars from George Burns, Ross Young and Frankie Frisch to Carl Hubbell, Bill Terry and Mel Ott. A two-sided figure was McGraw. Behind his fighting front was a heart of gold. There was no more charitable man in the game. He fired players off his club, but he never dismissed them from his heart, and for years he carried on a sort of personal pension list enough needy veterans to form a league. There was only one John McGraw and under the changed conditions of the game there cannot be another. It won't be the same game without him. There is a gap in the baseball ranks that cannot be fiilled.

FOXX USES OTHER SALARIES AS ARGUMENT

In refusing to sign a contract that slices his annual salary from $16,666 to less than $12,000, after a season in which he led the American League in everything except possibly the pole vault, Jimmy Foxx quoted to Davis Walsh the pay of some other stars in the same circuit to support his stand. He pointed out that Babe Ruth will receive $35,000, though not hoping to play in more than 100 games, and at that there are some doubting Thomases who think Babe will be doing well if he even sees 100, figuring that he's going to spend the greater part of the season merely as a witness.

Jimmy Foxx

Lou Gehrig, whom Foxx outhit with .357, outslugged with 48 home runs and surpassed in run production with 167, will pull down $27,500. Some critics predict that Chuck Klein, the Philadelphia refugee, won't go well in the Cub park, but if Klein misses he'll be the most successful failure in baseball, as he'll be paid $22,500 for his efforts. Lefty Grove, a twice-a-week pitcher, is considered certain to draw at least $18,000. Foxx thinks he ought to be paid accordingly.

MORENZ FINDS GOALIES MORE EFFECTIVE

Any reduction in hockey scoring may be attributed to improved goal tending, in the opinion of Howie Morenz, of Les Canadiens. The veteran star says the goalies are far more effective today than they were two or three years ago. There was a time when they kept coming far out of the nets, but now they stay put, in the cage, Morenz says. Experience has taught them the fallacy of coming out.

Howie still skates faster than any other player. It has been said that Morenz uses the lightest skates in hockey to accentuate his speed, but this is not true. His skates are of average weight. He keep them well sharpened, and often has the blades ground between periods of a game. Howie's shoes have strong steel ankle braces, but do not differ in any other way from shoes worn by the rest of the big leaguers.

ENOUGH HOME TALENT FOR FINE PRO FIVE

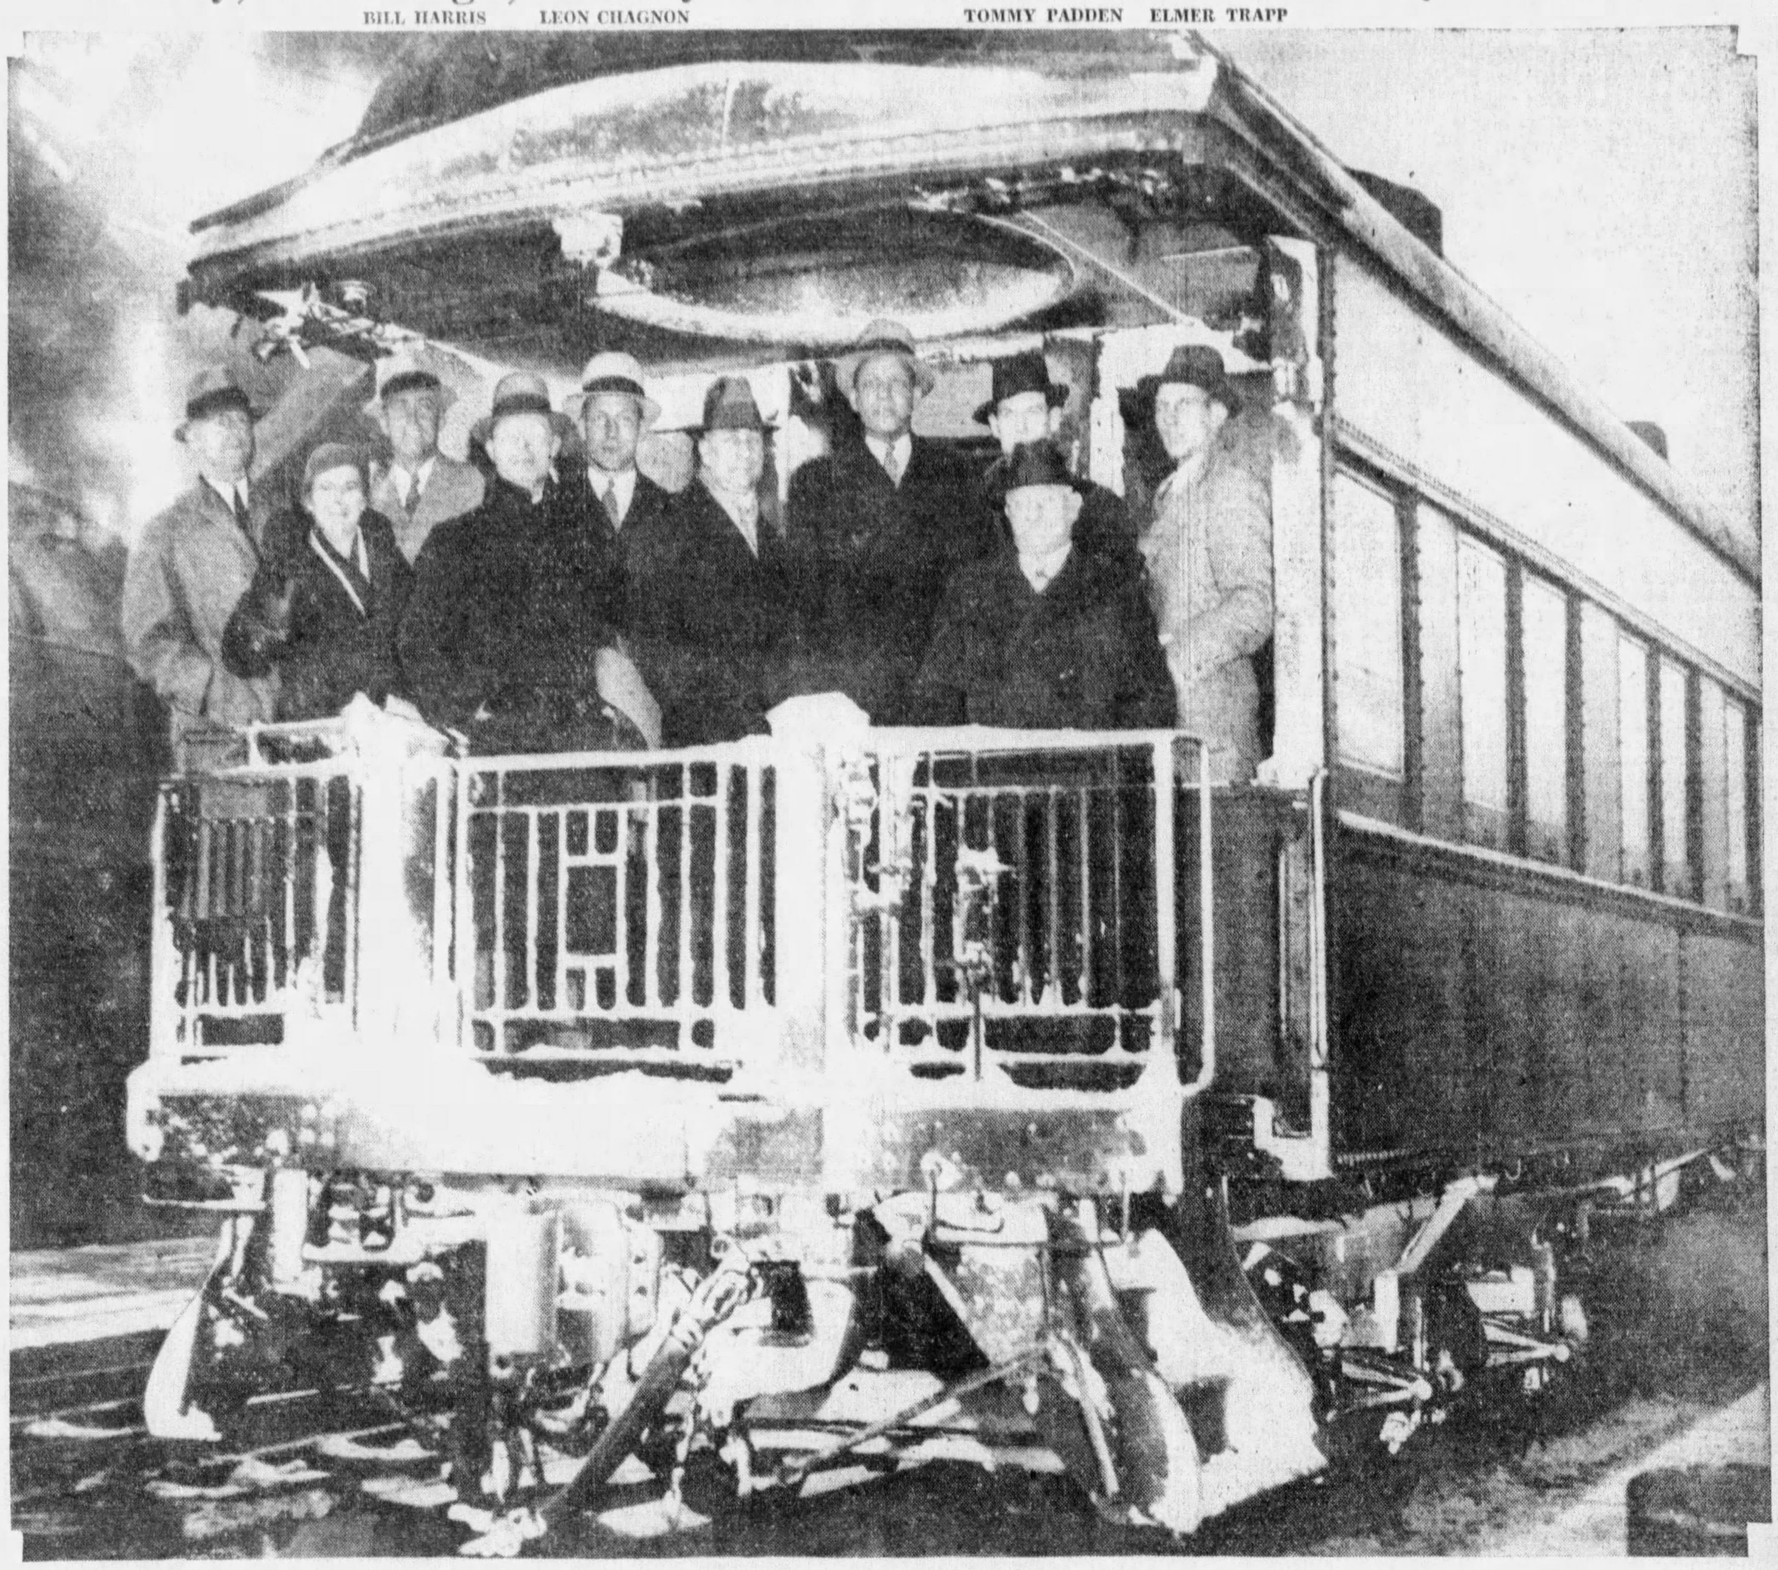
Professional basketball went over with such a bang in New York recently, when the clubs of the American Professional League staged a triple-header at Madison Square Garden for the benefit of the family of Gunboat Hudson, late sports writer, that enthusiastic critics and fans are urging that the metropolis go in for the pro game next season and have a team of its own. Buck Gefsky, local basketball veteran, writes to suggest in this connection that next season would be the right time for Pittsburgh, too, to step out with a pro quintet, to represent the city in the big league.

Charley Hyatt

Buck goes farther and points out that such excellent material has been produced and developed hereabouts that it would not be necessary to go outside the district to organize a pro team strong enough to compare favorably with any other in the country. He suggests a lineup composed of Charley Hyatt of the Tulsa Oilers, and Freddie Crum, of the McKeesport Willigs, at the forwards; Wes Bennett, of Westminster, at center, and Marty Reiter, of Duquesne, and Don Smith, of the Willigs, at the guards. All district material, making for real home representation and calculated to arouse and sustain strong local interest, Gefsky figures.

Goodby, Pittsburgh, Goodby Snow!—Pirates Head for Sunny California

BILL HARRIS LEON CHAGNON TOMMY PADDEN ELMER TRAPP



MGR. GIBSON MRS. GEORGE GIBSON W. E. BENSWANGER S. E. WATTERS CHAUFF ASTEN HONUS WAGNER

The heavy snow today delayed the departure of the advance squad of the Pittsburgh Pirates 15 minutes as it pulled out for the spring training camp at Paso Robles, Cal. The second squad leaves next Monday. Vice President Sam Watters did not accompany the party, remaining behind to run the home end of the club's affairs in the absence of President Benswanger. Harris and Chagnon are pitchers, Padden is a catcher, Trapp an infielder, Wagner coach and Asten assistant trainer. Additions will be made at Chicago tonight. This is a Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture.

FIRST PIRATE SQUAD ON WAY TO CAMP

The vanguard of the Pittsburgh Pirates, 15 in number, pulled out of the Pennsylvania Station at 10 o'clock this morning on the first lap of its journey to Paso Robles, Cal., to begin spring training.

The first squad which assembled here included Mr. and Mrs. William E. Benswanger, their young son; Miss Smith, a nurse for the youngster; Mr. and Mrs. George Gibson, Mrs. Barney Dreyfuss, George (Chauff) Asten, custodian of equipment; Pitchers Leon Chagnon, Bill Harris; Catcher Tommy Padden, Infielder Elmer Trapp, Coach Honus Wagner and baseball writers.

The party will be enlarged upon its arrival in Chicago at 7:30 tonight when Pitchers Ralph Birkofer, Hal Smith, Fred Lucas and Trainer Harry Jorgenson join the vanguard.

Only one addition will be made en route after the squad pulls out of Chicago, Heine Meine boarding the train at Omaha, Neb., tomorrow morning.

The rest of the first squad will go direct to Paso Robles from their homes. Waite Hoyt, right-hand pitcher, already is in California awaiting the arrival of his teammates. Those who will go direct are Pitcher Darrell E. Blanton, Pitcher Larry French, Coach Otis (Doc) Crandall, Catcher Earl Grace, Catcher Art Veltman, Pitcher Lloyd Johnson and Catcher Hal Finney.

There was only one absentee when the Bucs entrained here, Pitcher Bill Swift, of Scranton, having refused to join the squad because he is dissatisfied with the terms offered him. Swift is home recovering from mouth hemorrhages resulting from an extraction of a tooth. He has rejected two contracts offered him.

The squad is due to reach Paso Robles on Thursday afternoon at 1:07. The second squad will leave Pittsburgh next Monday at 9:45 a. m. and will traverse the same route as the first delegation. Lawrence Collier will be in charge of this group. He will be accompanied from Pittsburgh by Infielder Floyd Young.

Bill Hinchman, Fred Lindstrom, Tommy Thevenow and Nick Etten will join the second group at Chicago, while three additions will be made at Omaha, Neb., when the two Waners and Walter Roettger report. The rest of the squad will go direct.

Vice-president S. E. Watters, who was among those who gave the Pirates a sendoff at the station this morning, announced that he may attend the McGraw funeral rites.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF LAST SATURDAY: UNICYCLING ACROSS THE UNITED STATES—Wagering with a friend that he could accomplish this bizarre journey, Walter Nilsson set out from the Washington Bridge in New York City on an eight-foot unicycle bound for the Pacific Coast. One-hundred seventeen days later, he arrived in San Diego, having covered 3,386 miles, including many detours. Having reached the Pacific Coast at San Diego, Nilsson then toured north up the coast of California, and probably will return to New York atop his single-wheel vehicle.

TOMORROW—76 YEARS ON THE JOB

NOTABLES MAKE PILGRIMAGE TO BIER

International News Service.

PELHAM, N. Y., Feb. 26.—To the bier of John J. McGraw—the "Little Napoleon of baseball"—a hushed, solemn throng of notable figures who knew him on and off the diamond, were making their pilgrimage today as to some national shrine.

The body of baseball's greatest leader, who died yesterday in New Rochelle Hospital, lies in state in his beautiful Georgian home here.

There it will lie, viewed by hundreds, until the funeral Wednesday morning in St. Patrick's Cathedral, New York.

While his widow, prostrated by grief, lay secluded under the care of physicians, Pelham Manor authorities sent crews of laborers to drifting snows, that the path to the residence might be kept open to mourners.

From Florida Bill Terry, who succeeded McGraw as leader of the New York Giants after the latter's 30 years as pilot of his team's fortunes, was rushing northward to join the throngs who will attend the funeral.

DIES OF UREMIA, CANCER

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—(AP.)—John Joseph McGraw is dead after 61 full years of living and today, wherever baseball is loved and its heroes known his passing is mourned.

Critically ill for seven days with uremic poisoning and a cancer of the prostate gland, the fiery former leader of the New York Giants died in New Rochelle Hospital yesterday at 11:50 a. m., while a group of friends prayed in the corridor outside.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 10 a. m. from St. Patrick's Cathedral, the great, gray stone church on Fifth avenue. Final plans for the services have not been completed. The body will be taken to Baltimore immediately following the services and placed in a vault of Cathedral Cemetery for later interment.

An intestinal hemorrhage Saturday night, which came when it appeared he was fighting his way back to health, was the immediate cause of death. He never regained consciousness although he rallied for a time a few hours before his death.

DAWSON VICTOR

HOUSTON, Tex., Feb. 26.—(AP.)—Johnny Dawson, of Chicago, won the twentieth annual Houston Country Club invitation golf championship yesterday by defeating Gus Moreland, of Dallas, 3 and 3. Moreland had held the title three consecutive years. Both shot well over par.

PLAYOFF CONTESTS TODAY OPEN BUSY WEEK FOR SCHOOLS

LATROBE MEETS GREENSBURG AT NORWIN

By JULIUS LEVIN

A playoff of a postponed game in Section I of the City League this afternoon and playoffs for sectional championships in the W. P. I. A. L. and Junior W. P. I. A. L. this evening usher in a busy week for Western Pennsylvania scholastic passers.

Taylor Allderdice invades the Westinghouse High School court to meet the Silver Lakers in a Section I duel originally scheduled three weeks ago.

TEAMS IN PLAYOFF

The Section X championship of the W. P. I. A. L. hinges on the outcome of the Latrobe - Greensburg battle at Norwin High School tonight. The winner earns the right to meet Scott High School, champion of Section VIII, at Norwin on Thursday.

Out at Scott High School, North Braddock, tonight, North Braddock Junior High School meets Duquesne Junior High School to determine the championship of Section II in the Junior W. P. I. A. L. A victory for Duquesne will enable Homestead Junior High to deadlock North Braddock, necessitating another playoff to determine the championship. If North Braddock wins, it will take the title.

While the city high schools conclude their regular season tomorrow afternoon, the W. P. I. A. L. sectional champions usher in their elimination series with three games on high school floors.

The major portion of attention in the City League will center on the outcome of the Oliver-Perry game at Perry in Section II. Perry needs a victory to clinch the Section II title and the right to meet South for the local crown. If Perry loses and South Hills defeats Carrick at Carrick the two teams will be deadlocked and a play-off will be in order.

SCHOOL FLOORS CHOSEN

The three elimination games carded tomorrow will be played at Scott High School, North Braddock; Mt. Lebanon High School and Carmichaels High School.

Out at Mt. Lebanon High School, Brentwood, champion of Section XII and winner of the crown its first season as a member of the W. P. I. A. L., tangles with McDonald, representative of Section XIV. The winner of this game qualifies to meet Duquesne, champion of Section VII and defending league titleholder, at Wilkinsburg High School next Saturday.

TOURNEY OPENS

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., Feb. 26.—The ninth annual Allegheny-Kiski floor tournament gets under way tonight with four first-round games on the inaugural program. The first round will be completed tomorrow with another quartet of frays.

This year's tournament finds the Edgewood High School quintet as an entry. Springdale won the 1933 championship. Tonight's schedule follows:

Arnold vs. Oakmont.
Falls Creek vs. Vandergrift.
Aspinwall vs. Verona.
Freeport vs. Kittanning.

Y. M. H. A. AT M'CANNS

The Y. M. H. A. meets the McCann Club in an Allegheny County League game at the South Side Market House tonight. The Fintex Club, of the same league, has decided to play all of its remaining home games at Peabody High School.

McGraw, Stern Boss, Man Of Soft Sentiment

By GEORGE E. PHAIR
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 26—No figure in baseball ever stood out as prominently as the late John J. McGraw, a firebrand, a stern boss and at the same time a man of soft sentiment.

He ruled his ball clubs with a hand of iron, but all his veterans came back to him in later years to pay him their respect. And if they were broke, as many of them were, they never went away empty-handed.

Wherever he traveled in his later years with the Giants he was surrounded by old-timers, many of whom had tossed brickbats and ripe vegetables at him in bygone days, but loved him for his gallant battles on the ball field.

Mellowed by age, Mac had become a genial companion, although he still insisted on stern discipline among his ball players. His chief aversion was the nickname "Muggsy," which he always abhorred.

There was a loose character in Baltimore years ago known as Muggsy McGraw, and somehow the term was transferred to John J., who objected to it always, although he never minded what other names were bestowed upon him by the heated baseball fans.

BRILLIANT INFIELDER

Owing to his long success as a manager and an organizer, most fans overlook the fact that John McGraw was a brilliant third baseman in his playing days. As a member of the old Baltimore Orioles, he helped to turn baseball from a haphazard game into a science.

Born in Truxton, N. Y., on April 7, 1873, the black-haired boy took an early liking to baseball, like any other American kid of his time.

At the age of 17 he was so good that he signed his first professional contract with the Olean Club, in the New York-Pennsylvania League. In Cedar Rapids, Ia., the next year, he played shortstop as a teammate of Henry Fabian, now groundkeeper of the Polo Grounds.

In August of the same year, 1891, he was sold to Baltimore, and in the next season the club was made a member of the 12-club National League circuit. With Ned Hanlon as manager, the Orioles became one of the greatest teams of all time, and McGraw was one of the most aggressive athletes of that fighting organization.

McGraw and Robinson were sold to the St. Louis Club in 1900, but in that year the American League sprang into existence and opened war on the older circuit. McGraw went to the Baltimore American League Club and stayed there until July, 1902.

BECOMES GIANTS' PILOT

Ban Johnson, president of the new league, was another fiery spirit, so friction arose between him and McGraw. The upshot of it was that Mac accepted an offer from Andrew Freedman to manage the New York Giants.

In discussing his record, McGraw always insisted that his management of the Giants began in 1903. He took over a hopeless tail-ender in mid-season of the preceding year and had to dismantle it before he started on his pennant-winning career.

After ripping the team apart and recruiting fresh material, McGraw raised the Giants to second place in 1903. From that time until 1924, he established a record unsurpassed in baseball. He won 10 National League pennants, including a straight run of four from 1921 to 1924, to say nothing of finishing second eight times.

In the World Series he was not so fortunate. He won only three out of nine starts. There was no autumn series in 1904, the first year in which he won a pennant.

SQUARE WITH PLAYERS

Though stern and sometimes harsh in his discipline as a manager, McGraw treated his players squarely. They never had any trouble with him if they carried out his instructions. He overlooked mechanical errors as a part of the game, but never forgave a bonehead play.

His idea was to conduct the game from the bench and let the athletes carry out his orders. If the orders were wrong, he took the blame himself.

McGraw always defended Fred Merkle and Fred Snodgrass, accused generally of two famous "boners." Merkle once forgot to touch second base, then an ancient custom among ball players. Snodgrass muffed a $100,000 fly, but that was merely a physical error, likely to happen in any ball game. In fact, Mac often confessed that he booted five grounders in his first professional game with Olean.

Baseball was more than a game to John J. McGraw—it was a patriotic institution. Together with the late Charles A. Comiskey, he made goodwill tours to various parts of the world, hoping to plant the seeds of the national game in foreign soil.

One of the results of these tours is that baseball has become the foremost sport in Japan and is growing strong in Cuba. Adolphe Luque, who helped the Giants win the World Series last year, learned the game through one of McGraw's trips in Havana.

BOOSTS GAME SOCIALLY

In many ways McGraw helped to elevate the social status of the game which was not so high when he was a player. He was the first manager to house his team in a first-class hotel. Up to that time the hostelries were haughty toward ball clubs, but now they are distinctly friendly. His idea was that if you treat a ball player like a gentleman he will act like one.

McGraw became a stockholder of the Giants in 1919 when a three-cornered syndicate consisting of himself, Charles A. Stoneham and Francis X. McQuaide bought the interests of the late Harry N. Hempstead. It was a strange agreement, by which none of the three was allowed to sell his stock without the consent of the other two, and it has caused much litigation.

His active management of the Giants ended in mid-summer, 1932, when he resigned and proposed Bill Terry as his successor.

Although he continued as vice president of the club, he had little or no further voice in its policies.

By a strange coincidence, the influence of the McGraw style of baseball passes out this year with the passing of the "Little Napoleon." Always an exponent of science, he objected to the lively ball which stressed muscle over brain. His continued efforts brought about a return of the dead ball to the National League last season, and one of the results was that the Giants won the pennant. Although they were no longer under his guidance, they were playing smart baseball, the kind he always taught.

This year the old-fashioned ball is gone and so is John J. McGraw, the old-fashioned manager who believed that an ounce of brain was worth more than a pound of brawn. He was admittedly the greatest of all baseball strategists.

Always play the game was his creed, and play it he did—to the very end.

Nine Fans Killed By Auto Racer

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 26.—(INS.) Argentina's grand prize national automobile race today still ranked as an unusually busy partner of death.

Nine spectators were killed and eight seriously injured at the finish yesterday as the winning car piloted by Ernesto Blanco, crashed into the crowd, which had surged on to the highway to cheer the victor after his 924-mile run.

The former Notre Dame halfback star, who resigned as backfield coach at Navy to take over Elmer Layden's job on the Bluff, arrived in town yesterday and went into a huddle with other Duquesne officials today, including Head Coach Joe Bach, and formally will take over his duties Thursday. He drove in from Texas.

Pitt's basketballers dominate the district situation today following two highly successful starts last week. The Panthers remained in control of the Eastern Intercollegiate Conference race by handing Georgetown an unexpectedly decisive lacing at Washington Saturday night, and on Wednesday took the measure of Westminster's Titans to rate at least a tie for district honors.

The Panthers trimmed Westminster more decisively than did the Dukes in their one win over the New Wilmington array and did so with one of the team's regulars, Charles Hughes, out of action. Saturday, both Hughes and Claire Cribbs were lost. It was this fact that caused many Pitt adherents to worry prior to the battle with the Hoyas.

Hughes was discharged from Mercy Hospital Saturday afternoon after having spent a week there suffering from an attack of flu. Cribbs entered the hospital Friday morning to have his leg, severely injured in the game with the Titans, treated. It may be necessary to operate on the injured member today. Both players will be out of the game with Tech tomorrow night.

Bazzone Boxes Cocoa Kid In McKeesport Ring

You will see two Gizzys bloom where only one flowered before, cauliflowerly speaking, if you are among the patrons at Jim McGirr's second professional boxing show of the season in his Palisades rink, McKeesport, tonight. In addition, you will see Joey Bazzone, hometown pride, try to advance his cause at the expense of a newcomer in these parts, the highly-touted Negro junior-welterweight of New Haven, the Cocoa Kid, in the 10-round windup.

The Gizzy phenomenon will not be a case of double exposure or an optical illusion. Rather there will be two Gizzys there in the flesh. Battling Gizzy, the one-time Donora Whirlwind, is in the first half of the double windup against Don Asto, of Uniontown, and the trick lies in the fact that his kid brother, Ralph (Young) Gizzy, a featherweight, will be in one of the six-rounders against Joey Adams, of Johnstown. Young Gizzy made his professional debut in West Virginia last week and came through with a win.

Battling Gizzy

Most interest probably will center in the appearance of the Cocoa Kid, who has boxed such fellows as Johnny Jadick, Wesley Ramey, Miki Gelb, Paola Villa, Victor Lotti, Louis (Kid) Kaplan, Young Firpo, Harry Carlton, Frankie Carlton, Jimmy Leto, Steve Halaiko, Lou Amber and Joe Ghnouly. He was born in Porto Rico. His real name is Louis Hardwick, and he is known also as Louis (Kid) Cocoa. He came here from New York, where he lost a split decision to Ray Napolitano Saturday night.

BETWEEN ROUNDS

Pete Reilly, manager of Freddie Miller, is due in town today to sign for a bout for Freddie with Mose Butch at Motor Square Garden, March 26.

Charley Massera, Monongahela heavyweight, will train in New York for his 10-round battle with Reds Barry at the Garden here two weeks from tonight.

Seven A. M. A. champions are being advertised on the card at Spartan Hall, Wilkinsburg, Wednesday night. The following bouts have been arranged: Teddy Movan vs. Frank McLaughlin, Joe Sulk vs. Abe Russell and Wolf Black vs. Charles Berley.

Comparatively few Pittsburgh district fans will witness the Primo Carnera-Tommy Loughran heavyweight title bout in Miami, Fla., Wednesday night.

The assurance of the State Athletic Commission that it will protect boxers who compete against suspension by the A. A. U. has brought a flood of entries for the Greater Pittsburgh championships at the Boys' Club of Pittsburgh next Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights. The deadline for entries has been extended to Wednesday night. They may be made with James Lodge at the Boys' Club, Forty-fifth and Butler streets, or at A. A. U. headquarters.

Entries have been received so far from St. John's Lyceum, Superior A. C., Carnegie Tech, Westinghouse A. C., North Boroughs A. C., Troy A. C., Krah A. C., Duerr A. C., Boys' Club of Pittsburgh and the South Park C. C.

AVELLA ELEVEN DEFEATED BY HEIDELBERG

By TOM BIRKS

The Heidelberg Soccer Club, of the Keystone League, will meet the Cleveland Indians in the Western final of the national amateur cup competition at Greenlee Field next Sunday afternoon. The Green and Gold earned the right to meet the Forest City outfit by virtue of a 3-to-1 victory over Avella, of the Panhandle League, at Greenlee Field yesterday afternoon. A small crowd of fans braved the snow storm to watch one of the best games of the season.

Direct from the kick-off, the Green and Gold forward line swept down the field, and McCosky shot the ball into the net to break the tie.

In the Keystone League, Moon Run defeated Morgan, 5 to 1; the Reihls stopped Cecil, 4 to 2, and Curry defeated Gallatin, 2 to 0.

In the semi-final round of the West Penn junior cup, Houston defeated Shannon Braves, 2 to 1, while in the Mon-Yough League, Gallatin played Fitz-Henry to a 2-2 deadlock. The cup game lineups:

SQUASH STARS SCORE WINS

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Second round contests comprise today's bill of action in the annual City Class B squash racquets championship tournament, in progress since Saturday on the courts of the Keystone Athletic Club.

Yesterday's session, marred by defaults after the fashion of the inaugural day's program, wound up competition in the lower half of the first frame and saw Del Kennedy, veteran Keystone star, head the procession into the third canto with an impressive victory over his clubmate, R. E. Brown, 15-10, 15-12, 17-16. The summary:

FIRST ROUND

Upper half—J. E. McConnaughey defeated E. F. Kelly, 12-15, 15-12, 15-13, 15-12.

Lower half—F. A. Weston won from C. J. Ramsburg, Jr., by default; W. J. Grigg won from J. D. Mattern, by default; J. H. Brennan won from Leslie Young, by default; E. B. Hankey won from Dr. M. A. Sheum, by default; W. McCook Miller defeated A. D. Hannah, 15-13, 15-10, 17-15, 17-16; John L. O'Loughlin defeated C. E. Robinson, 15-10, 17-16, 18-15; C. J. Caspar, Jr., won from T. Rhoads, by default; R. W. Mitchell won from L. P. Schweinberg, by default; D. J. Kennedy won from W. H. George, by default; R. E. Brown won from Graham McCook, by default; G. A. Prier won from C. A. Woods, Jr., by default; J. O. Craig defeated J. H. Hillman, III, 15-8, 15-12, 15-12; T. R. Kenedy won from King Moore, by default; Dr. G. Stegeman defeated J. J. Troutbeck, 16-14, 15-8, 15-16.

SECOND ROUND

Lower half—D. J. Kennedy defeated R. E. Brown, 15-10, 15-12, 17-16.

Dick Koubek and his Keystone Athletic Club glove squad opened the City Handball League Class A title play-off series auspiciously yesterday by registering a 4-1 verdict over the Downtown Y. M. C. A. on the Y. M. H. A. courts. The summary:

Singles—Manos, K. A. C., defeated Debberthine, Y. M. C. A., 21-2, 21-14; R. Koubek, K. A. C., defeated Myers, Y. M. C. A., 17-21, 21-4, 21-16; Hedges, Y. M. C. A., defeated Smith, K. A. C., 21-7, 21-18.

Doubles—Manos and E. Clark, K. A. C., defeated Hrick and Debberthine, Y. M. C. A., 21-5, 19-21, 21-11; R. Koubek and F. Koubek, K. A. C., defeated Myers and Horvath, Y. M. C. A., 21-7, 21-14.

BOUT OF FEET FORESEEN

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 26.—The Primo Carnera-Tommy Loughran battle for the heavyweight championship here Wednesday night promises to be a foot fight.

Protest has been made to the Miami Boxing Commission that Carnera plans to step on Loughran's bad right ankle at every opportunity with the hope of crippling him, as he did George Manley, one of his sparring partners, last week. Manley suffered a broken bone.

Both principals were set to stage their final workouts today.

Eldred, Parks Trail In Tampa Tourney

TAMPA, Fla., Feb. 26.—(AP.)—Sinking a 12-foot putt for a birdie on the last hole, Denny Shute, of Miami, went into a tie with Horton Smith, of Oak Park, Ill., yesterday for the title in the Gasparilla open golf tournament. They clash today in an 18-hole playoff match.

Shute had a score of 135-70-72—277 and Smith of 138-70-69—277.

Sam Parks, of the South Hills Country Club of Pittsburgh, finished with a score of 302 while Vincent Eldred, of the Highland Country Club, of Pittsburgh and winter pro at Bradentown, Fla., scored a 297.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Withdrawal of Singing Wood, one of the favorites, from the Kentucky Derby field to concentrate on the Preakness causes a wholesale shakeup of the betting odds . . . Singing Wood was highly regarded in the winter book on the Derby as a result of winning the Futurity Stakes at Belmont Park and finishing in the money seven times in nine starts, three times as a winner . . . Its winnings as a 2-year-old were $88,050 . . . Mata Hari, the current favorite, had the unusual record of winning five races and running entirely out of the money in its three other starts.

There's nothing fast about the way Bill Swift, the Pirate pitcher, signs a contract. . . But there's no doubting his courage . . . . It takes a brave man to be a holdout these days.

Jack Zivic, former star local boxer, is going to run for the Legislature in the Second District and wants all of those guys and gals who used to be for him when he was in there belting them out to vote for him. . . . He's had a couple of letters from Postmaster Jim Farley recently, by the way. . . . Jack knew Big Jim well when he was a title contender and Jim was only a boxing commissioner in New York, and he says Farley is the same sort of a gent now that he was then. . . . He still has time to remember old friends.

The Primo Carnera-Tommy Loughran fight at Miami, night after tomorrow, doesn't worry Leo Houck, Penn State's boxing coach at all, at all. . He's all wrapped up in the future of Stevie Hamas, the former Penn Stater, who boosted his stock by beating former Champion Max Schmeling recently . . . Houck tutored Steve back in the days when the latter played football and basketball for the Lions and also was a member of the boxing team. . . Houck, who fought Gene Tunney twice, and Harry C. . and many other stars, saw the Hamas-Schmeling fight and is touting Stev. to beat Max Baer if they fight this summer.

Just a little notice in the papers the other day told of the passing of Francois Descamps, the little Frenchman, who managed Georges Carpentier throughout the Orchid Man's entire boxing career and was in the midst of handling his comeback attempt when he suffered a heart attack . . . At the time of the Carpentier-Dempsey fight, Descamps was one of the biggest men in the boxing game . . . He had a flair for showmanship along the lines of Leon See, who developed Carnera, and was a shrewd salesman of the wares of his boxer . . . Frank Klaus, of Braddock, former middleweight champion, who boxed Carpentier in Paris, knew both Descamps and See well.

There was only one John McGraw in all of the history of baseball . . . A scrappy player and a fire-eating manager . . . A man with a system which won 10 pennants in the National League . . . A man who did the thinking for his players and didn't care who knew it or blamed him when things went wrong . . . A disciple of the old school of speed on the bases and an ardent foe of the lively ball which killed speed and strategy. . . . Only the fact that he passed quietly out of the baseball scene more than a year ago prevents his death at this time from coming as a great shock . . . His greatness in the game may be measured by the fact that when you say "John McGraw" you need say no more . . . He was synonymous of our national pastime for more than three decades, and death finds him one of its immortals.—HARRY KECK.

GENEVA NAMES BEEDE COACH

Jimmy Robertson, former Allegheny High School and Carnegie Tech star quarterback and later coach at Shady Side Academy, has been dropped as head football coach at Geneva College, where he succeeded Howard Harpster last fall, and Dike Beede, also a former Carnegie Tech man, appointed to the position, it was announced today by A. C. Edgecombe, graduate manager of athletics at the Beaver Falls College.

Beede was signed to a one-year contract this morning, coming from his home in Youngstown to Beaver Falls to complete the negotiations. He thus returns to the coaching profession after a three-year lapse. He retired as coach at Westminster College at New Wilmington, Pa., in 1930, after coaching the Titans for five years. He was signed by Westminster following his graduation from Carnegie Tech in 1926.

While no announcement was made as to the identity of Beede's assistants at Geneva, Edgecombe indicated that Art Grahame and Cliff Aultman, Geneva stars, likely would get the posts. Aultman, star end of the Covenanters, still has another year at Geneva, as a result of missing a full semester in football, but the injured member has not healed sufficiently to permit him to play next fall. Grahame was the star quarterback.

M'GRAW PAID TRIBUTES

"McGraw, a great leader, was one of baseball's noblemen. His passing is a distinct loss to the national game."—William F. Reneweanger, president of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

"None of us ever doubted that his main ambition was to have us do the best we could. Bill Terry, McGraw's pupil and his successor as manager of the Giants.

"He was the spirit of our national game."—Roger Bresnahan, long time McGraw associate and called by McGraw the greatest catcher of all time.

"Everyone regrets his death, but none more than I."—Charles A. Stoneham, president New York Giants.

"Baseball will remember his unselfish acts of charity to those in need."—Emil Fuchs, president Boston Braves.

"To me he was more than a great baseball figure. I don't know of any man . . . for whom I had more admiration."—Edward Trowbridge Collins, general manager Boston Red Sox.

"He was the best in the business."—Edward Barrow, general manager Havre De Grace, Md., track.

"I never have met a finer character in baseball than McGraw."—Arthur Fletcher, former great giant shortstop.

"He was an outstanding figure in baseball and whole-hearted, enthusiastic fan. He was much older and enthusiastic to see the game."—Will Harridge, president American League.

"That is one of the saddest messages that has ever come to me."—Wilbert Robinson, who played with McGraw at Baltimore and later opposed him as manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

"None ever was further removed from the commonplace than he."—Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball.

"I owe almost everything I may call success in the game to McGraw. He was a marvelous teacher."—Carl Hubbell, star southpaw pitcher of the Giants.

"McGraw's death is a great loss to baseball."—Jacob Ruppert, owner of the New York Yankees.

"He was a man who loved me and who, in turn, loved baseball. I was never far away from him. He was a great manager for me. He was a great man."—Casey Stengel, manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

"McGraw's name will live as long as baseball carries on."—Frank J. Navin, president of the Detroit Tigers.

COCHRAN PLAYS HERE

Walker Cochran, defeated as welterweight champion and champion at last week's Golden Gloves tournament in an exhibition match at the Duquesne Club here this afternoon. He is to play at Clark's Parlors, McKees Rocks, this evening, and at Tobey's Parlors, South 6-4 street, Wednesday night.

HOCKEY STARS PLAY BUFFALO

By CARL W. SHATTO

After being kept on a local-competition hockey diet since the spring of 1932, Pittsburgh fans are prepared to break their fast and feast on the most appetizing ice morsel that has been offered here in almost two years at Duquesne Garden at 8:30 tonight.

The stalwart lads who are to give relief to those who are famished for "big time" hockey entertainment are the Pittsburgh All-Stars, ace performers of the City Hockey League's upper crust, and the Nichols Alumni Hockey Association, of Buffalo, on whose roster are men qualified to wear the varsity letters of Yale, Princeton, Cornell, Amherst, the University of Toronto and the Nichols School (if Nichols gives out varsity letters).

The visitors' record of 10 victories, one tie and no defeats this season indicates that they may be tough to get along with. Their feat of scoring 50 goals while limiting their enemies to three tallies, against such opposition as Colgate, Syracuse, Amherst, the University of Toronto and Hamilton University (Ontario, Canada), indicates even more of the same.

The Pirates-CarnegieTech league fixture originally billed for tonight will be played as part of a double-header on Wednesday. Herb Drury (who needs no introduction, ladies and gentlemen) is to do tonight's whistle tooting. The probable lineup:

Pittsburgh—		Buffalo—
Curl	G	Curtis
McPhtcheon	L. D.	Perry
McSorley	R. D.	Thomas
Dick Scully	C.	Cass
Roy Schooley	L. W.	Maher
Tyson	R. W.	Matthews

SANDLOT LOOPS ORGANIZED

Two of the leading sandlot baseball leagues of the district and one mushball circuit were whipped into shape at meetings held yesterday afternoon.

Steve Cox took time out to enroll 12 clubs in the West Penn Mushball League, and also lay the foundation for a number of other mushball and sandlot baseball loops.

The Allegheny County League was organized, eight teams being represented including Parmelee, New Kensington Merchants, Turtle Creek, Homestead, Mellon Stuart, Swissvale and Glassport.

The McKeesport Duffys also are considering entering the circuit. Cal Bolster was named chairman of the arbitration board.

STEEL OUTPUT NEARS 50%

CLEVELAND, Feb. 26.—(AP.)—Steel operations apparently are making a rapid approach to a 50 per cent average, the magazine Steel says today.

Though unsupported by further large commitments, last week's activity rose 4 points to 47 per cent, and the magazine says steelmakers see an active month ahead with steady orders coming from the automotive trade.

That recent efforts of General Motors to acquire the Corrigan, McKinney Steel Company and its affiliate, Newton Steel Company, have produced a reverberation at the Ford Motor Company offices was indicated to the magazine in a report that Ford is preparing plans for increasing semi-finished mill capacity.

With Washington assurances that railroads soon will buy the remaining portion of their rail requirements, Steel said it is understood the price of $36.37½ a ton will be extended to April 1.

Freight car orders for February will reach an estimated total of 19,725, more than were ordered in the entire last three years. Structural shape awards so far this year are 77 per cent larger than in the comparable period of 1933.

BUYER'S GUIDE AND BUSINESS REVIEW

INCOME TAXES BECOME DUE MARCH 15

The period for filing income tax returns will end at midnight March 15. Every unmarried person who had a gross income of $5,000 or more or a net income of $1,000 or more in 1933 must file a return. The difference between gross and net income will be explained in these articles in the future. Every husband and wife living together who had an aggregate income of $5,000 or more or a net income of $2,500 or more must file a return. Widowers, widows, divorced persons and married persons not living together are classed as single persons.

EXEMPTIONS EXPLAINED

While individuals with these incomes must file returns, this does not mean that they must pay taxes on the entire amount. Single persons are allowed $1,000 personal exemption which they may deduct from net income before computing their taxes. Married persons or heads of families are allowed exemptions of $2,500.

In addition to the personal exemptions, a credit of $400 is allowed for each dependent. A dependent is a person under 18 or one incapable of self support because of mental or physical defects. By this is meant not only cripples and those mentally deficient, but also persons in ill health and the aged. A husband and wife living together at the end of the year may file a joint return or they may file separate returns. If separate returns are filed, one may not report income which belongs to the other but only income which actually belongs to him or her. Either one may deduct the $2,500 personal exemption or they may divide it in any proportion.

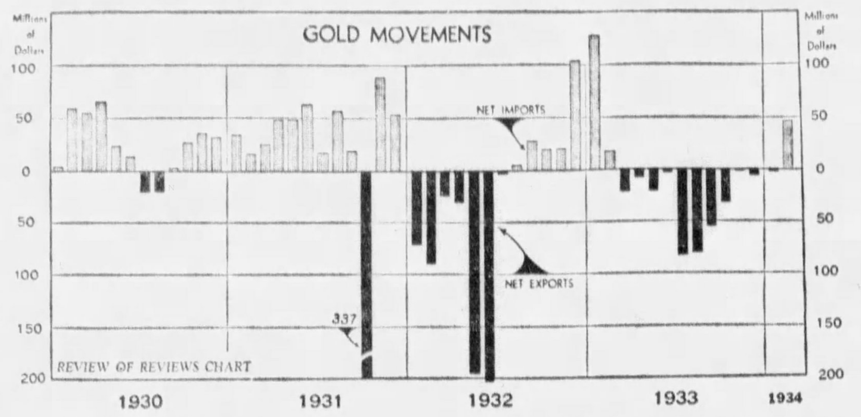
CREDITS ALLOWED

In order to be entitled to the $400 credit, the taxpayer must furnish the dependent his or her chief support. The credit is based upon actual financial dependency and not mere legal dependency. For example, a father whose children receive half or more of their support from a trust fund on other separate source is not entitled to the credit.

Neither relationship nor residence is a factor in the allowance of the $400 credit for a dependent. The taxpayer and the dependent may be residents of different cities. If husband and wife both contribute to the support of a dependent, the $400 credit may be taken by the one contributing the chief support, and may not be divided between them.

A single person who supports in his home an aged mother is entitled not only to the $400 credit for a dependent, but also to the personal exemption of $2,500 as the head of a family. A widower supporting under similar circumstances a dependent child under 18 years of age also is entitled to the personal exemption of $2,500 as the head of a family, plus the $400 cerdit for a dependent.

Current Huge Inflow of Gold Aiding Government's Program



By JOSEPH STAGG LAWRENCE
Review of Reviews

During the last three years enormous quantities of gold have been moving back and forth across the Atlantic like some giant yellow shuttlecock. It has been a movement which has touched the average citizen's life but remotely, yet it has exercised a profound influence on banking and investment psychology on both sides of the Atlantic.

The chart shows three distinct gold movements of major proportions: The first of these occurs in October of 1931, immediately following England's abandonment of the gold standard. The next movement, less sharp but more sustained, took place during the first seven months of 1932. The outward movement of gold in 1933, in the face of the government's prohibition against private ownership and export of gold, represents the repatriation of foreign-owned gold, ear-marked in this country.

The gold movement of particular interest at the present time is that which followed the Treasury announcement that the government was willing to buy both foreign and domestic gold at the new price of $35 an ounce. Due to the substantial margin between the value of the dollar expressed in terms of foreign currencies and the value of that dollar expressed in terms of gold, it was found very profitable to take foreign-owned gold, ship it to this country; sell it to the Treasury for dollars for foreign currency, buy gold with the foreign currency abroad, ship it over to this country, and thus repeat an arbitrage cycle.

The gross profit at one time between the foreign currency and gold value of the dollar was as much as 5 per cent. In normal periods the margin between gold export and gold import points is rarely in excess of 1 per cent.

This flood of incoming gold has played directly into the hands of the federal government which is seeking to reduce the external value of the dollar. A shipment of gold to this country and its conversion into dollars and the subsequent sale of those dollars for the total supply of American other forms of currency increases money in the international market and tends to reduce its value.

That is precisely what the government wants. As long as gold comes in, and the dollar supply is thus increased, the two billion dollar stabilization fund need not be employed.

and I'd rather die than eat three meals a day for the rest of my life with the same person. How in the world do you STAND it? Think of all the titanic, sweeping things you miss.

Longs to Travel

"I want everything. I want a career and study and burning achievement. I want hundreds of men to be in love with me. I want travel and tempest! Dance all night and sing and rejoice. Want to be a gypsy, with not a relative in the world—a knapsack on my back and all the world to roam.

"Why are people so timid? They could make life such a gorgeous adventure. They could go skiing down mountains in Norway and lie bare to tropic suns on a moonlit South Sea beach.

"They don't dare. They haven't the nerve. They just take a mean little job as ribbon clerk, making sure of bed and board, and for that let all the splendor go bang.

"Not I . . . you bet not I! I won't sink into the rut and go dead without ever having lived. I want the whole of life. I mean to have it, David—wild and blazing and free."

David was the only person to whom Pippin could ramble on in this glib torrent. In these flights she frightened Chickie and made even Janina dubious.

But David pulled an arm about her with a warm:

Knows About Kevin

"Good for you, girl! Better be sorry than safe! Fill the cup and let 'er brim! Mind turning off the phonograph a minute or two?"

"That's not the phonograph now. That's myself, David, and don't you forget it. Though, heaven knows, I've swallowed so much babble from the cradle, listening in while your friends made the world over and Janina raved, that often I don't know where I begin and all those echoes end. I'm just like Tomlinson. I have read, I have heard, I have got, by gad, I've scarce a soul of my own."

"Look over these problems and see if your bright child made any mistakes. Be a sport now! But it's fun having Mary and mother and Edward all worrying about us. It makes us feel grandly old and scarlet. If they only guessed how blank we are inside about all such things. You know—don't you, Dad?"

"You don't fool me with that blank talk, girl. You're head over heels about Kevin Malone."

"Why not? Rather a god, don't you think?"

She blew him a merry kiss and went, all fluttering, from the room. She wrote in her diary:

"They think it's a laugh and that I don't know what love can be. But I'm on my knees with it. I'm crazy—wild—delirious. And if you were to put your hands on my shoulders and say one single word, I would follow you all over the earth. I would be crushed with joy. I would be exalted. Whatever you asked I would do.

Considers Love

"Oh, God—it's good you don't know. I thought love was all bright ecstasy, and here I am crying, and I want to cry and cry. And when you kissed me I felt hundreds of dancing little waves rushing about me. It was the heavens opening—it was the angels singing. Oh, God—what will I do left here alone and you 6,000 miles away. Come soon and to me, Kevin Malone!"

She went often to visit Kathie. Always in the hope of seeing him. At last the week came when he was leaving. Then it was joy. She helped Kathie make little initials on his socks.

"Look here, children — roll them up tight . . . what do you think I am—a prima donna? I'm only going to take one trunk. You've got to get all these things in."

Pippin knelt on the floor, folding and jamming things into corners. He came and knelt beside her. He covered her hands, pressing them down against the soft linens.

He leaned toward her, a smile on his sweet, flashing mouth. His eyes, too, flashed. They were gray eyes, rimmed with black. They laughed and sang into hers.

"Going to be true to me, little sweetheart?"

"Not true. You know it isn't. You don't believe it."

The words didn't count. The words were silly. But oh, the song that rushed into her heart and trilled there. For days—for weeks.

Mahoning Valley Steel Rate Jumps

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Feb. 26.—(INS.)—Mahoning valley steel production will jump close to 55 per cent this week, a survey of steel concerns in the district showed today.

Purchasing demands are coming from a wider field of consumers at the present time and expansion in the rate is expected for the next several weeks.

Approximately 50 of the 83 open hearth furnaces and three Bessemer plants in the territory will be in operation during the week.

PROFIT TAKING SLOWS BOND ADVANCE

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—(AP.)—Bonds turned quiet and somewhat irregular during the past week after many corporate issues had reached new high levels for the past two years or longer.

The slackened demand was accounted for partly, of course, by the Thursday holiday but, at the same time, in view of the sharp advance of all domestic categories over recent months, both traders and investors began to exhibit some caution in the matter of further extensive commitments.

Most prime investment issues maintained a steady to firm tone throughout, but the secondary groups, which had been bounding upward almost daily under growing demand from foreign, as well as domestic, sources, began to develop some erratic tendencies and profit taking was apparent in many sections.

NEW "CENTRALS" STRONG

Of much interest to the market was the announcement of the New York Central's refunding plans which involve the issuance of $59,911,000 of 10-year 6 per cent convertible collateral bonds. The issue is to be offered to stockholders of record March 5, for subscription at par in the ratio of $1,200 principle amount of bonds for every 100 shares of stock held. The new bonds will be convertible into no-par value stock of the company at a price of $40 a share for the first three years and $50 a share thereafter to maturity.

Bondholders of some other corporations saw in the Central's procedure, and the apparent satisfaction with which it was received in the financial district, the possibility of similar operations in the near future. The new Central issue sold over the counter on a "when issued" basis at a substantial premium following the announcement.

GOVERNMENTS FIRM

Industrial news generally was optimistic, although week-end trade reviews found a pause in the business momentum due to the fact that many districts were snowbound, that the Washington's Birthday holiday intervened and that the Civil Works Administration had started to reduce its forces. Steel production, however, continued to point to higher levels; freight car loadings showed a more than seasonal gain and other major indices displayed few signs of lagging.

United States Government securities were usually dull but fairly firm and the majority of foreign obligations more than held their own.

STOCKS DROOP WITH WALL ST. SPIRITS

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—(AP.)—Mild pessimism, based apparently on doubts rather than on definite developments, dominated most financial markets today and prices again pointed downward.

Equities drooped from the start, although selling was orderly and the ticker tape was never pressed by volume. There were a few issued that even moved up moderately. Declines ranged from fractions to around a point.

The trading timidity was blamed partly on the belief that federal regulation of stock exchanges is imminent, that the curtailment of CWA spending may affect industry and that business unsettlement might follow inauguration of new Washington investigations. Scattered strike situations also entered into the picture.

Commodities, including wheat, cotton, silver and rubber, were lower. Bonds lagged with stocks. International dollar rates were comparatively steady.

The magazine Steel estimated operations in this industry expanded four points during the past week to 47 per cent of capacity, the highest level since last August. The review felt that production is rapidly approaching the 50 per cent rate, although a temporary lull in new contracting was anticipated pending final determination of prices and the formal opening of books for the second quarter.

Some selling of the rails was attributed to expectations that several of the roads would show a decline in net earnings this month because of recent weather conditions which have sharply raised operating costs. In addition, attention was being paid to the carrier wage problem which is to be taken up by the managements and unions next month.

Observers of the labor difficulties in Michigan and Ohio, largely confined to motor and automotive accessory plants, continued to express concern over the possibility of the trouble spreading.

Brokerage houses with foreign connections said that little business was being received from abroad. Domestic institutional buying, it was added, has also been meager. The belief was vouchsafed, however, that many portfolios are now extremely thin and that renewed demands for bonds and equities from this source is a potentiality.

HOUSE AMENDS COTTON BILL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—(AP.)—The House Agriculture Committee today amended the Bankhead bill for compulsory cotton control to provide for sale of 10,000,000 bales instead of 9,500,000 tax free this year.

The committee also changed the tax from 75 to 50 per cent of market value.

Chairman Jones described the changes as "tentative" and said he did not know when the measure would be reported. Another meeting to consider it is scheduled tomorrow.

Another major change in the bill was that Secretary Wallace may withhold 10 per cent of a state's allotment to provide for new lands, population shifts and other adjustments.

Jones said this would not change a state's basic allotment, but would give the secretary latitude in administering the measure.

The bill also was modified to provied that the tax would apply at the time of sale, on which the levy is made, and not at the time it is ginned.

Investment Concern Opens Offices Here

McCormick, Griswold & Nelp, newly formed investment concern, opened offices today in the Law and Finance Building. The firm will deal in government, municipal and corporate securities. The partners are J. B. McCormick, formerly manager for Bonbright & Co., in this city; E. M. Griswold formerly with Dillion, Read & Co., and more recently with Moore, Leonard & Lynch, and W. B. Nelp, formerly with Dillion, Read, and recently president of the Acme Coal Company.

Grain Market

CHICAGO, Feb. 26.—Wheat opened 1c lower that Saturday's close on reports of more precipitation over the winter wheat belt and a weaker stock and cotton market. Market was very dull, but showed a slow but steady decline on light liquidation, with a few orders caught, closing 1c to 1¼c lower. Corn held firm at Saturday's close until afternoon, when it weakened in sympathy with wheat and oats and closed ½c to ⅝c lower. Oats showed decided weakness, selling 1¼c to 1½c from Saturday's close, and closed ⅞c to 1c lower.

More Jobs Real Need In U. S.

By B. C. FORBES

WASHINGTON continues to attract—to distract—major attention.

Sentiment grows that the time has come to concentrate upon business and employment recovery rather than on innovations, experiments, "reforms," which aggravate unsettlement and unemployment. More jobs are more urgent than more probes, it is claimed.

Mr. Forbes

LATEST DEVELOPMENTS instead of being predominantly favorable, have been mixed, due mainly to the reappearance of uncertainty over how far Washington may go in creating apprehension among employers, corporations, wealthy investors, financial and fiduciary institutions.

THROUGH THE grapevine route the financial world hears that friction is ripe in the higher circles at Washington over the consequences of the cancellation of all airmail contracts without affording the victims a full and fair opportunity to present their side. Rumor has it that eminent officeholders are alarmed over the effect produced and also that the almost daily tragedies overtaking Army fliers, ordered to undertake duties and dangers for which they were utterly untrained, may quickly end.

This week promises to bring interesting developments.

ON THE OTHER hand, Washington is giving evidences of being disposed to become less arbitrary and dictatorial in other directions, notably on stock exchange legislation, new security legislation, banking legislation, also in rolling up the public debt at an appalling rate for the benefit of special classes, including farmers.

But it also brought distinct improvement in steel output, in lumber production, in manufacturers' demands for raw cotton, in tire prices, in business failures, in banking clearings, in freight loadings, in dividend declarations.

UNPRECEDENTEDLY heavy amounts of gold have not yet had any perceptible helpful influence.

They have served to bring down the international value of the dollar towards the prescribed 59 cents level. This, in turn, is likely to put a brake upon further wholesale importation of the precious metal. Such a development is not entirely undesirable.

Certain it is that the Bank of France would not continue to part with $100,000,000 gold per week indefinitely. Abandonment of the gold standard by France would entail unsettling consequences throughout the world, and would postpone the feasibility of an international agreement among leading countries to get all the major currencies back on a definite gold basis, a consideration extremely desirable as soon as practicable.

Anti-inflationists fear that the higher our mountain of gold rises the greater will become the temptation at Washington to expand our volume of paper currency. Indeed, Wall street retails rumors that currency inflation still is contemplated.

WHAT IS CALLED "smart money" has been going into purchases of silver on a huge scale for many weeks. That some far-reaching experiment is in Washington's mind is regarded as unquestionable. It is one thing, however, to have a worthy objective and another thing, sometimes, to devise prudent ways and means to attain it.

WHILE IT IS true, as reported in this column some time ago, that sentiment in the highest financial and business circles has become somewhat less confident, it is also true that the prevailing belief is that the lower value of the dollar, combined with other forces at work here and throughout most of the world, will gradually bring about higher American prices.

Reserve Reports Industrial Gains

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—(AP.) Sharp increases in industrial output and a general wholesale price rise were reported by the Federal Reserve Board for January and early February.

Half dozen major industries were mentioned by the board in announcing that its seasonally adjusted industrial production index advanced from December's 75 per cent of the 1923-25 average to 78 per cent in January.

Dividend News

New York Transit

New York Transit Company declared a dividend of 15 cents, payable April 14 to record of March 5. A dividend of the same amount was paid October 14, 1933.

DEVIL'S ISLAND

By GORDON SINCLAIR

CHAPTER XXIII

CAYENNE, French Guiana.—The jail holds one lone prisoner. A wide-eyed Chinese who doesn't quite know what it's all about, but is willing to learn.

The police force has been slashed from 32 to 17 men.

There hasn't been a robbery, burglary or murder in 10 years.

Not one house in three is locked day or night and if it is locked the chances are that the key hangs on the wall.

Cayenne, once you get accustomed to the vultures that clutter up the roads and the bad men loafing in the parks, is pretty much the mill run of down at heels tropical towns.

Mail Once a Month

Mail day, once a month, is the focal point on which everything else hinges. There's a weekly paper which tells you how hot it's been, what's the cash value of rubber by the pound, who has a new baby, and what's the best treatment for boils.

The town has a livery stable where you can hire a horse, and a couple of taxi stands. The road to St. Laurent, transportation hub for the convicts, was started 30 years ago, but the boys haven't got around to finishing it yet.

There are no Americans in the entire colony; not even a consul. But there is a library, a zoo, and a museum. The zoo has a few snakes, mouse deer and porcupines.

If you feel like doing that sort of thing you can get a permanent wave, buy a Paris gown, throw a cocktail party and take your guests to the movies followed by a supper dance all on the same day.

Then for the next 30 days you can stand around wondering what to do with yourself.

Army Is Alarm Clock

Every citizen sooner or later has to serve in the colonial army and the troops go on parade every day at dawn. That sort of wakes the town up and everybody streaks down the Avenue of Liberty to the market. The graveyard which contains some of the most expensive tombstones in the world is at the other end of that same avenue.

Squatted on fat haunches around both the market and cemetery are dusky soothsayers. Toothless old crones sprawl there and chant of strange voodoo rites and veiled mysteries. In India and Haiti or New Guinea these would be the pampered elite of the market place; the consorts of the spirits. But here in the most fantastic land on earth they are just so many beggars whining for alms.

Occasionally Arab prisoners; Bedouins from Sahara and Riffs from Morocco, will chant from the koran. Often they have appealed for a mosque. Since no mosque has been supplied, they appoint their own muezzin who croons the evening call to prayer:

"Allah . . . Allah . . . Akbar . . . there is but one God . . . What is written is written."

The soothing fatalism of Mohammed is like a bromide to tortured souls. It has been written. That's why I'm here. The fates have ruled it. There is but one . . . and he is Allah.

In Contrast

In contrast to this is the booming of drums and the screaming of flutes in the Follies Bergere. For a hot old dance hall this joy cave of the dishonored of France just about wins the sawdust soda biscuit.

Rhythm? And how! Wiggling weaving syncopating hysteria? Lots of it! The band never stops. The dancers seldom rest, . . . but they breathe mighty hard. There is a balcony at the Follies and you or I who are casual lookers-on daren't go down on the dance floor.

Perhaps this dance explains why you or I, who go to Cayenne on a brief trip, have to supply a certificate of good morals to get into the colony and a certificate of good health to get out again.

But as for me I've seen about enough. I've been bitten by ants, mosquitoes, spiders and cockroaches. Tomorrow the drone of a big 'plane will take the place of chanting Arabs and throbbing drums.

WOODEN HORSE OF TROY

Greeks "Heroic Age" is known mostly from Homer's Illiad and Odyssey. One legend told is the "Siege of Troy." A wooden horse, left by seemingly departing Greek besiegers, was carried into Troy. During the night the Greeks, hidden in horse, opened the city gates to the returning soldiers, who destroyed Troy.

SOLON RESISTED BY THE RICH IN CANCELING DEBTS

Hellens (main races: Achaeans, Aeolians, Ionians, Dorians) came from the north and northeast into Greece Crete was their earliest center of civilization, which then spread to Asia Minor. In the eighth and seventh centuries B. C. Greeks expanded to Sicily, South Italy, etc. (Magna Graecia). The history of Greece is that of many independent states, progressing from kingdom, oligarchy through tyranny to democracy. Athens is a good representative of all stages. Other important cities were Sparta, Argos, Corynth.

Solon (about 639-559 B. C.) induced Athenians to adopt laws just to all, to give vote in the Assembly to all citizens; to cancel debts threatening the debtor with slavery. In this endeavor he failed and was crowded out by Pisistratus a tyrant.

PURCHASE OF MANHATTAN ISLAND FOR 60 GUILDERS ($24)

Henry Hudson (English) discovered and explored (1609) the river named after him, for Dutch merchants, who established trading posts in those regions. This example was soon followed by the Swedes, who started New Sweden along the Delaware River.

The Dutch founded the colony "New Netherland" at the mouth of the Hudson (1623). Peter Minuit, their third governor, purchased in 1626 Manhattan Island, the territory of New Amsterdam, from the Indians.

In 1664 an English force took possession of New Amsterdam, based upon a previous grant of King Charles II, to his brother James, Duke of York. The settlement was renamed New York.

SPEED REGULATION OF AUTOMOBILE ENGINE

The engine speed (500-4,000 revolutions of crankshaft per minute) of the gasoline automobile is controlled by regulating the quantity of explosive charge (gasoline vapor mixed with air) This is done by setting the throttle valve to open up or to obstruct the passage from carburetor to suction manifold. Minimum opening is set (for idling) by a hand lever generally on the steering wheel; more opening is given during drive by a pedal, the "accelerator." (Automobile)

HARMFUL AND USEFUL BACTERIA—THE CYCLE OF MATTER, DEAD AND LIVING

Bacteria, classed under the series of Fungi belonging to the Thallus plants (first phylum of plant-kingdom), are single celled microorganisms without decided nucleus and chlorophyll. According to their shape (above) they are called: Cocci (globular), diplococci (double globes), bacilli (rod shaped), streptococci (beads), staphylococci (clusters), streptobacilli (chains) and spirilla (twisted).

Omnipresent, quickly multiplying by division, they are in the air, water, ground, on our skin, in the body. Some thrive on living matter and may cause diseases. Most live on dead matter, decompose it into simpler compounds, ready to use by plants—these are useful.

Plants need the decomposed matter to build more complex molecules: Food for themselves and for the plant eating animals. This transformation of material (at right), would be impossible without bacteria. (General Science)

NEW FEDERAL AGENCIES

Since "depression" started (fall, 1929) unemployment and want of most primitive necessities of life became widespread in the United States.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt (inaugurated March 4, 1933) asked Congress for special powers to deal with the situation and received them in 11 acts by which the above 26 "administrations," "corporations," "authorities" and "boards" of the "new deal" were created. These federal agencies were designed (and also others contemplated) to help restore the nation to happiness and prosperity. Sketches of agencies later. (17—III—B)

JUNIOR PATROL

With so many new Junior Patrol clubs being organized all the time, it has been hard for us to talk to all of them as much as we would like, Fellows!

JUNIOR

We have a great club, getting bigger all the time. Here at headquarters we try to help all the clubs as much as we can. But there isn't much we can do.

After all, the best club is the club that is so well organized and has such a good captain that it keeps going by itself. A club that has to be helped all the time is too weak. We know that some of our clubs have sponsors, the mother and father of the captain or one of the members, or perhaps, an older friend. That is a fine idea. Every club should have a sponsor. Before you have a party, or decide to do something big, tell your sponsor about it, and see what some older person thinks.

With basketball season almost over, we are wondering how some of our basketball teams have been getting along. We heard about several clubs having good teams. It's a swell game, and mighty fine exercise. Soon now, the cold weather will go away. Then we can play more outdoor games again.

We got a note today from Nicholas Kiryluk, of 529 Scott avenue, Jeannette, Pa. He tells us that he reads the Junior Patrol every day and that he is much interested in it. We hope you can start a Patrol club, Nicholas. You only need 10 members to elect a captain. Then you hold meetings as often as you can, making plans to help others and have good times yourselves, too. The captain gets a beautiful black and orange captain's armband.

And we have a card, with a pledge pasted on it, from Margaret Narcis, of 1218 Fairmont street, Natrona Heights. She writes that she is going to join Louise Graf's club after she gets her membership card. But you don't have to wait until Louise gets a bigger club before you write, Margaret. Write anytime and let us know what you are doing.

Richard Moore, a new member who lives in New Eagle, Pa., writes that he is organizing a new Junior Patrol club and that he wants a captain's armband. We can't send you one, Richard, until you are elected a captain by at least 10 members. So get more members in your club and send a pledge for each one. Then, if you are elected captain, we will send you the swell black and orange armband.

Something About the Styles

We don't like to intrude on ladies' fashions. But something happened last week we have got to sing about.

The wife got herself a new dress. That stopped a two-year argument in the happy home.

She wore it a couple of times and it looked pretty good. There was something like a lot of brass tacks on the back. They were scattered around in bunches like she had gotten into a fight in a hardware store.

The wife said, "How do you like my dress on backwards?"

That was a shock like getting slapped in the face with a new amendment.

"Do you mean to say," we asked, "that you can wear a dress on backward now?"

"Sure," she says, "Pretty, ain't it?"

It was just as pretty that way as the other. Couldn't tell the difference. That's the way they make the dresses now. No buttons on 'em. No shape to 'em.

It's just the same as having two dresses. Then we got laughing and couldn't explain it because we were thinking of how Martha Washington or Queen Elizabeth would look with their bustles on in front.

They've done away with buttons and hooks; they don't need any dress patterns. No fittings. Just an old piano cover and a lamp shade for a hat. That's getting sensible.

They put zippers on their coats, shoes, galoshes and sleeves. They can get dressed for the opera and theater so fast you don't miss more than the first two acts. It's about time for the husbands to stop clowning about the wives taking a long time to primp.

Now, everything has been changed around. The front is in back, the back is in front and only the sides are where they used to be.

Businesslike Government

Sound Commercial Principles Should Be Applied To Municipal Functions.

The reviving talk of a city manager, together with the demand for an efficiency and economy survey, bears witness to the people's desire that the municipal government shall be administered in accordance with sound business principles.

Mayor McNair contemptuously asks what businessmen know about city hall. His question betrays an attitude which fortunately is not treated with the respect that it once commanded.

A very good answer to Mayor McNair may be found in some remarks of the Taxpayers' Association of New Mexico, as quoted by the Western Pennsylvania Branch of the National Economy League in its current bulletin:

"Our difficulties arise from the widespread acceptance of the principle that government is not business but 'politics.' This has led to the attempt to segregate certain governmental functions, such as courts and schools, from other functions. It is said that the courts should be kept out of politics, and the schools should be kept out of politics, and the health and welfare departments should be kept out of politics.

"Is it not possible that we have reached the time when we should demand that there should be no politics in the assessment of property or in the administration of our fire and police departments or in the administration of government? When we are ready to recognize that the common welfare demands government on a business rather than a political basis, we will be ready to select our officials on the basis of competency, retain them in office during good behavior, and pay such salaries as shall be adequate for the important duties of their respective offices."

This applies to Pittsburgh as aptly as to conditions in New Mexico.

Financing Re-Employment

To Aid Business the Federal Securities Act Needs to Be Clarified.

The American people need a sense of perspective and of realism in dealing with the broad economic questions growing out of the depression.

There has been ample evidence that, in the boom period, security creators at times played fast and loose with other people's money.

Accordingly, in the Federal Securities Act Congress properly attempted to set up higher and better standards for the protection of the public.

There was crying need for such legislation, and the Hearst newspapers are heartily in sympathy with the demand for truth in security offerings and with the effort to hold issuers and underwriters fully responsible for their fraudulent and negligent acts.

But the purpose of the reform was not to shut off the flow of capital from the reservoir of savings into the spigots of productive industry.

Of course, other factors, such as monetary uncertainty, lack of need of expansion of the industrial plant, richness in cash of strong corporations, poor credit of other would-be borrowers, and discouragement to investment by political business baiting, have militated against new financing.

Yet expert opinion finds in the text of the law itself ambiguities which appear to act as a deterrent.

Long before the New Dealers had addressed themselves to protecting small capitalists, Eustace Seligman, attorney and son of a distinguished economist, advocated reforms better to protect small investors. He began such a campaign in 1925.

In the current Atlantic Monthly, Mr. Seligman sensibly proposes that, as an immediate step to break the capital blockade and facilitate recovery, Congress make eight technical amendments to eliminate the differences between the securities act and the admirable British companies act, which has been demonstrated to be practical.

Then Mr. Seligman proposes a leisurely study of the whole question of regulatory technique by a committee of outstanding men to be appointed by the President.

Mr. Seligman's temperate suggestion constitutes a challenge to the administration.

It brings to a practical test whether the "New Deal" is interested in reforming and purifying our business and financial practices, on the one hand, or in destroying the whole American system of private property and private enterprise, on the other.

President Roosevelt, in his message to Congress urging a Federal truth-in-securities law, specifically said:

"The purpose of the legislation I suggest is to protect the public WITH THE LEAST POSSIBLE INTERFERENCE TO HONEST BUSINESS."

In order to fulfill the President's formula of giving a minimum of interference to honest business, on which the full employment of labor at high wages depends, the language of loosely drawn sections of the Federal Securities Act needs to be clarified and revised.

In the present situation, the honest and scrupulous operator is needlessly deterred, while the crooked and less substantial financiers are willing to incur the newly created risks.

Congress need not concern itself with the convenience and prejudices of bankers, but it should be interested in quickening the flow of saving into job giving industry and commerce.

A 300-Year-Old Debt

Which Should Be Paid.

One winter some 300 years ago the early settlers of New England nearly starved. Had it not been for Massasoit, an Indian chief, they would have.

Massasoit and his tribe, then 70,000 strong, brought presents of corn and plantains and tided the colonists over.

There are not many descendants of these Indians left now, but there are still 100 who inhabit the western end of Martha's Vineyard. And they are having a hard time finding enough to eat.

Their chief, Ho No Ho, perhaps remembering what Massasoit once did for the palefaces, has addressed a letter to the Great White Father in Washington asking for aid.

"There is nothing for us to get here in the way of work," says Ho No Ho, "so I am appealing to Your Majesty to see if you can help the poor Indians on this island."

We don't know whether this plea has yet reached the President, but we imagine that if it does he will see that the Indians are well fed. And whoever takes the supplies to them should acknowledge a historic debt by saying, when he arrives:

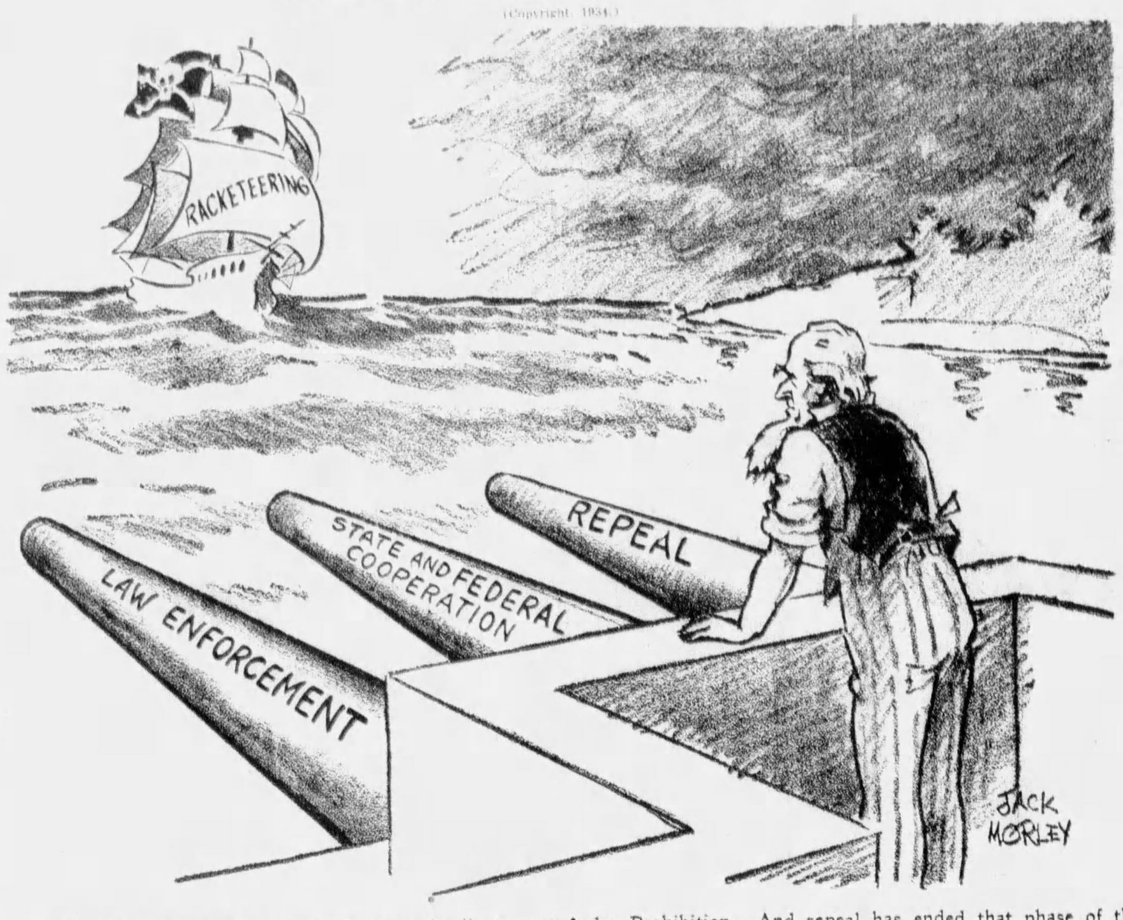
'Not a Cent for Tribute'



Thirteen billion dollars a year is a lot of tribute—yet Uncle Sam or his people have been paying it every year.

They have been paying it, according to United States Senator Copeland, to racketeers—and every dollar of it has meant higher costs of living and steadily diminishing respect for law and order.

This extortionate tribute reached its enormous total under Prohibition. And repeal has ended that phase of the problem.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—In the manner of Arnold Bennett's journal: At a dinner party, Cornelius F. Kelley, the Montana copper fellow, fell to talking of the burly days of the western road agent. I wondered why the cinema has never portrayed such red-corpuscled drama with historical accuracy.

That straying black sheep of Kentucky aristocracy, for instance, looped in the hangman's noose who said: "As this is my last public appearance, I do not want to make a social error. Shall I step or jump off the box?" The Senator who was a replica of the cartoon Uncle Sam was a Montanian, Tom Carter, he was.

When an Easterner inquired the declensions in the landscape from a train window, Senator Carter explained: "Out here they are holes in the ground. In Wall street, they are permanent mining investments!" Cold; misty. On such days I seem to do nothing but oddments of high unimportance.

I spent an hour writing four lines. Result: Just vaporings. Basil Ruysdael, the wireless announcer, writes me of a gray donkey that wanders quite on his own in West Twenty-fourth street. I must look it up. Yet on reflection there are many wandering donkeys in this Bagdad.

I cannot get that actual skyrockety name I heard at the Will Hayses out of my head. Sybil Zabel. And someone said the real name of one of our great dramatic actresses was Psyche Flannigan. But I think the name best combining the culture of Greece with the breeze of Killarney was the Ziegfeld show girl, programed —Anastasia Riley.

So often I hear similies I wish I might have fathered. The chronic flute player Irving Cobb talks about with "a lip like a South American tapir." And in Jack's one morning Wilson Mizner was speaking of a declasse and bedraggled lady of the evening as "a Sixth avenue cruiser dripping like rust from the elevated." Carl Van Vechten, I hear, has almost given up writing for photography.

Dick Greiner told us of Susie, a colored maid with a kind heart, airing a pair of Irish Terriers. A white maid in the service elevator remarked to her: "Huh, they should be having children instead of dogs to look after." And Susie smiled: "If it were not for these dogs my two children might not have food." I'm reminded that someone who knew him well should do a biography of Bert Williams. While there seems biological proof no one dies of a broken heart, I'll always believe this great comedian did.

A chuckle in Irving Caesar's travesty of that now tiresome ditty "The Last Round Up." Dedicated to a dimming movie star, it's called "I'm Headin' for the Last Close Up'" It came to me while walking with M. along the Rialto last evening that Victor Moore is the most unactorish of all actors. Along the sidewalks he might be mistaken for a mid-west Rotarian, left over from the last convention.

Lawrence Tibbett told M. an amazing thing at dinner. Frequently he does not know what his operatic roles will be the coming week. He learns from newspaper announcements. Tibbett is not a showy fellow, fundamentally and his opinions seem quite cultivated. When he exercises the artist's prerogative of becoming temperamental, he acquires sore throat. No cold whatever. Just an aching larynx. Pavlowa, similarly upset, suffered swollen ankles. Paderewski, neuritis. Mind swaying matter.

Something of the old tosh about those masked balls. How do well-bred folk tolerate them! They attend, year after year. Bands are deafening, air defiling, everybody on the loose and even cocottes not worthy the occasion. Oliver Herford was mentioning one day of attendance at the last French Students Ball and added: "At least I hope it was!" Poor Montague Glass. How bravely he suffered for more than 20 years!

I saw some cigars today made for O. H. P. Belmont. 14 inches long, fiercely black. They should serve a litter with the one they serve me. All morning the typing girl was chittering of romance. Spring on the wing! I couldn't tell her that romance never comes today. It always happened yesterday or will happen tomorrow. That is knowledge ripening only with tears. And many bumps.

ISN'T IT SO?

A man isn't necessarily a high liver because he occupies the attic room in a boarding house.

A woman may begin to lose interest in a man after she has succeeded in getting him to say that he loves her.

There may be reasons why a man should try to deceive others, but why should he try to deceive himself?

What a sociable world this would be if a man's neighbors were half as glad to see him on his return from a month's trip as he thinks they ought to be.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Why Is Conceit?

Conceited people—what a pest they are! How they bore everyone who meets them!

Wouldn't you think they'd realize it? Yet they don't. Even though they may be—often are—smart and sensitive in every other respect, they can't seem to realize the impression they're making.

Or do they? Do they really see as clearly as anyone how unpopular they are—how their "stuff isn't going over?"

And is that why a conceited person is so often an irritable one, and given to long spells of gloom?

What's the truth about conceit, anyway? Why will otherwise normal persons make social blights of themselves by blatting boasts or simpering monologues?

Sure they do—but there's no law against that. We all love ourselves. We wouldn't be worth a hoot if we didn't. But why should certain citizens love themselves so much, so exclusively, that they become human hang-nails?

Why, for example, are even you and I, partner, occasionally seized with an irresistible impulse to tell the world what Wonderful Eggs we are? Is it because we are convinced that we are, really, such treats? Or is there, maybe, another reason?

There's another reason—a surprising one—FEAR.

Conceited people, of course, have no monopoly on fear. We are all born fearful. But fear has become a sick obsession with the egotists.

HE BOASTS, NOT BECAUSE HE'S SURE OF HIMSELF, BUT BECAUSE HE ISN'T SURE ENOUGH.

Always, behind his complacent broadcast, lurks the desperate dread that he may not be impressing the other fellow—that the other fellow may be indifferent, amused or openly contemptuous.

All too well he knows that there are reasons for such reaction; reasons that stretch back to his dim beginnings. He wasn't as smart as the other fellows—as strong—as gritty. She wasn't as pretty as the other girls—didn't have as nice dresses or as many beaux. Their homes weren't like other homes, or their parents weren't like other parents. They were different, somehow, and hated that difference because it was . . . OR SEEMED . . . a wall that shut them out from normal life.

So, AS A DEFENSE, conceit began—self-love, inflamed into a frantic battle for self-protection. Protection against the other fellow's contempt and their own belittlement. Life's old fight for a place in the sun . . . but a fight that has passed all healthy desire and become a nightmare.

Silly? Of course. Worse than silly—tragic. Be patient with the boaster, no matter how he bores you. He's a soul in purgatory.

Isn't there any cure? There certainly is. But the egotist can't find it in his own self. For Self has become a disease with the egotist. He is smothered in self . . . and the deeper he searches within himself, the more self will he find.

So you can't cure your conceit by working on conceit . . . rediculing it . . . trying to control it . . . making vows you'll wipe it out—

THE ONLY CURE FOR SELF-INTEREST IS INTEREST IN THE OTHER FELLOW . . . IN THE WORLD . . . IN LIFE.

The ony way to be sure of yourself is to forget yourself. And you can only do that by thinking of something or somebody else.

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

What Does Marriage Mean?

Lots of women, both married and single, are beginning to wonder just what a girl gets out of modern marriage.

* * *

Once, marriage was a life proposition, with a lot of perquisites thrown in. And a husband was at least as permanent and durable as a good set of dining room furniture. You accepted him "for life" as you did the wedding silver, and you no more expected him to walk off and leave you (for a blonde) than you did the monogrammed salad forks.

* * *

Once, if you got a man as far as the altar you had him practically roped all the way down to the grave. But nowadays it looks as though you never can be sure that he's yours for life until you've laid the lilies on his chest.

* * *

That was a glad day for the men, but a sad one for the girls, when women decided to let the men off the leash. A modern bride doesn't know whether she'll be a wife or a grass widow by next season, and she hasn't the faintest idea who will be tossing pennies for her husband.

Marriage used to lend a woman dignity and position; and the most unhappy of married women could enjoy "feeling sorry" for a spinster. Just having "Mrs." on her stationery and calling cards gave her a sense of superiority.

* * *

But now, with half the married women refusing to wear wedding rings and calling themselves "Miss," you can't tell a spinster from a "Rib"—and there seems to be no especial glory attached to orange blossoms.

* * *

To a woman, marriage once meant a home and security and domestic interests; but, to lots of young things, it now means only a kitchenette apartment and somebody to help pay the rent, or just a temporary experiment.

* * *

Of course, there are still lots of old-fashioned marriages. And if a girl happens to marry the man she loves and who loves her, and they manage to work out a happy, congenial life together, nothing else in the world matters much.

But modern marriage—the marriage of today—isn't the sine qua non of life which marriage used to be when Mother was a girl and when the marriage ties were a Gordian Knot, instead of just a slip-knot.

* * *

* * *

* * *

That is why so many successful business girls today are beginning to wonder just what marriage means, and just what it has to offer them. Yet, up to date, nobody has been able to find a satisfactory substitute for the good old ties that USED to bind.

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Footsteps in the Night

There is new meaning in the footsteps now
That echo through the silence of the street,
As though in subtle mode they could avow

By day the sound of steps is lost in vast Unceasing clamor of life's changeful scheme;
They have but little import, and when past

But in the night comes one, unsure and slow;
What lonely wanderer of the dark is he
Who cannot choose or does not dare to go
With steady tread to meet his destiny?

With step that leaves behind all doubt and fear;
Youth's ardor throbbing through that rhythmic pace,
Youth's stride of triumph, ringing loud and clear!

Of doors forever closed, of phases new
To which they pass with dread or with delight,
Of journeys done, of visions they pursue,

Human Side of the News

By Its Work With the CCC the Army Has Shown Itself a Peacetime Force for Good

By Edwin C. Hill

THE bugles ring out on the West Point plateau. Twelve hundred and fifty picked lads of the nation swing into marching line, file on file, company by company. Sundown comes, the sunset gun lets go, the old flag drops down through the trees and the Cadet Corps swings into its magnificent parade, honoring the Stars and Stripes.

But it is not of the thrill and drama of that sweeping march that I'm thinking tonight, as I read of the grand work the United States Army has done in making the President's Civilian Conservation Camps a marvelous success. With sympathy and understanding the Army—commissioned officers and wise old non-coms—has taken hold of the President's great purpose and has guided hundreds of thousands of raw lads from city and country into better health, better ideals and a better grip on life.

Perhaps we forget, sometimes, that the United States Army is a great peacetime force for good, as well as the basis of our protection in war. And the ideals which sway the Army are born up on that high, green plateau above the Hudson, where they have been turning out officers and gentlemen in the finest sense of the word for more than a century and a quarter.

Democratic Spirit Pervades Academy

NO one not entirely familiar with West Point life and the spirit of the Military Academy can quite understand the spirit of democracy which pervades the whole institution. Discipline, yes—the hardest, most rigid kind of discipline. But democracy and a free people need discipline above all things. There is no swank at West Point. The cadets despise show-off, hate pretense.

Not long ago a queen visited the United States with her young daughter, a very attractive girl, now married to European royalty. The Queen took a fancy to one of the cadets as a dancing companion for the princess, and invited the lad to New York City for luncheon. But that was against practice and regulations, and the superintendent refused permission. The Queen asked if she might go to West Point with her daughter and have luncheon with the cadet at the reservation hotel. There was nothing against that, so the royal visitors appeared and the luncheon was had.

But next day the ragging of the favored youth began. Whole classes, seeing him approach, produced Turkish bath towels and spread them at his feet—the royal carpet, of course. And then whole classes bowed low, in exaggerated humility. But they let up after awhile. West Point detests favoritism, as it detests slackness, idleness, useless noise, bad manners, extravagance and selfishness. And they are death on swellheads.

One of the boys came to West Point with a great reputation as an athlete. He brought along a home-town paper with his picture and a long story about his prowess and what a hit he was sure to be on the West Point football field. Well, the upper classmen cut the picture out of the paper, pasted it in the crown of the young man's cap, made him learn the piece by heart, and whenever they came across the chastened youth they made him stand and stare at his own picture while he recited the whole blurb from the home-town paper. The cure was complete.

Beautiful Chapel Discloses Secret

IT is in the beautiful chapel at West Point that one discovers the secret of the place. Within the great stone house of worship, shaped like a cross and bearing over its doorway a great sword carved in stone—King Arthur's Excalibur—you may read, by the soft and beautiful light falling through the stained glass windows, the prayer of the Cadet Corps, the prayer by which 1,300 young American lads live their daily life and form their character and prepare to face the world. It begins, of course, with an invocation to God, and then:

"Strengthen and increase our admiration for honest dealing and clean thinking, and suffer not our hatred of hypocrisy and pretense ever to diminish.

"Encourage us in our endeavor to live above the common level of life.

"Make us to choose the harder right, instead of the easier wrong, and never to be content with a half-truth, when the whole can be won.

"Endow us with courage that is born of loyalty to all that is noble and worthy, that scorns to compromise with vice and injustice, and knows no fear when truth and right are in jeopardy."

There's more of it, but no need to repeat it all. For there's a whole religion in the few lines, and there's a lot of it those young men take out into life. It is not the buildings of stone, or its storied relics, that make West Point. It's the spirit which dominates it—the spirit of democracy, square dealing, honor and patriotism, and along with these, willingness to work and to endure.

The Road to Justice In Veterans' Relief

By James T. Williams, Jr.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT will see to it that no further cash payments on outstanding adjusted compensation certificates will be authorized during the calendar year 1934.

If the Democratic leadership of the House deserts the President on this issue and defeats his program in the House, the probability is that he will be sustained by the Senate.

If Mr. Roosevelt is voted down in both houses, he has received convincing assurances from Democrats and Republicans that his veto of any cash bonus bill will be decisively sustained in the Senate and probably in the House.

Meantime the insistence of the President that "no person because he wore a uniform must thereafter be placed in a special class of beneficiaries over and above all others" when it comes to Federal relief is bringing to the White House enthusiastic endorsements from all parts of the country.

President Supported By Many Veterans

Among these are the group of legionnaires and other veterans who are active in the work of the American Veterans' Association. This association, which was formed several years ago in Chattanooga, Tenn., effected a national organization one year ago on Washington's birthday in Independence Hall at Philadelphia.

Its second annual conference was recently held in the federal city. It ended on Lincoln's birthday with the placing at the tomb of the unknown soldier in Arlington Cemetery a wreath of laurel, on which these words in letters of gold appeared:

"For the honor of the service."

The American Veterans' Association now numbers more than 10,000 veterans of the great war, who have formed chapters North, East, South and West. The association has members in every state of the Union and in more than 1,200 cities and towns.

All veterans of the great war who have subscribed to the declaration of principles proclaimed by this association from Independence Hall on Washington's birthday of last year unite in the demand that the government of the Constitution shall dispense—

Commander Is Former Aviator

THE newly-elected national commander of the American Veterans' Association, Charles M. Kinsolving, of New York, commanded the 163rd Aero Squadron overseas in the Great War. Of the two years and four months that he flew the colors after the United States entered the war 16 months of this service was at the front.

Here is what this veteran has to say, speaking for the legionnaires and other veterans who are supporting the declaration of principles of the American Veterans Association, about the duty of the government in the matter of federal relief to the war wounded and federal honor to the war dead:

"If the government is in a financial position to spend money on veterans, why don't the members in Congress introduce legislation to increase benefits to the widows whose mainstays or support were killed in combat or died as the direct result of war service, and to those ex-service men who are still suffering from disabilities actually incurred in war service?"

An increasing number of millions of Americans all over the country have begun to ask the same question of their Senators and Representatives in Congress.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Do you consider yourself so strong that you could overcome it? How do you know?

Have you ever faced a powerful temptation—that is, one that might bring you great influence or considerable money?

If not, you don't know what your reaction might be if the offer were tantalizing enough.

Of course, everyone has known times when temptation came in really unimportant ways and was not hard to control.

Humanity is very much the same yet temptation for one is the reverse in the next one; and what is extolled as so great a virtue in one may denote merely lack of temptation in another.

Your idea of something which might create a desire in you to overstep moral bounds or which might tempt you financially may be beyond that of the majority of people who make missteps.

But when you say that nothing could tempt you to do wrong, it may be an opinion arrived at because you never have been really tempted.
